CHAMPION GOTCH ON MAT AGAIN

Title Holder to Meet Ordeman as a possible champion of the white In Chicago, Feb. 8.

WILL TAKE ON "HACK" LATER.

Humboldt Man, Who Has Been Idle For Some Time, Anxious to Try Himself Out Before He Meets "Russian Lion." Pair May Clash In March.

By TOMMY CLARK. Who was it said that Frank Gotch has retired? Didn't we tell you all along that this business was only guff? And then as good a wrestler as the Humboldt farmer is has no business to retire, especially when he is in his prime. Of course be'll wrestle Hackenschmidt, not right away, but later in the season. Gotch needs a little practice, for he has been idle for some time. He will take on a few of the American wrestlers, throw them, too, and then he will be ready for the "Russian L'on." As a starter he will take on Henry Ordeman in a finish match Feb. 8 in Chicago. The latter is one of the best mat artists in this country and will give the champion a good tryont, Canby today. A fine program has After this contest the champion will been prepared and a good attendance take on Roller, Westergard and several take on Roller, Westergard and several other grapplers, and then, around the John Coner, of Molalla, one of the latter part of March, will ome Hack's

With articles signed and the battleground settled upon, this contest will attract as much attention as the Jef- in knockouts. fries Johnson bout. The promoters know that another match between Gotch and the Russian will be the biggest wrestling event ever pulled off in this or any other country. With the boosting properly conducted the public will fill any inclosure in the country to see the two big fellows hug each other for a couple of hours. No wrestling bout in the history of the game can be compared with the coming contest, and the attraction will easily be worth $50,000.

Picking the winner of the battle will be a hard task, for Gotch and Hackenschmidt are two of the greatest wrestlers that ever lived. Ninety-nine out of every hundred men in this country firmly believe that Gotch can beat any man in the world at the catch-as-catch-can game. But once in awhile ninety-nine men out of every hundred are mistaken, and it's a good policy not to be too free with predic tions. Remember John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett and that "terrible bear." Jimmy Jeffries.

The dope we have to go by is the match between the pair three years ago in Chicago, in which Hack quit after wrestling for over two hours. The "Russian Lion" claimed that Gotch was continually fouring him and gave. as an excuse for giving up that he was not accustomed to the rough tactics that prevail in catch-as-catch-can wrestling in this country. Another thing, he underestimated Gotch.

mys so-and that should give him a better chance. But to throw Gotch will be no easy matter. No man is better versed in the wrestling art than the Humboldt farmer, and, while not isiting friends in the city Thursday, a giant in figure, he is remarkably Miss Clara Morey, of Molalla, is in strong and agile, which count for much. In everything that pertains to the science of wrestling Gotch is his master. What part Hack's mere strength may be expected to play the story of their first match sufficiently tells

> If the bout is on the level-and there is no reason for thinking that it will not be-it should result in one of the greatest struggles ever held on the mat. Still, there is no sport on the calendar in which the people can be so easily fooled as in the mat game. In fact, shady bouts generally appear better than the real article. Now, supposing Gotch wanted to fake in his bout with Hack, the champion could clean up a fortune that would leave him rich for the rest of his life.

> Gotch would be a 10 to 7 favorite in the betting. He could easily place $70,-000 on Hack to win, not in one city, of course, for the public would become suspicious, but scatter it around the country. The gamblers would all back the American. Hack would not need to be a party to the deal. Then Gotch could wrestle with the "Lion" for an hour and a half, working hard all the time, but careful not to throw him, then slip up in some hold and allow the Russian to down him.

> After losing his world's title he could travel around the country as the American champion, explaining his defeat and meeting all comers, and during his spare moments collect the money he had won. The public would be none the wiser. The writer does not for an instant question the honesty of the bout, but is just showing how a fortune could be made. Of course this does not mean that Gotch is a sure thing in the coming contest. He will have a terrible struggle in trying to gain a fall, for Hackenschmidt has never been

JAPANESE BALL TEAM COMING

University of Kelo Players to Tour

This Country Next Season. The Cornell Athletic association has received a communication from the manager of the baseball team of the University of Keio, Japan, relative to scheduling a game with the Cornell baseball team some time in May. This Japanese team is contemplating a tour of the United States next spring, planning a series of games with various American colleges from const to coast.

The Kelo team, according to the manager, is one of the strongest teams. amateur or professional, in Japan. The manager is especially anxious to make it known that this is not the same team which was beaten by the University of Chicago aggregation when the westerners visited Japan recently. The Kelo team did not meet Chicago The question of scheduling this game will be taken up by the athletic council at its next meeting.

