Sour Milk Ice Cream is His Old Age Cure.

BULGARIANS FOLLOW THE PLAN

Beda Fountain True Spring For Perpetual Juveniles, Asserts Professor Mortensen of the Hawkeye State's Agricultural College Gives Formula of Battling Bacteria to World.

Professor Mortensen of the dairy department of the lows State Agricultural college at Ames, Ia., has invented a new frozen elixir of life which he calls

When Professor Metchnikoff of the Pasteur institute at Paris published his book on "The Prolongation of Life" Professor Mortensen got an idea. Metchnikoff traced the cause of old age to the putrefactive bacteria that make their home in the intestines. Mrs. Bert Goodpasture, of Parkplace, These bacteria throw off poison which cause ill bealth, old age and finally death. The way to dislodge them is to give them a dose of their own medicine. The lactic seld bacteria which are found in sour milk produce an acid which is fatal to their poisonous relatives.

In certain districts of Bulgaria. where sour milk is a regular article of diet, the people are said to live to an old age not approached elsewhere. ive Jones, was called to Baker City But people generally don't like to drink sour milk. Miss Etta Straight, who has been Bacteria Made Palatable.

So Professor Mortensen started to work out his idea, which was to supply the lactic acid bacteria in a pala table form. At first be diluted the elixir of life with buttermilk flavored with visit with her son, Roy, who has fruit juices. Later he decided to put charge of his brother's fruit ranch at his laction and bacteria in cold storage that place. Mrs. Kelley will remain and market them in the form of lee cream rather than as a drink.

Here was the opportunity. An ice cream cone affont in a sea of soda wa ter has come to be the great national drink of the United States.

The substitution of lacto for ice cream cannot but result in a great improvement in the health of the frequenter of the soda fountain. Profesor Mortensen believes. Aside from being loaded with friendly bacteria, it contains less fat than ice cream, which makes it more digestible. Lacto contains a high amount of protein, the muscle building part of the food.

Lacto Had a Majority.

An experiment was carried on at liked by the average person. Out of 179 persons who sampled lacto 128 pronounced it very good, thirty-seven good, six fair and eight poor. Comparing it with common vanilla ice cream, 111 reported that they preferred lagto, nine considered it equal to ice cream, and fifty-uine preferred ice cream.

Lacto is made of loppered whole o skimmilk, with the addition of eggs. sugar, lemons and flavoring material It can be made in a one gallon freezer lighters. We also had two tapers. As on the back porch as easily as in the factory. The family recipe given by Professor Mortensen is as follows:

Take a bottle of good fresh milk which has not been heated and set it away in a temperature of from 68 to 70 degrees P. until it curdies. If it forms a smooth solid curd without pinholes, if the aroma is clean and pleasant and the flavor nice and creamy, it can be used as a starter for a larger amount of pasteurized whole or skimmilk.

After this second batch of milk has curdled it should have a mild clean acid flavor. The curd must be thoroughly broken up by the pouring from one dish to another until it is as thick and velvety as rich cream.

Formula of Elixir. From this "lacto milk" lacto can be made by the following formula, which is sufficient for one gallon: Two and one-half quarts lacto milk.

One and four-fifths pounds sugar. Two eggs. One-half pint cherry juice or concen-

One-third pint lemon juice

Other fruit flavors can be used in stead of cherry as desired. The yolks and whites are beaten in separate containers. Both are then added to the milk. The mixture is thoroughly stirred and strained through a fine wire gause. The fruit juices are added last. If there is any indication of the juices precipitating the casein they should not be added until the mixture has begun to freeze.

The freezer is run until it turns with difficulty, when the paddle is removed. The brine is removed and the freezer repacked with ice and salt and left for an hour or so before the contents are

According to Mr. Mackensie, the historian of the outer Hebrides, the custom of putting weakly or deformed children to death by "exposure," as Plato recommended, long prevailed on this island, and "instances have been known in comparatively modern times."

