

Millinery Clearance Sale

To clear our Millinery Department we are offering a beautiful and stylish assortment of Hats and Flowers below cost.

JOHN ADAMS

"The Peoples Store"

At the Portland Theaters

LAST CAR LEAVES FOR OREGON CITY AT MIDNIGHT

"THE LILY" THIS WEEK.

Nance O'Neil and Charles Cartwright at The Heilig Theatre. Monday night at the Heilig Theatre "The Lily" will greet the Rose, and combine in giving a festival to a festival that has assumed not only state, but national prominence.

Monday night at the Heilig Theatre "The Lily" will greet the Rose, and combine in giving a festival to a festival that has assumed not only state, but national prominence.

The theme of the drama is a veritable revolt against the established customs and conventional ethics of continental Europe, whereby the daughter is subordinated to the aggrandizement of the son, and the law of parent domination rules all other laws of personal freedom by subjecting the child to the whims, caprices or servitude of the parent.

The illusion of the "fourth wall" has been removed from a typical aristocratic French home and environment, to allow an audience to see its life without the knowledge of those who live in it.

POPULAR LYRIC COMPANY.

Bill for the Coming Week to be "The Policemans' Ball."

There will be much doings at the Bungalow for the coming week, starting Sunday matinee, when the ever-favorite Lyric Musical Comedy Company will offer that howling farce entitled "The Policemans' Ball," for the edification and merriment of the numerous patrons. It tells a graphic story of what happened to two energetic Dutchmen—one tall and lean, and the other short and fat—everybody knows them, for they are none other than Willie West and Frank Vack in ordinary life.

The theme of the drama is a veritable revolt against the established customs and conventional ethics of continental Europe, whereby the daughter is subordinated to the aggrandizement of the son, and the law of parent domination rules all other laws of personal freedom by subjecting the child to the whims, caprices or servitude of the parent.

The illusion of the "fourth wall" has been removed from a typical aristocratic French home and environment, to allow an audience to see its life without the knowledge of those who live in it.

The theme of the drama is a veritable revolt against the established customs and conventional ethics of continental Europe, whereby the daughter is subordinated to the aggrandizement of the son, and the law of parent domination rules all other laws of personal freedom by subjecting the child to the whims, caprices or servitude of the parent.

The illusion of the "fourth wall" has been removed from a typical aristocratic French home and environment, to allow an audience to see its life without the knowledge of those who live in it.

DAVID BELASCO PRESENTS "THE LILY" "The Lily" Will be the Rose Festival Attraction at The Heilig Theatre for Six Nights. Beginning Monday, June 5. Special Price Matinee Wednesday and Saturday.

will save her from the others, she will go with him. That is the beginning, and it is one of the most thrilling acts ever written in a play. After disposing of his two companions, Ghent holds her to her promise and forces her to go with him to his claim in the mountains. From this time on, however, he is a changed man, and does everything in his power to atone for his cruel act.

QUAINT EMBROIDERIES.

Evening gown with cross stitch.

Most of our garments are revived, whether it is in the cut which harks back to the time of the first empire or in fabrics and decoration which are of all periods. Quaint indeed are some of the embroideries in cross stitch and French knots applied in quaint angular designs that recall the old patterns that our great-grandmothers' samplers depict.

Bakery Is Enlarged. The Kelly building occupied by the Schrader bakery on Main street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, has been enlarged to accommodate the growing business.

For the Children

Grand Duke Alexis in a Grenadier's Uniform.

Photo by American Press Association.

The above picture of the Grand Duke Alexis, heir to the Russian throne, was taken by his father, the czar. It shows the czar's son marching out as an officer of the Thirtieth Russian grenadiers. As he appears to be a member of several Russian regiments and sometimes dons the uniform of the hussars or perhaps appears as a private in the apparel of a private in the Redoubt infantry.

The Cedar Waxwing. The cedar waxwing is one of the most beautiful of our birds, with its smart spring suit of brownish to greenish gray. Never was a bird nester in its appearance than the cedar waxwing, for each feather is kept carefully in place, and the trim gray wings are always nicely folded.

