One millionaire, Jos. Fels, soap manufacturer, admits that he did not get his millions honestly and is giving them away in an effort to ease his conscience. No man can get to be worth a million in a lifetime and do it with justice to other men. But the system under which we are all working makes it possible for a man to accumulate a million without being dishonest. The system is wrong, as any man who will stop to think, must concede. But so long as the system is in vogue, a man is not to be judged too severely who profits by it. Still, on the other hand, a man who really wants to be thoroughly honest should join in the effort to correct the system. And while with a correct system in vogue one could not pile up money so high as now, he would be happier himself, and be able to make others happy, and that is about all there is to life when reduced to the last analysis.

The fight in Congress on conservation is growing warmer day by day. To a man who covets the public domain it is a terrible crime to see an aggressive President like Roosevelt lock the doors against him. And if he was the only one to consider it would be a crime to lock the doors against him. But a man who will stop and think cannot but admit that if we are wise we will not base our actions on this generation only, but on what is to be the good of this and succeeding generations. If conservation will be for the good of present and future generations then conservation is a good thing. If it will simply annoy those who are living now, and want to make a "stake," then conservation is an error. The general public can be trusted to settle this question correctly if it will only stop to consider it before making decision. The American people never make a mistake except when they decide a question of hand. This is why such men as Roosevelt wish to have the people stop and think; that was Roosevelt's reason for withdrawing so much of the public domain from public entry as he did—he wanted to give the people time to stop and think, believing if they did so they would settle the question rightly.

Get Rid of False
"Aristocracy" and Large Cities.

By Dr. Woods Hutchinson of New York.

I CAN think of no better way to spend a few billion dollars than in making over the monstrosities of cities in which we are now obliged to live. If our forefathers hadn't been so greedy in their pursuit of the dollar they would never have permitted the great congested cities of our country—and before all others, of course, comes New York—to grow up the way they have.

I AM CERTAIN THAT THAT CONTEMPORARY OF MARTIN CHUZZLEWITZ WHO SAID, "EVERYTHING DEGENERATES IN AMERICA—THE LION BECOMES A PUMA, THE EAGLE A FISH-EATER, AND A MAN A YANKEE," FORESAW WHAT OUR CITIES WERE DESTINED TO BE LIKE.

The money grasping who went before us cooped up our children in dark, poorly ventilated schoolrooms designed for little else but the breeding of disease. We GOT OUR FIGHTING SPIRIT UP and, reaching out to right and left, took all the land we needed and REMEDIATED THINGS.

And the same thing is going to hold true of everything else. SOME DAY WE ARE GOING TO GET OUR FIGHTING SPIRIT UP IN OTHER WAYS, and we will politely ask our so-called "ARISTOCRACY" and our so-called "best families" to stop aside and make room for the REAL BEST FAMILIES AND THE REAL ARISTOCRACY.

THE PEOPLE I HAVE VENTURED TO CRITICISE ARE THOSE WHO DARE TO ASSUME THEMSELVES TO BE BETTER THAN OTHERS MERELY BECAUSE THEIR TRAPPINGS HAPPEN TO BE A LITTLE FINER.

PULLING FOR GOOD ROADS.

The Good Roads cause deserves support and success. The announced intention of the Oregon Good Roads Association to promote and energize campaigns for the making of a good roads system in each county can have only practical benefits for the people of the counties. Good roads are always an investment. They are never a loss. The point is well taken that by issuing bonds to meet the cost of construction the improved highways themselves pay, in use, both principal and interest by means of increased property values and accelerated development of all kinds. The thought of giving work to men out of work, making them producers and wealth builders for the community instead of burdens, should not be forgotten. The utilization of convict labor in road making from city, county and state prisons will remove another burden. There is, in short, presented now for acceptance of the Oregon legislature a series of measures that together constitute an effective plan for providing Oregon with permanently built highways. These adopted, the way will be opened to a greater and broader development of this state than has ever before been possible. Public duty suggests the serving of the need in effective and unselfish ways.

AN OPTIMISTIC "DRY."

