PROSPERITY IN FREE LIBRARIES. Every Town Should Be In Possession of One. CONDITIONS OF CARNEGIE. Why Some People Are Against the Acceptance of Libraries From the Steel King—Most Cities Now Have Libraries—Majority Given as Gifts. There is no doubt that where there is a free circulating library there is an intelligent community. Every town, whether it has 400 or 10,000 population, should furnish some sort of center where the inhabitants can procure an insight into the labors of the mighty and know what is going on in the world to increase knowledge. The great majority of cities of 25,000 inhabitants and upward in the United States, says a New York educator, have a public library of some sort, and the same is true of many of the smaller cities and towns. But there are still quite a number of towns that are minus them, towns that really need them. A few public spirited citizens could easily advocate a library.

READY FOR WORK. Men's "Undress" as Women's Dress. Wearing the Overalls. The up to date housewife has discovered that she can work better when she is wearing overalls or pajamas than she can when she is hampered by skirts; hence the fact that in many cases she has taken to wearing one or the other of these articles of men's apparel when her duties call for housework in which the ordinary dress is something of a handicap and acts as a fetter.

MODEL LIBRARY BUILDINGS. or reading room and get the support of the rest of the community if not of the town itself. Books will always be forthcoming either from the shelves of individual libraries or from contributions solicited through various means. The newspapers will always help their towns to gain the financial support of the citizens. Many of the libraries already established have been founded on gifts of individuals, some have developed from subscription libraries, but the majority are now supported mainly or entirely by funds appropriated by the city government. A considerable number are still in the formative stage, this being true of those for which buildings are being erected from funds provided by Mr. Carnegie and for several hundred others for which he will probably provide buildings. The conditions upon which he provides funds for the erection of municipal library buildings are simple. The city must provide a site, which it may obtain by gift if it can, and it must agree to provide annually for the maintenance of the library a sum equal to at least 10 per cent of the cost of the building. Practically this offer is open to any city or town which has no public library building.

ADVISE TO CLERKS. By ELBERT HUBBARD. To the clerk who would succeed I say, CULTIVATE CHARM OF MANNER. Courteous manners in little things are an asset worth acquiring. When a customer approaches rise and offer a chair. Step aside and let the store's guest pass first into the elevator. These are little things, but they make you and your work finer. To guy visitors or to give short, sharp, flippant answers even to stupid or impudent people is a great mistake. Meet rudeness with unflinching patience and politeness and see how much better you feel. Most inaccuracies come from not really listening to what is said or not really seeing what you put down. The chewing of gum, tobacco or paper as a jaw exercise should be eliminated. The world is now pronouncing it vulgar, unbusiness-like, useless and silly. Keep ahead of your employer and of the board of health in this thing. If your business is to wait on customers be careful of your dress and appearance. Do your mauling before you reach the store. A toothbrush is a good investment. A salesman with a bad breath is dear at any price. Let your dress be quiet, neat and not too fashionable. To have a prosperous appearance helps you inwardly and helps the business. Give each customer your whole attention, and give just as considerate attention to a little buyer as a big one. If asked for information be sure you have it before you give it. Do not assume that the location or fact is so new because you once thought it so. Don't misdirect. Make your directions so clear that they will be a real help.

The Lure of Artificial Roses. The somber costumes of the winter that are having such a vogue are brightened up effectively by the exquisite handmade roses of silk, satin and chiffon. Mildred of the picture is adopting it with advisability. The can is semicircular in horizontal section, with a flat back, and is made to fit into the iron street railway poles used in most cities, being held in place by a hook which engages in the lattice-work of the pole. This permits easy removal for the purpose of emptying the can. The bottom of the can is perforated with half inch holes, allowing water from rains to drain off. The top is a cover which is made somewhat smaller than the can itself, allowing about one inch play between the edge of the cover and the sides of the can. The cover is fastened to a horizontal rod which extends through holes in opposite sides of the can and serves as a swivel, allowing the cover to swing downward. This rod is fastened a short distance from the back of the cover, and at the back a weight is fastened to the underside of the cover sufficiently heavy to draw the latter back to place, thus making it self closing. The material used in the construction of the cans is heavy galvanized iron, painted. For guidance, the words "Push Down" are printed with stencil on top of the cover, and the request to "Put It In Here" is stenciled on the outside of the can. Good News For Retailers. It is reported that the mail order houses experienced a shrinkage in business during the past year, and the head of one of the biggest mail order houses states that this shrinkage is due to the retail merchants learning to advertise their prices in big figures.

Read the Morning Enterprise. The people who have no taxable property and who therefore often erroneously suppose that they contribute nothing toward the payment of the taxes are usually quite willing to have a higher tax rate imposed for the purpose of securing for themselves and their families free library facilities, although in exceptional cases religious or sociological opinions may lead them to oppose it. A considerable number of taxpayers are more or less reluctant to have their assessments increased for this purpose. First—That they should not be taxed for things they do not want and never use. Second—That the furnishing free books tends to pauperize the community and to discourage the purchase of books for home use. Third—That there is no evidence that free public libraries improve the community materially or morally. Fourth—That the greater part of the books used are works of fiction, and that these are injurious to the readers. Fifth—That most of the arguments used in favor of free public libraries are merely sentimental and emotional, and that those who urge them most strongly do so for advertising and political reasons or to make a place for themselves or some of their relatives. While it is difficult to trace to either specific instances of material or moral improvement, it is certain that the general diffusion of intelligence which both certainly effect does result beneficially in these directions. Communities with flourishing free schools and libraries are usually more prosperous and better than those without such facilities, and while there is doubtless room here for a confusion of cause and effect it is probable that there is both action and reaction. Prosperity calls for increased facilities for education, and these in turn tend to make the community more prosperous.

WASTE CAN FOR USE ON STREET CORNER POLE. Substantial Receptacle of Which Any Town Might Make Use. The accompanying illustration shows a self closing can for receiving paper and other waste which has been in successful operation during the past four seasons, and any town that cares for the appearance of its streets might adopt it with advisability. The can is semicircular in horizontal section, with a flat back, and is made to fit into the iron street railway poles used in most cities, being held in place by a hook which engages in the lattice-work of the pole.