RELICS ADDED TO COLLECTION. George Young Purchases Large Stock of Indian Goods. George Young, who conducts a second-hand and curio store in the Willamette building, has purchased another lot of Indian goods, including baskets, beaded work, bottles with beaded covering, belts, shells, strings of beads, etc.

To keep moles from a bed, sink a clothesline wire netting a foot wide into the soil around, allowing it to extend about two inches above the surface. If you have no netting, use boards. Either will prevent the entrance of moles into the bed.

Mr. Young recently became a member of the "Prehistoric Relic Hunters' Union," and is a subscriber for several magazines which give information concerning Indian relics.

Horses with good dispositions are always safer and more valuable. Never breed a crazy-headed mare.

Violets on the Left Shoulder

By F. A. MITCHELL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

In New England are two colleges in close proximity to one young man are educated, in the other young girls.

One day Edwin Langdon, a senior in the man's college, was strolling on a road not far from the women's institution when he saw a black spot above him. He watched it sink gradually till it appeared as a paper balloon rocking in the air and fell not a hundred yards from him.

"I contain a secret," "Yes," said Langdon to himself, "and judging by your handwriting the secret is not to be kept. Some undergraduate of the women's college has sent you off for the purpose of telling her secret."

The student carefully examined the balloon in every part, but the secret was not found. Thinking it might lie under the pasted seams, he took it to his room and moistened and opened them. He was not rewarded for his pains.

"I have it," he exclaimed suddenly. "Some girl has written the secret with a fluid that requires a chemical agent to bring it out. I'll take it to the laboratory and apply tests." He did so and succeeded. By soaking the paper successively in several different acids he at last found one that brought out letters containing a message.

"You are warm, but you haven't got me yet. If you do a kiss— The writing stopped abruptly. "Oh!" said Langdon inwardly. "So I'm warm, am I? That means that I'm on the right track. And a kiss is to be my reward if I get your secret. Only you didn't like to call kissing you a reward. Any man who wouldn't under such circumstances exercise all his wits to reach the goal is no man at all."

Ned Langdon tried all the chemical agents he could think of to bring out another message, but they failed. He puzzled over the matter for a week, then temporarily gave it up—that is, as to investigation. He continued to think about it pretty much all the time.

One evening he was holding the balloon close to a gas jet examining the paper with a magnifying glass, turning successively different parts to the jet, when on the paper, very near the flame, out came brown letters. They were too faint to read, but Langdon knew he had got the secret—that is, if there was no other of the problem to be solved. Heat was the element required to bring out the writing. Holding the paper very close to the burning gas, a message in deep brown letters appeared:

Junior prom: Violets on left shoulder. "Well, upon my word!" exclaimed Ned. "That's a round about way of making the acquaintance of a stranger. And to think that I didn't get on to the best explanation. That message was probably written in common lemon juice. But the 'junior prom' comes off next week. In four days more I would have been late."

That ended Langdon's studies till the "junior prom" had taken place. He had no thought but for the girl who had sent the paper balloon, so she would be known at the function by violets on her left shoulder.

And what must have been the feelings of that girl as the evening in question approached? There were few chances of the balloon falling into the hands of one she would care to meet. And if it did, would he have the ingenuity to extract the secret?

"It's bother that girl," mused Langdon, "by pretending not to recognize the token."

He entered the hall late purposely and stood in the background till he saw a girl pass with a bunch of violets on her shoulder. She was as pretty as a peach. He was enraptured.

Langdon showed himself in the company of different girls for half an hour, then secured an introduction to the girl of the secret, pretending not to notice her violets. He made himself agreeable, however, indeed, paid her marked attention. After having been with her for some time he gallantly asked for a souvenir, looking wistfully at the violets. The girl did not take the hint.

There was a gallery at one end of the hall, used during religious services for the choir. Langdon invited the girl to go up there with him. She accepted, and they sat back where they would not be seen. Beneath them was that mingling of voices common at social gatherings resembling the running of waters.

Suddenly every voice stopped at the sound of a muffled shriek. Fortunately some has no direction for the ear. "Some girl has been kissed," remarked numerous undergraduates. The professor looked shocked.