In another column we print a communication from a dry worker who, as the smoke of battle clears away, sees in the results a dry victory. It pays to be optimistic—and the reward comes in more than one way. A man who does not carry his burden of defeat too seriously does not suffer so deeply and the more quickly recovers. Then, as our correspondent states, why not put the better saloonists to the test and see if they really will aid in putting the lawbreakers out of business? A man who can see so good in any saloon can at least see good in forcing out of business a man who persists in disregarding all law that is made for the regulation of him and his business. And as it stands to reason that disregard of law on the part of what are termed "bad" saloonists reflects adversely against the man who tries to keep the law, is he not very apt to lend a helping hand in closing out the trouble maker if, approached in the proper spirit? Isn't the promised benefit worthy a try?

There is unnecessary worry because the new postal bank at Klamath Falls has not taken all the depositors from the other banks—because there are but nine depositors so far. In some cities the local banks are very strong and have the confidence of the people. Where that is the case, there is no reason why people should withdraw their deposits and rush with them to the new bank. There are many banks who not only have the confidence of the people, but that justly deserve it. This is true with the banks of this city; but that does not argue that the postal banks may not prove a good institution, or that they may not have a work to do. Truth is, that with postal banks established there will be a greater incentive on the part of people owning bank stocks to see to it that their officers are more careful in the safe-guarding of the depositors' interests, and with this accomplished the postal banks will have done a good work.

FOLLOWED TO REST
BY HOST OF FRIENDSLAST SAD RITES PERFORMED BY LOVING HANDS OVER REMAINS OF MRS. W. J. GORDON.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. W. J. Gordon were held at the Congregational church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. W. M. Proctor, pastor of the Congregational church, and Rev. C. L. Creech, pastor of the Methodist church of Canby. The church was filled with many friends of the deceased, who was well known in this city and Canby, and there were many who came from the latter city. The Eastern Star Lodge attended in a body, as she recently became a member of that order. "Rock of Ages" and "There is an Hour of Peaceful Rest" were read by the choir of the Congregational church. Mrs. Leon DeLarue sang "Lead Kindly Light." The floral offerings were beautiful and many, in token of the high esteem in which Mrs. Gordon was held. The pall-bearers were C. H. Dye, J. M. Mark, John Lowry, John Crawford, W. A. White and O. E. Freytag. The interment was in the Masonic plot of the Mountain View cemetery. Although a very cold day many of the friends of the family followed the remains to their last resting place, where a brief service was held by Rev. Proctor.

Mrs. Gordon was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. Thompson, and was born October 21, 1850, at Dane county, Wisconsin. At the age of 17 years she went to Benson, Minn., with her parents, where she resided until 19 years of age, when she was united in marriage to W. J. Gordon. From that place they moved to Glenwood, Minn., where they remained until about nine years ago when they came West. For some time they resided in this city, after which they left for Grants Pass, and again returned to this city to make their home. Mrs. Gordon has recently been making her home at Canby, but was soon to return to Oregon City to again take up her residence.

Mrs. Gordon besides leaving her husband, W. J. Gordon, and children, Earl, of Portland, Emil, Harry, Claire, Adolbert, of Canby, Lionel and Mrs. Benson, Minn., two sisters, Mrs. L. J. Walter Wells, of this city, leaves her mother, Mrs. Pauline Thompson, of Lageson, of this city, Mrs. J. M. Hendrickson, of Benson, Minn., and a brother, Gimman Thompson, of Benson. Mrs. Gordon's father died many years ago.

The death of Mrs. Gordon cast a gloom over this city as well as in Canby. She was a loving mother and an earnest church worker, and always ready with a helping hand. She has always led a Christian life, and when her death occurred she was on her way to attend services that were being held near her home in Canby.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED
AS A LOVING TOKENIT IS MADE EVIDENT SHE HAS FOUGHT THE GOOD FIGHT, KEPT THE FAITH.

Following are a series of resolutions passed by the members of the Congregational church, in this city, of which Mrs. Gordon was a member for many years:

Resolutions of Condolence.

