GEORGE IS CROWNED

HIS MAJESTY IS NERVOUS BUT QUEEN IS NOT AFFECTED.

LONDON, June 22.-Before the as sembled nobility of his realm and the representatives of foreign nations all over the world, King George V. of England was today crowned at 12:37 o'clock in Westminster Abbey.

It was just 10:52 o'clock when King George and weeen mary, in the state coach, reached Westminster Abbey. From the moment of their entrance into the ancient structure, King George was manifestly uneasy and was bathed in a nervous perspiration Queen Mary, on the other hand, was apparently cool as could be and certainly looked much more regal with her than did her husband.

During the actual coronation the Archbishop of Canterbury displayed little emotion. His hands trembled somewhat as he placed the crown on George's head, but otherwise the aged prelate got through the ordeal easily. At the ceremony Lord Dashley carried he train of King George's robe and Lord Revelstoke bore the crown. Prince of Wales were the robes of the Order of the Garter and the younger princes were braw in plaid and

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22 .- (Spec ial).—The Beavers corldn't hit Ables and of course they lost. The score was 6 to 1. Ables was the whole show. Arrayed in a red undershirt, the giant southpaw flung rings around the Beavers. Up until the ninth inning not a visitor had reached third base and only two had proceeded as far as second. It looked for all the world as if he would come through with a shutout to his credit, but in the ninth Buddy Ryan, that ever-dangerous run-ner, poled one out of the lot via the right field fence and the Beavers were saved from total disgrace.
