The elopement of a Los Angeles man who is 92 years old shows that his heirs must have been careless.
The common drinking cup is now being assailed in Chicago. They tried one on a guinea pig the other day and the pig died of diphtheria.
In his artless Japanese way the Mikado must be wondering whether Hobson does his alarming for fun or whether he gets a regular salary.
President Taft's new secretary is attending strictly to business, but he can't tell at what instant some Wall street bank may need a president.
An American actress has become the wife of an Egyptian Prince, and will have some justification for it if she wishes to wear a harem skirt.
George Gould shows that he has inherited more than his father's money, as some of those who have been busy retiring him have just found out.
J. Pierpont Morgan is said to have been fleeced in the purchase of a bogus work of art. All of which goes to show that all the financiers do not hold forth in Wall street.
A New York lunatic has been paroled from Bloomingdale to make a trip to Europe, after giving bond that he would come back. But why not have the bond to insure that he would not?

Business is so dull on the stock exchanges and boards of trade that some of the brokers are beginning to wonder what they will be able to do for ice during the coming summer. Is it possible the "suckers" are at last getting wise?

The manager of the Philadelphia Athletics explains that his team has been losing games because there are too many bridegrooms in the organization. If it is to be shown that matrimony interferes with baseball it will be fatal to matrimony.

The coffee boycott is on. More tea and cocoa is being imported this year than ever, and coffee is falling off. Perhaps that coffee trust will discover that lots of people have found hot water just as good and a whole lot cheaper. It's all in getting used to it.

Mexican Insurgents Lack the Smart Appearance of Regulars

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

THERE is little of the soldierly appearance in the insurgents who are causing all the trouble in Mexico. Like Kipling's Fuzzy Wuzzy, the insurgent is "not much to look at," but he seems to have the makings of "a fast rate fightin' man"—that is, he can do the sort of fighting that is most effective under the circumstances. He does not often engage in a pitched battle, but he hides in the hills and bushes and annoys the regular troops sent to subdue him. The center picture above shows General Blanco and his staff. General Blanco is seen standing on the step of the shack shown in the picture. He is wearing the large straw sombrero typical of Mexico. His staff is composed of a nondescript lot of men, including cowboys, former United States soldiers and Mexicans. Their uniforms consist of the clothing they were wearing before they took up arms or of such remnants as they have been able to pick up during the campaign. As a contrast to these troops the pictures of United States regulars are interesting. One of the pictures shows members of the Twenty-eighth Infantry preparing their beds for a night's rest after a hard day at drilling. The other picture shows the Twenty-second regiment on its way to camp and gives an idea of the smart appearance of Uncle Sam's men in khaki.

PRICES ADVANCE
IN ALL MARKETS

WESTERN WOOL CLIP MOVING.
MOHAIR MARKET STEADY
AGAIN IS FIRM.

A Good Demand in Oregon City for
All Kinds of Farm Produce
At Top Prices—Live
Stock Wanted.

Slightly higher in all lines and holding firm is the situation in the local markets. Produce is bringing good prices, hogs are more than good and all lines are at the height of the spring stringency.
In commenting on the wool market the Oregonian says:
The new wool clip is beginning to move in the West, but in a very slow way. There has been very little trading yet in Oregon, but in other Western states a few million pounds have been taken by Eastern buyers.
The mohair market is of interest to many in Clackamas County. The situation in the mohair market has shown little change in the past week, so far as demand is concerned. Prices are advancing as result of advance in price of the new clip in West.
All departments of grain market are firm. The condition of the mill feed market is one of extreme firmness. Northwestern stocks are light and the California demand would soon clean them up, if holders were willing to let go.

It Wouldn't Pay to Advertise
A Poor Article
Nor a proposition of doubtful merit or honesty—for ad-vertisers nowadays, are DISCRIMINATING. They know values—they know GENUINE things, genuine opportunities.

Any article which can be sold by advertising is, by that fact, a GOOD article. YOU are safe in buying a thing which has passed the fire of publicity.

The maker of a widely advertised article, or commodity, is always on trial for his business life. He cannot shirk, nor cheapen his product—and this is the best possible protection for the consumer.

You are SAFE in buying advertised things—it's the logic of nowadays business conditions.
