CONCESSIONS ANGER MADERO'S MEN

Colonel of Fourth United States
Cavalry Protests to Both
Armies Against Firing a
Across Border.

EL PASO, Tex., May 8.—General Madero's army made a fierce attack on Juarez, as a result of concessions made to the Federal Government. The attack, however, ended in a careful retreat of the insurgents under cover of darkness after a day of tortuous fighting.

The 150 rebels who opened fire on the federalists not only captured some of the outposts, but carried the fighting into Juarez.

The casualties of the rebels and federalists are not known, but five persons on the American side of the line were killed and 12 wounded.

Colonel Steever, of the Fourth United States Cavalry, protested to both armies against the fire into American territory. He sent two messengers with his protests. One man bore a flag of truce and another an American flag. His protest to Madero read:

"In the name of the President I hereby protest against the men under your command handling their arms in such a way that bullets fall into United States territory, as is happening today."

Nearly 1000 American troops were massed on the border, keeping the crowds back and ready to respond to any orders from Washington.

ELEPHANT UPSETS CAGE; CUB KILLED

BABY LION, SEPARATED FROM MOTHER, DEVoured BY LITTLE NEIGHBORS.

ACCIDENT BENDS HEAVY IRON BARS

Young Beast Falls Through Opening And is Badly Mangled When Found—Was Pet of Show.

A tragedy marked the arrival of the Al G. Barnes Wild Animal Circus in Oregon City Sunday night. It was only a baby lion that was killed, but it was the pet of Mr. Barnes and his legion of employees. The little animal was devoured by another cub only a few weeks older than its victim, and "Ruth," one of the performing elephants was indirectly the cause. Every person connected with the circus was affected by the death of the little animal.

The baby lion that was killed was born three weeks ago. "Nelle," its mother, is a fierce beast, and Mr. Barnes, fearing she would kill the cubs there were three of them—had them removed from the cage. At Medford he bought a mother of a litter of puppies and she became the foster mother of the little lions. She and her adopted brood were placed in a cage divided in the center by iron bars, in the other half of which were "Juliet" and her family of little ones.

When the wagon-cage was taken off the train here it became stalled at the railroad track and "Ruth," who is relied upon in an emergency of that kind, was put to work. The big beast put her trunk to a hind wheel as is her custom, but instead of pushing the wagon forward, turned it over. It was finally righted, but when opened on the show grounds one of "Nelle's" little stolen cubs was found dead in "Juliet's" half of the cage. The poor little animal had almost been devoured by its young neighbors.

It was found that two of the bars in the petition had been bent when the cage turned over, and through this the baby lion had fallen.
