

It Wouldn't Pay to Advertise A Poor Article

Nor a proposition of doubtful merit or honesty—for ad-readers, nowadays, are DISCRIMINATING. They know values—they know GENUINE things, genuine opportunities.

Any article which can be sold by advertising it, by that test, a GOOD article. YOU are safe in buying a thing which has "stood the fire of publicity."

The maker of a widely advertised article, or commodity, is always on trial for his business life. He cannot shirk, nor cheapen his product—and this is the best possible protection for the consumer.

You are SAFE in buying advertised things—it's the logic of nowadays business conditions.

Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS. "Life is not only what we make of it, but what we think of it."

And it is none the less true because it was written by a bedridden cripple—Thomas Lockhart of Wellington, Mo. This man has been utterly helpless for twenty-four years, having the use of only one finger and thumb and one eye.

But he is not a whiner. Despite the dreadful handicap Lockhart has earned his own support, paid for a nurse for nine years and purchased a little cottage home.

For many years his mother was devoted to him, but nine years ago she died, and Lockhart was left alone and helpless. What would you have done? Lockhart started to write books. And this is the way he wrote:

Lying on his back, unable either to turn or to raise his head, the paper was put where he could reach it, and with the one finger and thumb that would do his will he held the pen.

Among the things Lockhart has written is this: "I am thirty-nine years old and two-thirds of my life has been spent lying motionless as a marble statue. Life has had few joys for me. It is drawing to a close. Yet I can smile and laugh and sing and praise God for my blessings."

Say, you—You who can walk and use your arms and fingers and eyes, you who say you have no chance, you who believe the fates of your ill fortune, you—Are you not ashamed?

You who talk of failure because you have "no pull," you whose plans must forever wait because you have "no capital," you with your health and appetite—Are you not well rebuked by this brave paralytic?

He says "Life is what we think it," and he is eternally right. If out of the depths of a living grave Thomas Lockhart can laugh and sing and be thankful, where shall you appear if you go grumbling and discontented, glum and ungrateful, on your way?

THE HALL OF FAME.

EDGAR ALLAN POE—Celebrated poet and short story writer. Born Boston Jan. 19, 1800; died Baltimore Oct. 7, 1849. Son of an actor, he was adopted by John Allan of Richmond and educated in America and England.

Spent some time at West Point, but was expelled. On being disowned by his adopted father he made a precarious living with his pen, editing various periodicals, writing criticisms and turning out an occasional poem or short story, the most finished and exquisite that had yet appeared in America. "The Raven" was published in 1845 and almost immediately took rank as one of the great short poems of the world. "The Bells" and "Annabel Lee" had almost as great vogue. His remarkable short stories are still read widely. In 1847 Poe's wife died, and he was himself very ill. He never seemed to recover from the blow and two years later was picked up in the streets of Baltimore in a dying condition.

Cookery Points

Salt Fish For Lent.

The season of Lent is now with us, and there are still a certain number of people who fast during this time and invariably make a point of having salt fish on Ash Wednesday. Many people shudder at the idea of salt fish at all; but, properly treated, it is by no means to be despised. Too often, however, the necessity for sufficient soaking is not realized, with the consequence that when served, if it is eaten at all, whoever ventures on it literally feels he or she is performing a penance. First of all, having procured the salt fish, let it soak for several hours, placing it under the tap if possible and letting the water slowly run on to it. Should this, however, not be feasible, soak it in plenty of cold water, changing this fairly often and having the last water tepid. Then next it should be soaked in skim milk or milk and water for several hours, longer, soaking it in all for twenty-four hours. Having gone through this process, it should be simmered in half milk, half water, with a very little salt, and then it may be served with a variety of sauces. Often the fishmonger will claim that the fish has already been steamed. Should this be so the soaking in cold water may be omitted, but on no account should the steaming in milk and water be forgotten. Treated thus, the fish will be white and firm and most palatable.

To Use Ham.

Sliced ham is more tender if it is baked than if fried. Cut a slice three-quarters of an inch thick, put it into a small enamel pan, turn three-quarters of a cupful of milk over it, cover and bake for an hour and a quarter, basting every fifteen minutes with milk. For luncheon grind the ends of a boiled ham and mix it with a butter onion that has been chopped fine and a little minced parsley. Put the mixture into a pan with a little butter and moisten with hot water or cream. Simmer four or five minutes and then heap on slices of toast.

For curly bacon cut it very thin and half cook it in boiling water, then curl it, fasten in shape with a toothpick and broil it over the fire.

A little graded American cheese mixed with minced ham used in sandwiches is delicious if the sandwich is fried brown and served very hot.

Cold ham is tasty if it is shredded and cooked in currant jelly sauce. Put a cupful of the shredded ham into a saucepan with a level tablespoonful of butter and half a cupful of currant jelly. As soon as the jelly and butter begin to bubble add four tablespoonfuls of sherry and a seasoning of paprika. Simmer the mixture about five or six minutes and serve with toast.