Whereas, While we, the members of the First Congregational Church of Oregon City, Oregon, were assembling for annual roll call, the heart-rending news was brought to us that one of our former members, Mrs. W. J. Gordon, greatly beloved and honored by all, had just been killed by a passing train at Canby, Oregon; and

Whereas, Her sudden and untimely death had brought deep gloom and sadness to our hearts, and a realization that "in the midst of life we are in death," yet amidst our grief we realize that we live in a world of vicissitudes, and that this is not a permanent abiding place; we believe that our All Wise Father can bring good to our lives and hearts out of this seeming great ill, and as we remember her life we are led to say with Paul, she has "fought the good fight, kept the faith, death is swallowed up in victory."

Resolved, That we express to her sorrowing family and friends our abiding faith in our Father's love and our belief that she did not pass without His loving care.

Resolved, further, that we express to them our appreciation of her Christian character, "We sorrow not as those who have no hope," that we extend to them our heartfelt sympathy in this their hour of bereavement, and, further,

Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and that a copy be spread on the Records of this church.

By vote of the church, January 12th, 1911.

BOOSTER CLUB DEBATE.

Postponed Because of Bad Weather—
Future Plans.

The Booster Club of Mountain View held its regular meeting in the Curran hall on Friday evening. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the speakers were not present, but plans were made for the next two meetings, which will be held at the hall on Friday evenings of January 20 and 27.

On January 20 a debate will be the main feature of the evening, the subject for debate being "Resolved, That Capital Punishment Should Be Abolished." The debaters on this subject will be Sam Francis, George Roberts, Mrs. O. W. Griffin, Frank Albright, Mrs. M. Brown, William Beard. There is no doubt but there will be a lively meeting, as those who are on the debate will be well posted on the subject.

On the following Friday evening the Mountain View Boosters Club will attend to the Mount Pleasant Civic Improvement Club an invitation to debate at the Curran Hall, the latter club to choose the subject for debate. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Probability Strong That Ashland Will Be Place of Meeting.

The department encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic for Oregon will be held June 27, 28 and 29, probably at Ashland. During the last session of the department, the delegates decided upon Ashland as the place of meeting, provided the Southern Pacific Company would make a rate of one fare for the round trip. The company has so far agreed to make the usual convention rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip.

The council of administration held a meeting Saturday afternoon in Portland, was attended by George A. Harding, of this city, a member of the council. It will be up to the council to determine the place of holding the encampment, in case Ashland is not finally chosen.

MRS. DYE WILL TALK.

A Small Collection of Hawaiian Curios to Show.

Mrs. C. D. Latourette will give a silver tea Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the Congregational church choir, from 3 to 5 o'clock. One of the features of the afternoon will be a short talk by Mrs. Eva Emery Dye, on the sights and scenes of her late trip to Honolulu. Mrs. Dye has been asked to make such a talk and has chosen this occasion as one in which she has special interest. There will most likely be a large number present on this occasion as Mrs. Dye will undoubtedly have something of more than ordinary interest to tell those present. She will have for inspection quite a number of curios from the Hawaiians.

NO NEW CASES.

Thoroughness With Smallpox Case
Prevented Its Spreading.

As an evidence of the thoroughness and vigilance of the health department it may be cited that while there were 20 Greeks in attendance at the little jubilee in the house occupied by the man who broke out with smallpox, on the Sunday preceding the discovery of the disease, there has been no contagion so far reported. The sick man made a mild case of the distemper, however.

WILL MAKE SHIPMENTS

As Quick as Quarters Can Be Fitted Up.

The Oregon City Fruit and Produce Union has not been able to secure possession of the Union's new quarters, near the S. P. depot, but will do some time this week. The Union has been offered a considerable quantity of hay and grain, and will be able to make a shipment as soon as it can get into its new quarters. The Union will sell to local patrons but will not maintain a delivery service.

RAILWAY CLOSE TO MADRAS

Young Mr. Hysom Will Move There
Soon.

C. R. Hysom, Jr., will leave for the Madras, Oregon, country as soon as the weather is a little more propitious. He has purchased a team and is waiting for better weather and a nearer point of embarkation from the railway. The railway company promises that in a week's time the road will be running trains to within nine miles of Madras. As the Hysom claim is four miles this side of Madras he will not need to drive but five miles if he waits the week in question.

QUARANTINE REMOVED

Believed Diphtheria Has Been Stamped Out at Present.