The hero and heroine of this story have long been married, and their sons and daughters are now fitting for college. The mother dreads to send her daughters where she cannot overlook them. When she talks this way her husband replies:

"Will you kindly tell me, my dear, what avail it is to watch a girl? They say that 'love laughs at locksmiths,' but I once knew a girl who got a husband by sending up a paper balloon with a secret in it so concealed that—" "Oh, heavens! Shall I never hear the last of that trick?"

Are You a Subscriber To the New DAILY?

The Morning Enterprise

Will You Help Us Boost Your Own Interests?

By carrier, 1 year $3.00 By mail, 1 year 2.00

Send in Your Name and Remittance

PLEASE NOTICE.

To introduce The Morning Enterprise into a large majority of the homes in Oregon City and Clackamas county the management has decided to make a special price for the daily issue, for a short time only, where the subscriber pays a year in advance. By carrier, paid a year in advance, $3.00. By mail, paid a year in advance, $2.00. People who gave our canvasser a trial subscription for one or more months, at ten cents a week, can have the daily delivered for a year for $3.00 by paying a year in advance. People who gave our canvasser a trial subscription, by mail, for four months at a dollar, may have the paper for a year for $2.00, if paid a year in advance. Subscribers to the Weekly Enterprise may change their subscriptions to the daily, receiving credit for half time on the daily that the weekly is paid in advance. When they choose to add cash to the advance payment equal to a full year's advance payment they may take advantage of the $2 rate. We make this special price so that people who have paid in advance on some other daily and wish to take the Morning Enterprise, may do so without too great expense.

CRUELTY IS WIFE'S CHARGE.

Beatrice M. Ivey, Suing, Declares Husband Choked Her. Beatrice Mary Ivey has filed a suit for divorce against Charles W. Ivey in whom she was married at Centerville, Mont., on January 14, 1904. He is accused of being cruel by his wife. She says his cruelties began at Glasgow, Utah, about September 3, 1909, and she was compelled to leave him. She further asserts that he is a gambler, and is unable to support herself and the children properly. On one occasion he came home in a drunken condition, she asserts, and struck, choked and threw her down. Mrs. Ivey asks for the custody of the two children, Wesley, aged six years, and Gertrude, aged five years. She is represented by George L. Martin, of Portland.

N. R. LANG TO GO ON WAYS.

O. W. R. & N. Company Craft to Carry Paper Mill Freight. The big steamer N. R. Lang, of the Willamette Pulp & Paper Company, will go on the ways at Portland for repairs Tuesday. It will be out of commission for about a month. Meanwhile the freight of the company will be carried by a steamer furnished by the O. W. R. & N. Company. Fred Hegdale, for many years first officer of the steamer N. R. Lang, is captain of the O. W. R. & N. steamer that will handle the freight.

A few trees in the pasture add greatly to the comfort of the sheep these days. If you can't have them, set up a few posts and cover a bit of ground over for a shed. Diseases get a fast hold of many a flock of sheep through foul drinking water. Never give stagnant water if you can help it.

Read the Morning Enterprise.

Eilers Music House. The Nation's Largest Dealers. Headquarters for all makes of Talking Machines. The Officers and Directors of Eilers Music House announce the Formal Opening Days of their New Establishment on Saturday, June 3rd, Monday, June 5th, Tuesday, June 6th, and Wednesday, June 7th, in the new Eilers Building, 7th and Alder, in the City of Portland, Oregon. Every reader of The Enterprise is cordially invited to attend. Souvenirs for boys and girls who are accompanied by their elders. No goods sold Saturday after 2 P. M. EILERS MUSIC HOUSE

Are You a Subscriber to the New Daily? Will You Help Boost your own Interests? If The Morning Enterprise is to be as successful as the interests of Oregon City demand it must needs have the support of all. The new daily has a big work before it in boosting Oregon City and Clackamas County. Your support means more strength for the work. For a limited time the Morning Enterprise will be sold to paid in advance subscribers as follows: By Carrier, 1 year, $3.00 By Mail, 1 year, 2.00 Send in your name and remittance.