MINING REPORTS.

What's Doing in Many of the Districts of the State.

Report From Blue River District. There are no idle men in this mining camp, which speaks well for the progress of mine development throughout the district. The Blue Bird Mining Co. has installed a new mill, known as the Denver Quartz Mill, and made their initial run last week, the This mill is fully equipped with feeder with a 20-horsepower engine. This property has had a great deal of systematic development done on it, which The Blue Bird Mining Co. has made stalled on its property a 35-horsepower sawmill for that purpose.

The Treasure mine, which has been soon again being in activity. Twentyalso an ariel tram 800 feet in length anvil, forge and tools. This property has an exceptionally fine building of six stories, and is very modern, as it contains several baths, with hot and cold water, well ventilated sleeping rooms, large living rooms, reading and writing rooms for the men and company offices, and a perfect sewer system in connection.

A contract has been let by the Lucky Boy Company for a 700-foot base ore. A 40 stamp mill is on this property which also has a first class a large producer, by government report. There are many substantial Great Western Mining and Milling Company's property is located on the which property is, with the progress of development showing up fine values which gives great promise of becoming one of the large producers of the district. Some good work is being done on the Great Northern, in opening up an ore body of very rich ore, which is in formation, mostly black manganese, running very high in free

There are many other mines in this district, under private ownership, which development has proven to be valuable properties, among which are the Tate Brothers, group, the Rowena and Ruby, the Taft, owned by William Odgers, the McCaulley mine, the Cinmine, the Providence, Confidence and Golden Eagle No. 1 and 2, a group others which we will note later, together with correct data covering same. With the organization of the Blue River Branch of the State Miners' Association, we feel that we are not standing alone, but are a unit of a body, which, with our united efforts, can achieve all within reason we may wak for. "In unity there is strength." and with that strength properly managed, we can bring the mining business to its rightful standing, build up legitimate mining business all over the state, and force the falser to the wall.

These things and much more can we do, therefore we carnestly entreat having offered to house the exhibits. all men and women interested in Oregon mines, whether their interest be in mine ownership or stock in Oregon mines, to come ferward and join the State Miners' Association and help us to prove our assertion to the public that Oregon has no superior in any line of product and that her vast mineral boits and placer mines need only the combination of skill, capital and labor to bring about this desired condition, then our state may take her place in the mineral world, where she property belongs.

Report of Curry County District. Gold Beach, Ore.—The work of the mining district is on the up-grade. Several new companies and many prospectors have come into the country since our last report. The Elk River Mining Company, with headquarters at Portland, a corporation, have taken up the work of developing their placer and quartz claims on Elk river. The property is a most excellent one. Much of the sand is so rich that an average salary can be made by planning out the yellow metal. Flumes and the necessary equipment will be installed at once.

Highland Mine.

One of the best illustrations of what can be done when a mine is properly handled is the Highland mine, near the head of Rock Creek, Baker county. > Southern Oregon Enjoys Growth. Grant's Pass, Ore.-The revival of the mining industry on a broader, more comprehensive and substantial basis, is now on in Southern Oregon, Never in its history has the outlook for real mining been as bright in the districts of Josephine and Jackson counties. The revival of the present is not the result of booming, or undue promoting, but has come about through the development of a number of mammoth propositions, whose worth is represented in the immensity and stableness of their ore bodies, rather than in the extreme richness of narrow veins. The certainty of better transportation facilities also has contributed to the better condition of things in Southern Oregon mining districts. Mines that would scarcely pay to work, particularly the copper properties of Waldo district, southern Josephine, because of the long wagon road haul, will pay handsomely when a railroad reduces the cost of carrying matte and coke. Three surveying crews, one of them a Hill, and the other a Southern Pacific outfit, are now making routes from Grant's Pass to Crescent City, by way of Waldo. That one of these companies will build a line within the next six or eight months, or at least make a good beginning in that direc tion, now seems an absolute certainty. The transportation problem for Galice district, as has already been told

in these columns, will be solved by the building of a motor highway from the Almeda mine to Leland. This road is almost completed, and the big trucks will be hauling their loads of matte and coke in a few weeks. This highway will also give transportation facilities to other developed mines of Galice and lower Rogue river districts. The mining men of Southern Oregon are "getting together." While no attempt is made to hold a congress, or perfect an association, a better feeling of harmony prevails than has ever been known. The idea of the present is not that of "wild-catting," or of booming, but of deep development and intelligent operation. The fact that the big mines of Southern Oregonthose that "made good,"-were all economically managed and intelligently operated, encourages experienced mining men to take up propositions in this district. Thus there has been | opened up in the Galice district, besides the Almeda, the Oriole, Golden Wedge, Cold Springs and Sugar Pine; in the Grave Creek district, besides the famous old Greenback, the Saint Peter's, Yellow Horn, Kramer and Vulcan; in the Waldo district, basides the Queen of Bronze, the Lyttle, Cowboy, and Tutt; in the Canyon Creek Collier creek. A full set of supplies, district, besides the Canyon Creek consolidated, the Midas and Curlew. All of these properties are in the hands of competent mining men, and are being intelligently developed and equipped. It is not "thousand dollar" ore, or even "hundred dollar" ore that men are now seeking in Southern Oregon, but the big, wide and permanent ledges whose values of from $7 to $10 a ton can be relied upon. Such ledges been completed. Stamp mills and have already been uncovered in the mines here named, and will be the thing points to a great development basis for a big and constant produclos of gold and copper. These two metals are found together in practically all the big ledges of Southern Oregon. In most of them, as has al-