The quarantine on the home of R. H. Harrison, corner of Twelfth and Monroe streets, has been raised. The home was quarantined because of diphtheria, two of Mr. Harrison's daughters having suffered from this malady. Mr. Harrison was in the meantime a grip victim, but has recovered. The house was fumigated Monday and it is believed the disease has been stamped out.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS

Call to Meet and Organize a Graded Department.

On Saturday afternoon there will be a meeting of interested Sunday school workers in the parlors of the Baptist church called together for the purpose of organizing a graded department for Sunday school work in this city. The meeting is called for 2:30 o'clock. It is to be a union effort. Mrs. J. W. Wilkins, State Sunday school worker, will be here to assist in the organization.

HAS A NEW BULL.

Henry Streibig Receives Present of a Fine Dog.

Henry Streibig is the possessor of a Boston bull terrier named Hank, which arrived here from Medford, Wisconsin. The animal was a gift from Mr. Streibig's parents, and the dog is far from vicious, and is a friend of the patrons of the Streibig meat market. The dog stood the trip well, and made up with his new master upon his arrival from his long trip.

Banquet at Hotel Portland.

About 25 members of the Fraternal Brotherhood went to Portland Monday night to attend a banquet at Hotel Portland. Among the prominent members of the order attending the banquet was Mrs. Knightly, who will attend a meeting at the Knapp hall at the regular meeting on Friday evening. Those securing a member during the past few months were entitled to attend the banquet, and the member, who has just entered into the mysteries of the order, was also a guest.

Much Snow at the Mines.

Word was received Monday by Mrs. G. W. Grace from Thomas Fairclough, who is at the Ogle Creek Mines, that there was three feet of snow at that place and it was still snowing. Up to a few days ago they have been enjoying the best of weather, but it now looks as if they will experience some winter. Mrs. James Heckert, who is in company with her husband, is the only woman at the mines, but she is enjoying the novelty.

Miss Freda Martin Improving.

Miss Freda Martin, seriously injured in a coasting accident last week although still confined to bed is improving. So far she is unable to use her legs, and it is feared it will be some time before she fully recovers her health.

Will Dig its Own Wells.

Willamette Council is receiving bids for the drilling of a new well for city water purposes, which will be opened Tuesday night. It is thought Council will have no difficulty in securing good wells at a fair cost to taxpayers.

BETHIA CLASS OF
M. E. SUNDAY SCHOOLPLANS FOR NOVEL ENTERTAIN-MENT IN THE CHURCH PAR-
LORS FRIDAY, FEB. 10.

The Bethia class of the M. E. Sunday school, organized class of young girls, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Blanchard last night to hold their regular monthly business meeting. Plans were made for a novel entertainment, to be given by the girls, on Friday evening, February 10, in the church.

Refreshments were served and a delightful social time enjoyed. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Ulah, Cantrell, on Fourteenth street. Those present were: Mrs. Emma Johnston, Mrs. Grace Cox, Misses Maude Smith, Maive Dillow, Lillie Miller, Moretta Hickman, Alice Bailey, Cleo Dillow, Ulah Cantrell, Mabel Morse, Adah Hulbert, Nettie Kure, Anna Lunt, Belle Gray and Nellie Swafford.

'Twas Really a Dry Victory.

Editor Enterprise: Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away and the sore places nearly all healed over, I want a small space in your paper to express my views of the late wet and dry controversy.

And right at the outset I want to lay claim to a dry victory.

Some of your readers may laugh at this statement, remembering that the returns were against us. I concede that, though concession is not necessary in view of the story the figures tell. But regardless of that fact, we won a great victory and I intend to proceed to prove it.

At the outset of the controversy the wets lay claim to the saloons being good institutions and told the story—somewhat exaggerated—of the large amount of taxes paid and the number of men given employment, and number of families fed. But by the time that the campaign was half through with, and the wets were thoroughly awake to the fact that they might receive a heavy chastisement, it was conceded that there were many bad saloons and many disreputable saloon-keepers. And with possible defeat staring them in the face they made all sorts of promises of what they would do in an effort to clean out the bad saloons.

To my way of thinking all saloons are bad—but some are "badder" than others. But what appeals to me is the fact that the better class of saloonists promise to aid the better citizens in getting rid of these bad saloons. If we can do that we have gained something—possibly something worthy the effort we put forth in the campaign. At any rate, let us put the "good saloonists" to the test as to the reformation of the business, and if successful in so doing we shall have secured a half loaf at least.

