ringing noises in your ears go to Huntley Bros. today and get a HYOMEI outfit and drive out catarrh.
To cure catarrh HYOMEI should be breathed through the Hyomei inhaler for a few minutes, four or five times a day. Just pour a few drops into the hard rubber inhaler and breathe it. It kills the germs; soothes the irritation; heals the inflammation; stops hawking, spitting and snuffling.
HYOMEI keeps the throat free from mucus and prevents crusts in nose.
The complete HYOMEI outfit which includes the little indestructible hard rubber inhaler, a bottle of HYOMEI and simple instructions for use, costs $1.00.

For the Children

When the royal children of Spain go abroad they are usually accompanied by a squad of cavalry, ostensibly to guard against possible dangers, but really as an escort befitting their exalted rank. Young folks in this country would doubtless enjoy the sight of gaily uniformed soldiers galloping beside their carriage, but the only danger would be a possible runaway of the horses. So, too, in the case of the royal Spanish babies. They have nothing to fear in the way of violence except what might result from such an accident.

In the picture are portrayed three children of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, who is an Englishwoman. On the right is Prince Alfonso, heir to the throne of Spain, now four years old. Next to him is Prince Jaime, not quite three. In the nurse's arms is Princess Beatrice, who was born July 21, 1906.

Birds That Build on the Ground. The magnificent golden eagle has its nest of sticks and rushes on the ground. The primitive ostrich simply scratches out a hole in the sand, several feet in one nest.

Sand martins build their homes on a sand cliff, boring holes to a distance of three or more feet. Meadow larks build their structures of dried grasses, which are likely to be hidden in clover.

The titlark's grassy, moss lined nest is placed flat upon the ground away up in chilly Labrador. The bank swallow bores for its home in the sandy bank of a river. Lapland snowbirds simply depress their nests in a bed of moss upon the ground.

The Savannah bunting only slightly hollows out its pasture nest, a mere suggestion of a cup. Swamp sparrows often select a home amid the roots of upturned trees quite surrounded by water. The vesper sparrow has a nest of neatly woven grasses quite flat on the ground.

The thrasher or brown thrush builds on the ground unless cats drive her to selecting the bushes. Kingfishers build on banks, tunneling in several feet, like several other members of birddom.

John Weber, the versatile clerk of Huntley's book department, will join a party this morning that will spend the day in search of the toothsome crawfish.

ARE YOU DEAF?

Catarrh is probably the cause. Get Rid of the Cause.

If you have catarrh and have constant ringing noises in your ears look into the matter at once.

It's a pretty sure sign that catarrh is spreading and is making its way through the Eustachian tubes that lead from the nose to the ears.

When catarrh gets to the ears partial deafness follows. If you have

GOOD BASEBALL PILOTS ARE VERY SCARCE.

Why can't a baseball club get a winning manager? Right under your nose is the answer: Why don't scouts find star players?

The reply is that they're both too scarce.

Mr. Somers, president of the Cleveland club, has set himself the task of getting for the Naps a "manager who will be a fixture like Clarke, Chance, McGraw, Mack or Jennings."

But Mr. Somers ought by this time to realize that Macks, McGraws, Chances and the like do not grow on lilac bushes any more than star players can be picked off strawberry plants.

Cleveland has had several managers in its time as an American league club—McAleer, Armour, Lajoie and McGuire. And then look at the kaleidoscopic history of the Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Washington, Boston and other team managements. Read there why first class managers cannot be had.

They are too rare.

JOHNSON'S SPEED MISSING.

Famous Pitcher of Washington is Not Showing Up Well.

Walter Johnson of the Washingtons is nothing like the pitcher he was last year. He neither looks nor pitches as he did during the campaign of 1910, nor is he apt to until he recovers his vitality. His recent sickness has left him weak, and he shows it in his work.

That terrific speed which made Johnson a great pitcher is not apparent this season. His work is only ordinary these days, and he is being hit harder than he ever was during the former three seasons he has been a member of the Washington team.

He may show a flash now and then, but that consistent effectiveness which made him famous is lacking, and it might be good policy to allow him several weeks' rest.

The work that Johnson is now doing is forced, and a pitcher who forces himself is always in danger of injuring his arm, and it is against such a calamity that McAleer should guard himself and his club.

NERVES VERSUS NERVE.

American Coach Likes the Athlete With Imagination.

One of the best football and baseball coaches in the country recently stated that he would rather have his men nervous than cold.