Flowers For Dinner Tables.

From now until the close of the spring season there are no more attractive decorations of a simple order for the dinner or luncheon table than those of spring flowers arranged in attractive baskets. Charming baskets which are suitable for this purpose are to be had at many of the department stores and at the Japanese shops. The basket may be in any shape that is quaint or beautiful, and daffodils, cowslips, lilies of the valley and lilac branches look lovely when arranged in them. The bottom of the basket is filled with fresh damp moss and the stems of the flowers are thrust into this. If the flowers are to appear for a long time in public and there is danger of their wilting, the bottom of the basket may be fitted with a shallow pan filled with water and the flowers placed in this. The moss may then be tucked in around the stems of the flowers.

Genuine Southern Corn Bread.

To make the genuine southern corn bread it is essential to have the genuine southern cornmeal. If you can get the genuine meal, therefore (water ground, make your cake in this way: Beat two eggs very light. Add to them one pint sour milk or buttermilk and a pint of the meal. Melt a large tablespoonful of butter and add to the mixture, together with a tablespoonful of soda dissolved in a small portion of the measured out milk. Beat very hard and bake in well buttered pan in a quick oven.

Good Biscuit Recipe.

A never failing rule for biscuit calls for four cupfuls of flour, a tablespoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of salt, two rounded teaspoonsful of baking powder, a piece of butter the size of an egg and two cupfuls of milk. After sifting the flour, salt, sugar and baking powder together rub the butter through the mixture and stir in the milk. Stir the batter as little as possible, only just enough to mix it. Bake in a quick oven and serve piping hot.

Raisin Puffs.

Cream one rounding tablespoonful of butter with one-quarter of a cupful of sugar, add one beaten egg in one-half a cupful of milk and three-quarters of a cupful of seeded and chopped raisins. Add lastly one cupful of flour sifted with a level teaspoonful of baking powder. Fill small buttered molds three-quarters full of the batter and steam for forty minutes. Serve with a liquid sauce.

Will Play Ball Sunday.

The Price Bros. ball team will play at Canemah Park on Sunday, crossing bats with the Brooklyn club, of Portland. It is the opening game of the season and an effort will be made by the local boys to start things with a new scalp at their belts. Games have been scheduled up to and including Sunday, May 21. The boys promise to do some good playing this summer.

A Nice Little Feed.

The banquet to be given by Fire Co. No. 3, at the Catawpa Home Co.'s headquarters, promises to be a pleasant time for the fire laddies and their friends. It will be a sort of chair-warming for the new chief, W. A.

Long, elected to that position at the recent election. The fire boys are living with rich anticipations.

Take time to look into every project that is suddenly sprung on you. Life's greatest successes come out of the most careful consideration.

Good Form

Correct Letter Writing. A visiting card or gift received by a person in social life must be acknowledged. This is a rule so simple that it has no exceptions. And equally is it the rule that if the communication is a card or note it must be responded to in precisely the same form. Acting upon this, no woman need fear making a mistake in this branch of her social duties.

A visiting card, slight as it is, should not be ignored unless it bears the letters "P. P. O." In that instance it is an answer to courtesies received as well as an announcement of departure and therefore might be said to close communication.

A receipt of a card following an event of importance to the family requires a card in return. For example, after a birth or death or other occasions less momentous it is not uncommon for friends to post visiting cards as indicating that they are aware of the happening. Sometimes merely a word or line is written on the card, as "Condolences," "Congratulations," according to the nature of the event. The return card, which should be sent within a couple of days, may have the word "Thanks" written on it, or it may be blank except for the engraved name and address.

It is not considered good form to answer a note with a card save after a death, when a bereaved family is permitted to make little effort, and its members may spare themselves the work of writing notes.

Invitations are always to be answered in the same form in which they are received, so that if a note comes written in the first person the response also should contain the personal pronoun. More formal invitations, in which the third person is employed, require the third in return.

Incidentally a person who is unaccustomed to writing this sort of formal communication, which takes the third person, must be careful that in answering the response continues to contain the third at the end as at the beginning. More than one person has committed the error of beginning correctly with the third and ending with the first person.

A Few Table Rules.

A woman who gives much attention to diet and lives up to the best ideas in this line has the following rules neatly framed in a conspicuous place in her dining room where the family may be impressed with them:

First—Five or ten minutes before beginning to eat a meal drink a glass of cold water. This will leave the stomach before the food reaches it and will carry with it any mucus which has accumulated since last eating, thus leaving the walls of the stomach clear and ready to be activated by the newly arrived food.

Second—Never take a second cup of coffee. You will not care for a second if you moisten your food sufficiently with saliva. Take dinner coffee always with dessert or after rather than before, as it thus aids digestion.

Third—Never wash your food down with liquids, but masticate each mouthful well and it will be sufficiently moist and will promote the flow of gastric juices, thereby preparing the stomach still further for its work.