Cy Young, Hughey Duffy, Connie Mack, Jake Beckley, Jimmy McAleer, Lave Cross, Patsy Donovan, Arthur Irwin, Billy Hamilton, Jesse Burkett, "Deacon" McGuire, Hughey Jennings and Tommy Daly, who were active as players twenty seasons ago, will be in the game again next season.

* MERKLE TELLS FOR FIRST TIME WHY HE DIDN'T TOUCH SECOND.

For the first time since that lamentable incident which lost New York the pennant in 1908 Fred Merkle, the Giants' first baseman, has given his side of the affair. Until recently he had 2 never said a word, but it is known that he lost twenty pounds and came near to an attack of nervous prostration through worry caused by the national attack on his so called "bonehended" play.

"I'll tell you the truth about that play." said Merkle, "and I don't think that I was to blame, because other ball players had been doing the same thing for twenty years or more. I was on first base and Harry McCormick was on third. When Al Bridwell shot that long single into center that won the game I started across the grass for the clubhouse. Mathewson was near me, and when Evers began shouting for the ball he noticed that something was wrong. caught me by the arm and told me to wait a minute. We walked over toward second base and Matty spoke to Emslie.

" 'How about this, Bob?' asked Matty. 'Is there any trouble with the score or the play? "'It's all right,' replied Ems-'You've got the game, I didn't see anything wrong with

"Matty then took me by the arm and we walked away to the clubhouse."

During the hearing of that famous case Merkle was not called before the commission, and up to this time he has never said a word about the incident. On account of Harry Pulliam being present at the game evidence was not considered necessary.

of Conservation of Water Power.

MISS ALICE BENNETT.

"The women of this country can do anything if they will set their minds

This is the foundation upon which Miss Alice Bennett, advocate of water power conservation, bases her hopes of preserving for the people their rights and interests in the water power sites of the country. To her mind the subject is one of the highest importance to all the people of the nation, affecting, among other matters, the cost of living and the preserva tion of the fundamental rights of citizenship. In her advocacy of her cause she unites the zeal of her Connecticut ancestors of the seventeenth century with the broadmindedness and store of information of a woman of the second decade of the twentieth century. It would be wrong to call Miss Bennett's interest in the conservation of the water power sites and the preservation of the people's rights in them her hobby, for that word would belittle, according to her ideas, the prime importance of the subject. But it is her hobby in the sense that she is devoting to it all her time and is working very hard to interest the women of the country in the matter. She is going from city to city lecturing and is devoting the rest of her time to the preparation of literature bearing on the matter. Her work is meeting with the approval of many women's organizations, and she displays with pride a letter indorsing her work sent to her by Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister, president of the National Council of Women, the central governing body of the wo men's clubs and federations of the country. Among the other organizations which have become interested in Miss Bennett's propaganda is the Woman's National Rivers and Harbors congress, an auxillary of the men's national body. The congress has 40, 000 members.

It is Miss Bennett's ambition to organize throughout the country, in cites, towns and villages, clubs or associations of women awakened to a strong realization of the importance of the subject which she is agitating. This time he will be fit—at least he Many Old Timers in Game Next Season To her mind very few other questions, and present interest. The utilization of the water powers of the country and their retention in the hands of the people are questions attracting a large and ever growing amount of attention from scientists and publicists. On the proper utilization of these water power depends, according to many authorities, the solution of important problems, such as the conservation of the coal and wood supply of the country, the use of electric power ("white coal") in household work and others. Proper use of the water power, rescued or saved from monopoly. means a saving of 75 per cent of the coal used at the present time, all within ten years, declare the scientists. In her work of interesting the American public in the matter which she has taken up with so much zeal and diligence Miss Bennett is a "free lance." That is, she works independently, seeking the co-operation of all interested organizations, but not allying herself with any one of them. "Women saved the falls of Niagara, the trees of California and the Palisades and established state forestry bureaus in the face of organized lumber interests," she declares, "and there is no reason in the world why they should not save the water power of the country." Miss Bennett has been a nurse, a settlement worker and welfare worker. She has a record of things accomplished in various lines in several cities. One of the matters in which she is especially interested and which she considers of great importance to this country is the settling and distribution here of the Italian farmers coming to our shores.

The Youngest Divorced Couple.

The youngest divorced couple in the world is to be found in the court of Abyssinia. On May 16, 1910, the Priucess Rodmanic Onosk was married to the Prince Lidj Eyassu, the beir apparent, the bride then being eight cars old and the bridegroom fourteen. Now they have been divorced. It is not a question of fault on either side, no incompatibility of temper, none of the causes which figure so frequently in our divorce division. The princess happens to be the niece of the Empress Taitu, and this lady is not popular with the regents of the country. So to prevent the empress exercising any baneful influence upon the future ruler's wife the statesmen have required the prince to divorce her.