"The combination," said he, "is too much for most men, but nervousness in itself is not a drawback to my mind. I like athletes with imagination and temperament. It is their imagination that gives them stage fright, but it is also their imagination that ultimately leads them to do almost the impossible when the great test comes. It is of especial value in games in which the men come into physical contact, like football, baseball, basketball and lacrosse. The first contact usually settles the stage fright unless the man is hopeless, and after that he has his 'nerve,' not his nerves, to fall back upon."

CHINAMAN GETS BIG HONOR.

Mongolian Athlete Given Place on All American Soccer Team.

Yale's great Chinese player, Tann, has been selected as left back in the All American soccer football team, which has been selected by the Intercollegiate league committee. Harvard, winner of the championship for 1911 after a tie with Harvard, is named for three of the positions, those of right halfback, center halfback and outside left. Tann played brilliantly in all the games he took part in this year.

BASEBALL QUIPS

American league pitchers are complaining about going into the box "cold." To save time Ban Johnson says they can't pitch five balls to "warm up."

Ty Cobb's young brother Paul has been signed by the Washington team for next season. He is batting over .300 for Lincoln in the Western league. He is also improving in his fielding.

"Give me hitters and pitchers and I'll have a winning team," says Manager Davis of the White Sox. Which is a good deal like saying, Give me a winning team and I'll have a winning team.

Speaking of the cork center ball, Neil Ball says: "It comes off the ground like a hillbill taking English off the rail. I don't exaggerate when I tell you I've had the ball come at me so fast that I didn't have time to get down to it. Don't you see the troubles even the outfielders are having with bounding balls?"

Lightning Kills Few. In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver, nerve and kidney remedy, and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at Jones Drug Co.

Jelly from berries picked wet is almost sure to mold, and doesn't jell right. Try to pick them dry.

A Widow and a Railroad

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

The D. and S. railroad had decided to eliminate a ten mile curve on its line by a cross cut of half the distance. The curve had been made to reach a boom town which had later been fire swept and then abandoned. The Widow Carter, relict of a farmer, lived on the line of the rejected cut-off. It must run between two lakes on her farm, and the isthmus was only seventy feet wide.

There was not a doubt on the part of the railroad people that the widow would sell the right of way for $100 or so. One day a company lawyer paid her a call. He was a man of fifty, about the widow's age, and the two had not talked ten minutes before it developed that they used to go to school together as children. When it came to speaking of the right of way the lawyer treated it as a trifling matter. All other landowners on the line had granted it for nothing, but in Mrs. Carter's case they would pay $100 if she would bind herself to keep quiet about it.

"I won't say either yes or no today," she replied. "There's something I want to remember about our school days—some incident of importance that you were connected with. I guess I can think it up tonight, and you can come back tomorrow."

The lawyer departed, thinking the widow a bit odd in her ways, and he was back in due time next day.

"Look here, Sam Davis," said Mrs. Carter as they were seated. "I was partly sure there was some incident, and it has come to me. You know there was a hill back of the schoolhouse at Wharton?"

"Yes."

"And we used to slide down on sleds and boards at recess and after school?"

"So we did."

"One noon you asked me to ride on your sled. Halfway down the hill it upset, and I lost a big cud of gum I was chewing."

The lawyer laughed and slapped his leg, but the widow had a very serious face as she went on:

"And so your old railroad has got to pay me a thousand dollars for the right of way. I'm going to get even for that lost gum."

"A hundred dollars is a big price, widow. It's land that you make no use of."

"But I may decide to make use of it. No; the railroad can't have it for a thousand dollars, but not a cent less."

"It can condemn the land under the law, you understand, and in that case it would get it for $10."

"Well, let 'em go ahead."

The railroad company didn't care to go ahead until it had exhausted other means. It would raise its figures, and it would send other lawyers to her. Meanwhile the widow consulted a lawyer in the village. He was a one horse lawyer, but he was posted on the thing she wanted most to know. In certain states a railroad cannot secure the right of way through a dwelling house by condemnation proceedings. If the owner asks an exorbitant figure the value is to be set by three adjacent landowners. The law applied in the widow's case, or soon would. She at once ordered lumber to build a shanty on that isthmus, and within a week she was living in it.

The railroad sent on another lawyer, who offered $200 for the right of way. Mrs. Carter was firm. Then another lawyer and $400. Mrs. Carter was firmer.

Railroads often seize by force what they covet and then fight it out in court. The idea was to do it in this case. Mrs. Carter borrowed every shotgun for a mile around and was ready for battle. She actually fired a charge of bird shot that entered the legs of three trespassers and sent them howling. Then the railroad people got a minister from the village to go down and talk with the widow. He saved his breath, even if he didn't earn his money. The moment she understood his errand she said:

"Now, parson, you don't want to butt into this. Your business is to preach of goodness and heaven and angels. Mine is to beat the railroad. You go right back home and leave me to run things here."

