CROSSING PLAINS ON HORSEBACK

MISS ALBERTA CLAIRE, OF BUFFALO, WYO., WHO IS BOUND FOR BUFFALO, N. Y.

WOMAN, HORSE AND BIG DANE DOG

Trio Must Make Their Own Way to Win the Big Wager Held Up as a Prize By a Rich Uncle.

Miss Alberta Claire, of Buffalo, Wyoming, who is traveling on a wagon from Buffalo, Wyoming, to Buffalo, New York, by way of Cheyenne, reached this city Tuesday afternoon, and attracted no little attention, when it became known that her mission was, this young horsewoman, who has lived most of her life on the cattle ranch of her father and uncle, is standing the trip remarkably well, although she has met with many hardships since she started out in April.

Live Wires are looked for a good time tomorrow evening. Members of this organization are sure getting a run for their money.

Mr. Wells, well known as the Will-holt sawmill man and who operated a mill there until about a year ago, was in the city Tuesday on business.

A friend of John J. Boylan says that it was E. Parker that struck Boylan and not Boylan Parker, and that our type became twisted and reflected on the wrong man.

Thursday night will be annual roll call night at the prayer meeting at the Congregational church. The officers of the church are anxious that there be a full attendance.

Chas. W. Risley, of Risley Station, was a business visitor to the city Tuesday. He is a prominent farmer in Clackamas county and is always welcome in Oregon City.

The Mccabee installation last night was a very pleasant affair. State Commander Sherwood did the honors of the occasion, and a feast of oysters followed the work of the evening.

Revival meetings at Gladstone are becoming interesting. So far there have been three baptisms and adherents to the church—two men on Sunday night and a woman on Saturday night.

Marvin Hart, who was hauling garbage and rubbish to the river in a cart belonging to the city Tuesday, allowed the cart to get away from him on Fourth street and it ran rapidly down into the river and disappeared.

Question? Who is to rescue the cart? Odd Fellows of Gladstone met Tuesday evening and passed a bunch of new members through the initiatory degree. The first degree will be worked in the home hall on Saturday evening, the Portland degree team doing the work. The Oregon City team promises to work the second and third degrees later.

WILL DEBATE IN PORTLAND. E. C. Dye to Lead the Negative Forces in Debate.

Evening Star and Woodlawn Grangers, of Portland, have arranged for a debate between members on Saturday evening, at Woodlawn at 8 p. m. The Evening Star is the banner grange in the State and Woodlawn lays claim to standing shoulder to shoulder with it. Therefore this event calls for more than passing attention at this time.

The question to be discussed is, "Resolved, That the Federal Government Should Retain Title to all Unappropriated Mineral Lands, Timber Lands and Water Power."

R. F. Peters, a University Law School debater of reputation will lead the affirmative. Messrs. E. C. Dye, Hon. J. D. Lee and Fred Meindell will speak to the negative.

Our townsman, Mr. Dye, and Mr. Peters are old schoolmates and friends but will in this instance be pitted against one another.

CONVICTED OF THEFT. Coast County $70 to Punish for Theft of $250.

W. S. Alderson was yesterday afternoon sentenced to 12 1/2 days in the county jail. He was convicted of the larceny of a cord of wood valued at $250 and it cost Clackamas county about $70 to convict him. The following jury tried the case in Circuit Judge Campbell's court: A. J. Harkner, John E. Eckerson, S. R. Green, G. M. B. Jones, Fred Gerber, Dan Watts, J. F. Drake, Fred Gross, Ole Mikkelson, F. E. Reedy, E. E. Judd and W. F. Stanton.

First National Wine Case. The case of Dotes vs. First (Commercial) National Bank was heard this week. The case was heard before Judge Campbell without jury and verdict was found for defendant. Judge Campbell gave defendant thirty days in which to file bill of exceptions. Case will likely be taken to the Supreme Court on appeal.

Fined $250 and Costs. Ed Reed, who was arrested for drunkenness Monday, by Chief Shaw, was in police court Tuesday and drew a fine of $250, which he paid.

ing along a lonely highway she was met by a young man, who grabbed the horse's reins, and told her to halt. She refused, and the man made another attempt to catch hold of the reins when she pulled out her revolver and shot half of his ear away. He interfered no more.

Miss Claire was the only child, and she was born in England. When four years of age she came to America with her parents and to Wyoming. Her father purchased a cattle ranch, and the young girl was soon the pet of all the cowboys. It was on her father's ranch that she learned to ride the bucking bronchos, and she delighted in saddling her own horse. Her father was a scholar, and the only manner in which he could coax his child to study was to tell her that she could ride a certain horse. She wasn't long in getting at her studies. When 15 years of age her mother took her to Gloucester, England, where she wished her child to enter a school. She attended college for two years, and returned to Wyoming when 17 years of age. Miss Claire says that she embodies the characteristics of her father, as he loved the way of the West, while her mother was of a quiet and home-loving nature. Miss Claire's parents passed away about eight years ago, and after their death she made her home with her uncle, her father's brother. The young woman has a charming personality, and many who listened to her tales of adventure were very much impressed with her, and wondered how a little woman could brave the hardships with such courage as she has since starting on her tour across the continent.