Fourth—Never eat "until too full." By a little attention to the matter you will learn when to stop and thus avoid the consequences of overeating. One mouthful too much is apt to cause disarrangement of the digestive system. This may seem like putting it rather strong, but you know that even a teaspoonful too much will cause a dish to overflow, and the same applies to the densely packed organs of the human body, where disarranged gastric fluids will produce illness.

Telephone Invitations.

When accepting an invitation over the telephone it is the part of wisdom to follow it with a written acceptance, in which the day, date and hour are repeated. Only in this way can a woman be certain that no error is made in the time, and the sense of security given is worth the effort.

Telephonic invitations will always appear to be informal and sometimes are, but a woman will have no difficulty in deciding the point if she gives heed to the hour appointed. A luncheon at half past 1 o'clock, to play bridge afterward, may be regarded as formal; dinner at any time after a quarter to 7 is also formal.

Earlier than these hours is considered to be informal.

Bridemaids Gowns.

It is customary for a bride to select the style and material of the bridesmaids' dresses, and if the girls are not well enough off to have many dresses she should assuredly be careful to choose styles that are not too pronounced, so that the dresses may be worn on other occasions. Complaints about this are not infrequent from girls who have acted as bridesmaids when they were obliged to buy dresses they could never use again on account of the combination of colors or the exaggerated mode fancies at the moment by the bride.

For the Children

A Baby Giraffe Which Was Born in America.

How many people have ever seen a baby giraffe? Very few at the best. In all there have been only four baby giraffes born in the western hemisphere; three of these were born at the Cincinnati zoological garden. The first two lived but a short time, but the third one, which was born Sept. 1, 1910, in the Cincinnati garden, is still alive and is one of the prettiest little animals that you might wish to see.

Giraffes can utter no sound—they are mute—but the two old giraffes looked on the young one with eyes as full of expression and appreciation as if they were human intelligence, and one scarcely seemed to notice that they made no sound whatever.

The picture shows the little giraffe when it was two days old. It was then five feet one inch in height and weighed about ninety pounds. It began to grow right away, so that at the age of about four months it measured six feet six inches. That certainly is a marvelous growth, and a boy or girl who would grow over a foot in four or five months would be considered a most unusual phenomenon. When we stop to think, however, that the old giraffe is almost fourteen feet high and can reach a foot or two farther by straightening out its head and neck, it is easy to see that the baby giraffe has to do some growing to catch up with its father and mother.—St. Nicholas.

Told by a Bird.

To say "A little bird told me" is a common way of getting out of telling the real way information is obtained. Little birds have, however, told important stories sometimes by means of notes fastened about their legs or necks. The birds most often employed for this purpose are pigeons, but a well known tidings was once carried by a seagull.

Over twenty years ago a large ocean steamer, Atlantis, which was between Liverpool and Calcutta, was lost. No message was ever received from her but one, and this was found some five months after she had started on her last voyage, tied about the neck of a seagull in the Indian sea. The note read: "Atlantis struck on the Harad rock. We are all lost. Father Coathe." No trace of the wreck or its crew ever came to light, nor was it known who "Father Coathe" was.

An Intelligent Pussycat.

A young lady bookkeeper in Boston has been in the habit for some time of giving the office cat a piece of meat for her lunch every day, precaution being taken to lay down a piece of paper to prevent the meat greasing the floor. The other day at lunch hour, when the young lady happened to have no meat in her basket, pussycat begged for some in her most intelligent fashion. Finding no meat coming, the cat ran to the wastebasket, dragged out a newspaper and laid it on the floor at the young lady's feet. This appeal was so touching that the young lady went out and bought meat for the intelligent animal.

A Storehouse.

In the old birds' nests that are placed near the ground in shrubs and small trees close to hawthorn bushes and bitter-sweet vines in the country you will often find a handful of hazelnut or bitter-sweet berries. They were put there by the white footed mice and the meadow mice that visit these storehouses regularly. A white footed mouse will often cover a bird's nest with fine dried grass and inner bark and make a nest for itself.

Harry and the Searchlight.

Harry, a six-year-old, was greatly excited over his first trip on a steamboat, and his father allowed him to stay on deck with him for awhile in the evening. His attention was at once directed to the light of the searchlight moving to and fro. Excitedly he grasped his father's hand and said: "Daddy, look! There must be a happy comet near here. See how he wags his tail."

Strange Sights.

Tell me, did you ever see monkeys climb a banana tree? To Banian trees, perhaps you know. On the nursery floor can grow. Troops of monkeys half the day in the great wide branches play. Frolic and make friends with you. If your aunty tells them to!

I've had measles, so, you see.

Aunty comes and plays with me. Aunty makes a lion roar. Right behind the nursery door. Makes an elephant poke his head through the window near my bed. Makes the nursery somehow look like a lovely picture book.—Francis Banham in Youth's Companion.
