NEW SCHOOL IS VOTED

WILL BE HANDSOME TWO-ROOM FRAME AND COST ABOUT $5000 TO $6000.

The school patrons of Concord school district held a special meeting Saturday evening to consider the question of the erection of a modern school building. After a thorough discussion of the question, in which County School Superintendent Gary participated as an invited guest, a vote was taken and the hallot showed 20 for and only 2 against.

The purpose is to build a handsome, two-room building, at a cost of $5000 or $6000, which will be modern in all particulars. This action is only another proof of the fact that Concord is a progressive community, and deter-mined to have the best there is to aid mother burned ber face ironing their the young people in securing a good old shoulders and a worn look upon the failed fare. She had been little less than a humble rug upon which her daughters had put their feet.

And, sorrow's crown of sorrows-The old mother knew that mostly it had been her own fault.

It is easy to fill the outlines-when the girls heard mother get up they dainty shirt waists they wept shallow tears over the fate of some beroine of Mother calloused her hands with broom and mop stick; daughters manicured their hands and cultivated their complexions.

In short-

The girls were taught by their mother from the first that they must have the best of everything, while mother would get along with the remnants.

Misguided mother. Having a totally wrong conception about the need of "accomplishments" for girls in order to give her daughters "a chance," she had made of herself a common drudge.

Cruel doughters? Not necessarily. Their selfishness was the result of their training. Mother had always done things for them, and they thought nothing about it. coffee warm, eaten the scraps and

And the pity of it! There in plain view on mother's face were the erosive lines of care, deep trail marks of weariness, worn by the burdens she had borne for them.

And-Some day those daughters will took down into a coffin at a faded little old woman with care etched face and poor knotted hands folded over a tired breast. -And, though through tears of remorse they shall look at the flower wreaths that speak of "Mother" and "At Rest"-

PROGRAM ISSUED AND PROMISES MADE ARE FOR A BIG SHOW

M. J. Lazelle, secretary for the Booster Day and Horse Show commit tee, has just issued a neat program for that occasion. It contains all the in-formation needed concerning the entry of horses and will be sent on application. The classes of animals are specified and the premiums that will be given in each class. In addition are the rules to govern the entries and the granting of premiums.

Booster Day comes on Saturday, April 22. That's the day that all the lads and lassies should lay aside their labors and come to Oregon City to see the sights and enjoy the pleasures provided for the day. The Carnival people will erect their tents on Thursday and will stayen the city for three days but they promise to be at their best on the last day—Saturday, April appointed; the conditions are very different from those of class work, and I should probably be much ashamed of the sample of my teaching if I were there to hear; but if you wish to be helpful don't criticise or discourage try to find some thing to praise if it's only one words that was said nicely If you will do this once a week I think you will soon notice a marked improvement in the child's work. If you don't, come to me and I can prob ably tell you that I have seen a growth in power and interest. If there has been no improvement, then there is something wrong somewhere and you and I must try to find a remedy.

There is still another way in which the parent's encouragement may almost literally put a new heart into the child. A recent magazine contained the sentence, "It will be well for children when their parents can learn to say, not, "What do you think of the teacher?" but "What does the teacher think of you?" The boy or girl's school work and life during school years is many times more profitable if they are on pleasant terms with their teacher. Not one teacher in twenty has any wish to be cross or unreasonable with her pupils. Almost always her chief aim is to do what is best for her school and individual pupils and she grieves over any unpleasantness just as much as you grieve when you find it necessary to be stern with your child.

If you say to your boy and girl, What does your teacher think of you? It is your business to see that she thinks well of you," they are apt to go about that business with a very happy result to all concerned. Then you have encouraged your son in an important step toward becoming a citizen for one who can obey the laws of a school can better obey the laws of a nation and one who has learned to control himself has learned the first great lesson toward being the master of others

Do not be afraid then of giving your child too much encouragement. Try praising instead of criticising. Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch raised her children on compliments instead of switches. I am afraid I should not entirely agree with that; but I do believe that if flowers are encouraged enough they will finally choke weeds out. And while I should be tempted to jerk the naughty habits, which are like weeds in a flower gar-den, out by the roots. I think that after the good in our children has been nourished and cultivated by a proper amount of praise and encouragement, we will find very little use for the

Perhaps you say, "But I will make my child egotistical and self confident by constant praise." If you are conscientious and sincere you need have no fear of that. Even a tiny child knows when it does a thing well and hungers for the smile and loving "Well done" that should follow his earnest Even if there comes a little too much self-confidence do you not know how quickly this stern world will remove it when your little one goes out from under your protecting wing? And when there come discouragements in the battles of life how gratefully your children will look back to and be strengthened by the words of en-couragement you have given them in their childhood.

It is your great privilege and I believe it is your sacred duty to encour-age the children for whose end you are responsible to do all things well, live nobly and grow each day stronger and

There will come the full recompense for all you have faithfully said and done when in the evening of life the golden light of Heaven shines down through the gathering mists of death and there come the sweet words, "Well done. Enter thou into thy rest."
