HOW M'FARLAND BECAME BOXER

Chicago Lightweight Says Blow on Proboscis Started Him Off.

FIRST BATTLE IN BOILER SHOP

After Receiving Sting on Nose Packy Sailed into His Opponent and Made Him Quit—Received $250 For His First Professional Fight.

"When that big fellow in the boiler shop yards in Chicago shot me last night with his nose something stung me and something told me right then that I was a prizefighter."

That's the way Packy McFarland says he started in the slam bang game.

"I love into that negro," says Packy, "and smashed my right and left hands into his face so fast that he finally fell flat on his back, while the boiler makers who had gathered around began to yell. The negro's name was Fox—got up and come back at me. We both had on gloves. The men had seen to that. Well, when his black face showed up again, I cracked him four times on that same nose. This time he went down for good in stead of coming back at me. Fox crawled over to one side and began trying to take off his gloves. Now, right here is where Packy claims the original story got its start.

"You ain't quittin', are you?" said one of the boilermakers in derision. "Get back in there and fight."

"Naw, str—," muttered Fox through his swollen lips. "I ain't gwine fight no more. I tells you all right now dat I ain't gwine fight no man what don't scatter his blows."

Packy swears that it was that fight with the negro boy in the boiler shop that made him a professional pugilist. He found out that it didn't pay to scatter his blows.

It was just five years ago that a little fellow called Packy by his desk mates slipped away from school and went to work in a boiler shop in Chicago as an apprentice. He received as salary the meager sum of $10 a week.

"They kept me busy," says the little fighter, "chasing around the place after left handed monkey wrenches and that sort of thing for two weeks, and then I was promoted until I was allowed to hold the hot iron while a big fellow bent it with a hammer and stung me with the sparks. Sometimes they would let me use the hammer, but I never was much of a hammer thrower, and I used to spend a lot of my time toying with a set of boxing gloves that were kept around the place.

"Fox, the colored boy, allowed one day as how he could give me a trim, and when the whistle blew I allowed he couldn't, and we went into the back yard to have it out."

"Packy immediately thereafter conceived the idea that he was destined to be a hero of the ring, threw up his job and went in search of big money."

"You know I had to get home early every night," he confided, "and tell my mother that I was still working. This went along pretty good until the time came to come in with the money, and I wasn't there. The fighting game wasn't declaring any large dividends, and I had to beat it to my aunt's house to keep my mother from knowing that I was not working."

"After hanging around the gymnasium for another month I finally got signed up for a preliminary fight with Johnny West. I liked him just as I did the negro, but even then the money wasn't coming any too strong. I got $250 for the fight, and my manager took $150 of it, and he had a regular job too."

QUIZ TOO DIFFICULT, TEACHERS DECLARE

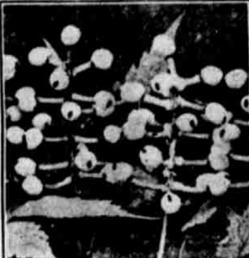

EIGHTY-FOUR TAKE EXAMINATION FOR PLACES IN THIS COUNTY.

Complaint has been made again against the State Department of Education for its difficult examination papers. This time it is not the pupils who are complaining, but the teachers themselves. The examination of teachers for the Clackamas County schools began Wednesday in the county courthouse under the supervision of Superintendent Gary. Several of the teachers, after the ordeal of the day, declared that the questions were unusually difficult, and it was intimated that there was no reason for it.

Eighty-four, of whom fourteen are men, are taking the examination, which will continue today, tomorrow and Saturday. It is one of the largest classes ever examined in this county, and several of the members are well known throughout the state.

For the Children

Dolls' Eyes That Grow in the Woods.

In the spring woods we seldom observe the short, fuzzy clusters of the white bell-shaped flowers, but in the autumn woods their fruit, oval, white, poisonous berries, with a dark purple spot at the end are very noticeable. They bear a remarkable resemblance to dolls' eyes, hence their name.

Children should be warned not to pick or eat these berries, which are very poisonous. They are found in the woods and fields, and are very common in the autumn.