Several moving picture show companies are already negotiating with Miss Claire to appear in some of her riding stunts, but she has not decided as to the future. One company has offered a good price. She will decide when she completes the trip to New York.

Miss Claire states that she has been treated kindly in most of the places she has visited. When in this city she wore a handsome pin given her by one of the prominent wool growers, who is a member of the Woolgrowers' Association that convened at Portland last week. At Lewiston, Idaho, she was greeted with gold nuggets forming a locket. Around her waist she carried a belt filled with cartridges and a 32-calibre revolver, and anyone holding her up will no doubt receive what is coming to them. Miss Claire carries with her a supply of souvenir postals of herself, and these she distributes to her friends she makes in the different places she visits, and no doubt those receiving them will be interested in her travels until she reaches her destination across the continent.

MONUMENT TO GOOD LIVER IS ERECTED BY FRENCHMEN. Belle to Honor Memory of Brilliant Savarin.

Belle, a little town in the southeast of France, is about to raise a monument to the glory of one of its sons, Brillat-Savarin. The author of "The Physiology of Taste" was the absolute realization of the typical good liver. The revolution confiscated his property and removed him from his office as civil judge. He fled to Switzerland and then to the United States, where he played a fiddle in a New York theater to gain a living.

His property was afterward returned to him, and he was made a counselor of the supreme court, an office he clung to successfully through changes of empire and kingdom. His "Physiology of Taste" shared the fate of many celebrated books. It was refused by several publishers and eventually was published at the author's expense, but without his name attached to it, as he considered the nature of the work incompatible with his judicial functions.

It was Brillat-Savarin who declared that "the discovery of a new food does more for the happiness of the human race than the discovery of a star."

Some of the axioms from his book are: The man who can cook is made: the man who can roast is born.

To invite anybody to one's house is to undertake the responsibility of its well being during the whole time he is one's guest.

Man eats, man eats. The man of sense always knows how to eat.

The destiny of nations depends upon how they are fed.

To invite anybody to one's house is to undertake the responsibility of its well being during the whole time he is one's guest.

"Monsieur the counselor," a hostess asked him one day, "which do you prefer, burgundy or bordeaux?"

"Madame," replied the judicial authority, "that is a lawsuit in which I have so much pleasure in taking the evidence that I always postpone judgment."

PROGRESSIVE LEAGUE FORMED. Nonpartisan Organization Under Way to Advance Inherent Policies.

A few weeks ago James A. Edgerton, the newspaper writer, suggested the formation of a nonpartisan progressive league to push forward progressive principles. He has just received word of the first league formed under the plan. It is in San Joaquin county, Cal., in which Stockton is located, is organized as a county league and meets every month. The secretary, Mary F. Merrill, suggests that speakers be sent out to push the propaganda of the movement and believes that "such organizations will do a vast amount of good."

In the original suggestion of the progressive league the plan was to have the people organize themselves without waiting for outside help and when a sufficient number of leagues in a state had been formed to organize a state league, thus continuing till a national body could be formed. The well known progressive principles, such as tariff reduction, direct nominations, popular election of senators, initiative and referendum, control of corporations, elimination of special interests from politics and other like policies, should form the platform of the movement. It should be in no sense a new party, but should contain members of all parties and seek only the promotion of the people's rights.

Mr. Edgerton, whose home is in Nutley, N. J., now begins to believe that something may come of his suggestion and hopes to hear from the formation of other leagues.

SAY HALF STREETS WERE NEVER VACATED

CHURCH WILLING TO TRADE WITH THE CITY SAME AS OTHER REAL ESTATE HOLDERS.

The improvement of Ninth street has drifted into more or less complication over the widening of the street and the consequent assessment of damages and benefits. The street was originally opened up to but half width on the three squares between Harrison and Taylor streets, the north half of the street never having been vacated. But in the present improvement it was imperative that the street be improved its full width or not improved at all. Hence the improvement was decided upon, the damages and benefits assessed, and the work started forward.

There were three blocks on which the half street had not been vacated. Half of one was owned by the Congregational church—but not the half of the street—and assessment was made down as far as Centre street. The city decided to pay the owners of the half street in the two blocks east of the church block, and assess the church about $20 along with other holders. In the meantime the church secured possession of the half street and then offered to sell to the city at the same rate as the others—$200—and pay for its improvement same as others—about $20. But as the city had banked on the vacation of the half street in question this new move came in the nature of a jolt; and the matter stands in abeyance.

It looks much as if the church was in possession of something that the city must buy, and as if its title was good and in holding it for trade the church would be able to care for its improvement assessment and have a little change to spare.

In the meantime the City Fathers are wondering what will be the next snag run up against, and from what source the jolt will come.

IN SOCIETY CIRCLES

On Sunday evening Miss Clara Fields entertained a few of her friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Fields on Twelfth near Main. The evening was devoted to music and cards, followed by refreshments.
