Any article which can be sold by advertising is, by that test, a GOOD article. YOU are eafe in buying a thing which has "stood the fire of publicity."

The maker of a widely advertised article, or commodity, is always on trial for his business life. He cannot shirk, nor cheapen his product and this is the best possible protection for the consumer.

You are SAFE in buying advertised things-it's the logic of nowadays business conditions.

King Cole, the young twirler who pitched the only game the Cubs won during the world's series, believes that he has found a way to put a new twist on the horselfde. Cole says:

"I discovered an odd freak of a curve just after the season closed. I practiced it in Bay City and found out that it might be turned into a winner. I thought that if I could perfect it it would be just the sort of delivery to baffle hitters who take a mighty swat at the ball, tike Hans Wagner and Sharwood Magee.

"I am going to work hard during the spring training trip and perfect that curve so as to have it in good working order by the time the season opens. Then

Fox and Hounds.

The boys and girls in the school at Monticello, N. Y., might have thought that they were having an object les son in the game of fox and bounds when a wild fox ran into the schoolwith two It was not really an object lesson No teacher would make so much excitement over the teaching of any one subject. The excitement was great enough at first, but as the fox and the dogs circled the room the little girls climbed up on the desks and screamed and the little boys helped the dogs chase the fox. The hunted beast finally found refuge under the teacher's desk, where he snarled at the dogs and the children and kept them at bay. He would not let any one touch him, but at last one of the boys succeeded in putting a noose over his head. The boys tried to get him out alive, but he struggled so hard that he choked to death.

In the olden days, when the science of navigation was not as well understood as now, it was the custom to carve in the bows of ships a pair of large eyes, with the notion that they would watch the dangers of the deep and avoid entastrophes. Faith in such an idea has long been dead, but the eyes are still to be seen on ships. Through them pass the anchor chains when the ship is safe in port, and thus, though useless in the days of the old fancy, they fill a good purpose now.
