JONAH AND DANIEL

When Albert Cliff asked Anna Prim to marry him he said that she did not believe the whole swallowed Jonah. During their courtship he had heard her say so twenty different times.

"Well, what are lions made for?" the husband would query in reply. "Made to eat folks up? Always hungry? Always after a good thing? If Daniel had been cast among them he would have been dog's meat in ten seconds. How you can believe such nonsense is beyond me."

"But you can't keep on this way, you know." "Of course not. I shall have to leave him."

"Yes, I think so," replied the wife. "Yes, he's got to give up me or Jonah. When can you come?"

"You bet I do." "And you don't believe in Daniel and the lions' den?" "You bet I don't!"

"Well, your wife has decided not to speak to you again until you do." "Then I won't speak to her."

"That's what I am here for. All talking will be done through me. I shall not favor either you or your wife, but stand neutral."

How that old woman did stuff herself at table! How she did get up little lunches! She ordered whatever she chose from the grocery, and while his band and wife raged about it they couldn't say anything.