Perhaps I am not as enthusiastic in the temperance cause as are some others, and perhaps I do not get as bitter as do certain who become very enthusiastic; but I do recognize that the saloonist is my brother—as is also the drinking man—and it is my duty rather to save than to crush them.

We are to have saloons for the next two years; shall they be "good" saloons or bad? That seems to be up to us, what say you, brother?

FAIR PLAY.

Set Aside Streets for Coasting.

Editor Enterprise: The snow of the past few days has been enjoyed by the lads and lassies of the city, and I am glad to see it. But there seems to be too much of danger as things are now conducted. Many accidents—some of them trivial, it is true, but nevertheless accidents—of the past few days would seem to indicate that reform in methods is needed.

Not that I would for a moment interfere with the enjoyment of the young people, for I would not, but that I would add to their safety, which will in no way curtail the enjoyment. The boys and girls should not be permitted to make the most of every fall of snow, but they should be encouraged in doing so. But there should be conditions to this enjoyment and someone in authority should set those conditions. As it is now a lad or lassie may take his sled under his arm and start forth, dropping it on the snow at any point that seems good to him, and start down the street; and this regardless of who is coming up or going down. This is not right, for the streets and walks are for traffic—and with safety to those who use them.

How is this for a plan? Let the chief of police or some one designated by him "bulletin" a street or streets, and post signs to that effect, giving the street or streets over to sliding for a certain period. When the snow is worn thin on those in use others may be "bulletined" and the fun proceed. These streets and these only may be used for coasting. Pedestrians would soon find this out—the signs would make it plain—and pedestrians and teamsters would use the streets at that time at their own peril. Other streets would be free from sleds and safe to both pedestrians and vehicles, and start down the street, and this regardless of who is coming up or going down. This is not right, for the streets and walks are for traffic—and with safety to those who use them.

Added to this there should be an officer assigned to duty on the streets so designated to see to it that there was no bullying by husky rowdies who care little for the rights of others so that they have a good time. Make it possible for our boys and girls to get all possible enjoyment out of the games and sports of life, and do this with a view to the least possible risk to life and limb.

JENNINGS LODGE.

Jennings Lodge, like some of the other sections of the county, is experiencing some real estate transactions, and from indications there will be much building going on during the coming spring.

Mr. Crampton, of Portland, has purchased a one-acre tract at that place, and is contemplating building as soon as the ground is ready. Mr. Crampton has five men busily engaged in the clearing.

Mr. McFarland, a traveling man, has become so impressed with Jennings Lodge that he purchased one and one-half acres of land from Calvin Morse, and is having it cleared.

Mr. DeLong, a Woodburn hotel man, has awarded the contract of clearing off his four-acre tract of land in Jennings Lodge, and will build in the near future.

D. H. Miller, one of the prominent hardware merchants of Gold Hill, Southern Oregon, has awarded the contract of clearing his one-acre tract there, and will build in the near future.

WILLAMETTE.

Grandma Moldenhauer is very low at her home, and her recovery is doubtful.

Gordon Rogers, who has been employed by Frank Busch, has accepted a position in the store of his brother-in-law, G. G. Graves, of Willamette, and is engaged in delivering groceries. James Christensen, of Willamette, made a trip to Portland and Vancouver, Wash., Monday.

Mrs. E. Mayes, who has been ill for the past week, is now able to be up and around the house.

The wedding bells will be ringing within a short time. It is reported in this place, and there is a fine little bungalow awaiting the couple's arrival. It is stated that one of our estimable women of this city is to be one of the participants.

OAK GROVE.

Miss Rose Pfeiffer gave a candy pull to her Sunday school class Saturday afternoon, at her beautiful home near Silver Springs station. A nearby pond, which was frozen, afforded the boys much enjoyment.

The butcher wagon from Island station came very near being a wreck Saturday. The horse became frightened and ran up Center street, scattering beef in the snow. Owing to a bill on the street the horse was caught before he ran very far or had done much damage.

The Clackamas County Sunday School Association convention adjourned to meet in Oak Grove next year.