Then the railroad offered $500. "Just half my figure!" was the woman's reply.

Then they called for a commission of three to view and value. They were three farmers and were good friends of Mrs. Carter. They put the value at $2,000. One of their reasons was that the passing of trains would make the fish in the two lakes very nervous. Another was that the whistles of the locomotives would prevent the widow from hearing her clock strike and might set her roosters to crowing an hour ahead of time.

When the award was made known the railroad company wanted to settle for $1,200.

"I don't want but a thousand," said the widow. "That has been my figure right along. However, I want Sam Andrews to bring the money and tell me he's mighty sorry about that gum, and if it was to do over again he'd help me to find the end if it took all day."

And Lawyer Andrews appeared and laid down the yellow backs and made the handsomest kind of an apology, and a month later the railroad was using the short cut and the engines were tooting at Mrs. Carter as she stood in her door.

GERMANS GUESTS AT BIG PICNIC TODAY

MACKSBURG DEUTSCHER VEREIN TO ENTERTAIN 300 VISITORS.

The Oregon City Deutscher Verein will go today to Macksburg to attend a picnic in the park given by the German Society of that place. It is thought that at least thirty will go from this city and more than 100 members of Portland societies will attend. There is expected to be an attendance of about 300.

An interesting program has been arranged, consisting of music and addresses. Dinner will be served in the park, and every arrangement has been made for the accommodation of the visitors. The picnic will be an "old-fashioned" German outing and everybody will have a good time.

Buttered Eggs and Tomato.

Wash two ounces of rice thoroughly and cook it until it is quite tender in some nicely flavored white stock which is entirely free from fat, then pass it through a fine wire sieve and reheat it in a saucepan containing an ounce of warm butter and a tablespoonful of curry powder and two tablespoonfuls of thick stewed tomato; stir it well, add a little salt and black pepper and as soon as it is hot pour in the beaten yolk of an egg. Remove the rice from the stove directly the egg is thoroughly blended with it. Butter some medium sized molds preferably the low shape; put a moderately thick layer of sieved tongue at the top of each, then fill them with the rice, packing it in tightly, and put into a moderate oven for about ten minutes, or rather less if the heat is fierce. On taking the molds from the oven turn the rice out on to a hot dish and cover the top entirely with creamy buttered eggs, sprinkle a little finely minced parsley over the top and serve very hot.

Fruit Meringue.

Take two pounds of any kind of fruit—gooseberries are very good—jump sugar to taste and about half a gill of water to each pound, according to the juiciness of the fruit.

Put the water and sugar into a saucepan. Boil them for five minutes, then add the fruit and cook very gently till tender. Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth and add three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Put the fruit into a fireproof dish; spread the meringue over it. Bake in a slow oven till the meringue feels crisp and is of a delicate fawn color. Serve very cold.

Cantaloupe Salad.

Select four cantaloupes of uniform size; chill, then cut off a small section that may serve as a lid. Fill each cantaloupe with whipped cream which has been sweetened and mixed with finely chopped ginger and marshmallows. Put the cantaloupe in a freezer or bucket, pack in equal quantities of ice and rock salt and let stand for one hour. Serve upon a platter filled with crushed ice and garnish with nasturtiums and their leaves. Or the cantaloupes could be filled with whipped cream stiffened with lemon or any sweet jelly.

Raspberry and Currant Salad.

Half a pound each of raspberries, red or white currants and stoned cherries, two bananas, two oranges, half a can of pears or pineapples. Remove the stalks from the raspberries, currants and cherries. Peel and cut the bananas and oranges into very small pieces, taking out the orange pits.

Cut also the pears or pineapples into small dice. Put the fruit in a salad bowl and pour over same of the juice of apple or pear juice. Let it stand in the icebox for one hour before serving.

BLAME FOR SUICIDES LAID ON NEWSPAPERS

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—"Suicide is a private affair. There is no more justification for the publication of such accounts than there is for publishing other private matters."

This is the assertion of a committee of the American Academy of Medicine, which investigated the question of suicide, and in making its report here today requested the press of America to refrain from further publication of such affairs.

"Your committee finds," says the report, "that alienists are practically unanimous in the opinion that the suggestive effect of the reading of details of suicide is a powerful factor in the causation of suicides among susceptible individuals."

"Attempts at legislation are practically useless unless preceded by such popular education as will cause a general demand for the legislation and will assist in the enforcement of laws when enacted."