As a result of this practical provision for the survival of the fittest by the elimination of the unfit the islanders possess remarkably fine physiques. and consumption is unknown.

When I was a boy reading stories of Rome in connection with my studies the great desire of my life was to visit the Eternal City and the localities at which the incidents I read about occurred. I wished to go over the seven bills on which the city had been built; I wished to see the Forum, the home of the vestal virgins, the spot where Castor and Pollus appeared. marked now by the ruins of their temple; I wished to see the Collseum the triumphal arches, the Pantheon Above all, I desired to go down into the catacombs where the early Christians secretly deposited their dead.

The time finally came when I reached the object of my desires. I visited Rome. On the steamer crossing the Atlantic and later steaming over the Mediterranean I met Marian Chambers, and, sitting on deck moonlight nights with her. I caught from her fever-the fever of love. By the time we reached Gibraltar I was down, and during the whole voyage from there to Naples I was very ill with this irritating disease. I was cured on the homeopathic principal that like cures like. The love of the girl given in gradually increased doses put me in a normal condition.

By the time we reached Rome I was ready to enjoy the sights I had counted on seeing ever since I began to study Latin. And now I had a loved companion to visit them with me. The catacombs that had interested me most I reserved till the last. Marian and I had a fancy for slipping away from those we traveled with and going sightseeing together. One morning we took a carriage, drove out on the Appian way and stopped at the entrance of those subterranean passages I had long wished to explore.

We were in time to join a party about to descend, were each given a wax taper, and a monk in a white cowl, who was to pilot us, led us down a stone staircase at the bottom of which were the catacombs.

We followed the taper light proces sion for awhile, but finally-at the time I would not tell how it happened, but now I am an old married man I will admit that I was never happy for half an hour at a time without a kiss from my Marian, and I led her away from the others for the purpose of taking one. As soon as this object had been accomplished we started on after the others. Immediately we came to a split in the passage, and the party had gone so far that we could Ames to see just how well lacto was not tell which of the two avenues they had taken. Making choice of the left hand passage, we ran as fast as we could, only to find new splits and turns and corners, but not the party. We were lost.

> People have been lost before in these inderground burial places and have narrated their experiences. In our case there is something different from any of them. I had a box of matches in my pocket that I carried for cigar soon as I realized that we were lost I put out both the tapers, and, being in (Mrs. Turner) to the grave less than a small open space where was a Christian's skeleton in a sarcophagus, we sat down on the latter to think.

What would be the result of our thus being lost underground? We would not be missed by the party we had joined, for we knew not one of them. Parties were going through the catacombs every day, but would they happen to come our way? Besides, we might starve before we were discovered. There was nothing whatever for us to subsist on. We might try to find our way out, but there were many miles of these unbterranean passages. and we were liable to wander farther from the entrance. The result of our deliberations was to remain where we

I will pass over some twenty bours of our captivity without attempting to describe our feelings. The most hopeless part of it was that our friends did not know where we were. We passed most of the time in the dark, for I wished to save our tapers and matches for any opportunity that might occur. While sitting on the sarcophagus something ran on my foot. I scratched a match, and its fame revealed the two glistening eyes of a rat.

I at once lighted a taper, and while Marian held it I tried to catch the rat. If he would serve no other purpose we might need to eat him. I didn't have much trouble getting my hands on him. I think he knew we were lost there and was willing to help us out. Then an idea occurred to me. Scribbling a note on a letter I had in my pocket, stating that we were lost in the catacombs, I held the rat while Marian tied the note with a strip torn from her handkerchief around the little fellow's neck. Then we put him down. He gave us the most knowing look in the world and ran away.

Half an hour later I felt the rat running over my feet. I lit a taper and paw that he was without either the note or the strip by which it had been fastened to him. This gave us hope that it had been removed by a human being. Ten minutes later I heard a halloo. I replied, and after a number of calls we could see the dim light of tapers, then a party coming to search for us. They had received the message, but had not missed us when the party we had started with returned. We brought the rat out with us. He sleeps at night in a cage and by day goes where he likes.
