Black Ink never runs out in Times of West Linn, Miss Ada H. Massey, who for 36 years has been a reporter for the Times, retired last Thursday. Miss Massey joined the Times staff in 1894, the same year for which the newspaper was founded.

Local Briefs

BANK OF OREGON CITY TO REMOLD BUILDING

Expenditure of $25,000 is Planned on Improvement of Main Street Structure.

Contracts for the complete remodeling of the Bank of Oregon City, of 6th and Main streets, were awarded yesterday. The work will be started at once and completed in six months. The building is to be redesigned and made up to date. The contract was awarded to the firm of Frank E. Weber and Sons.

LOCAL BUSINESS

FIRE PREVENTION

The Oregon State Fire Marshal Institute of Engineering in Portland has been notified by the Oregon City Fire Department that the institute has found the city's fire protection system to be inadequate. The institute recommends that the city adopt a comprehensive fire prevention program.

MILK AS FOOD

In the preservation of foods, an art which has reached considerable perfection, is the making of milk. Milk is a product of the cow, and its properties are such that it is able to sustain life. Milk contains all the necessary nutrients for growth and development.

Sixteen Teachers Take Examination

There were fifteen teachers who took the examination in this city last Thursday. The examination was administered by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. The examination was designed to test the knowledge and qualifications of the teachers.

LAW

The Oregon State Police have arrested a man for attempting to rob a bank. The man attempted to enter the bank using a false ID and threatening the personnel inside. He was later found to be in possession of a firearm.

POTTED MAMMALS

The Portland Zoo is hosting a special exhibit on potted mammals. The exhibit features various species of marsupials, including koalas, wallabies, and wombats. The exhibit is open to the public from 10 AM to 5 PM daily.

FOOD CONTAMINATION

A new study has found that food contamination is a major problem in the United States. The study suggests that food contamination can lead to serious health issues.

City Council Passes Ordinance

The City Council has passed an ordinance requiring all pet owners to register their pets. The ordinance is designed to better track the movement of pets and ensure that they are vaccinated.

Camelids

Camelids are a group of mammals that includes camels, llamas, and alpacas. They are known for their ability to thrive in harsh environments and have been used for centuries for transportation and work.

Napoleon Ingalls, Old River Captain Dies in Portland

Napoleon Ingalls, one of the last surviving Civil War veterans, died in Portland last week. He was 92 years old and served in the Union Army during the Civil War. He is survived by his children and grandchildren.

Olive Woodworth Dies

Olive Woodworth, 87, a former teacher and community activist, died last week. She was known for her work in improving education and community services.

Will Deer Suicide?

Mollie Man Says That It Isn't Done

The Oregonian reports that a deer in Clackamas County was seen standing on its head last week. Some residents have speculated that the deer may have committed suicide. However, wildlife experts believe that the deer was simply playing.

Local Farm Bureau to Hold Annual Meeting

Officers for Coming Year to Be Elected on January 2; New Projects to Be Talked

The annual meeting of the Clackamas County Farm Bureau will be held here January 2, according to the announcement of J. H. Mayer, a former county commissioner. The meeting will be held at 10 a.m. at the county courthouse.

FOUNDATION NOVEL

With the members of the Oregon City town council gathered in the town hall last night, the councilors discussed the possibility of implementing a new public transportation system. The councilors expressed concern about the high cost of the project and the potential impact on the town's economy.