IMPORTANCE OF AGRICULTURE.

Report says that the Statistical Abstract for 1910, which the National Government is getting out, will give more space to the agricultural section of the country than did any of its predecessors.

This is not surprising. Mining has made great gains in the past three or four decades. A far larger expansion, however, has taken place in manufactures. While the value of the products of the country's farms for 1910 was about $9,000,000, 000, the output of the country's mills and factories was more than $12,000,000,000.

It was $15,000,000,000 in 1907, but the panic of the latter part of that year hit the factories hard for fifteen or eighteen months, and, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says, a complete recovery by them has not taken place yet.

Agriculture was not injured nearly so much as manufactures by the financial setback of three and a half years ago. While population is rapidly increasing the food production is not keeping pace with it. This accounts for the advance in prices of most of the farm products.

As population must keep on growing a time will soon come when the home supply of wheat, corn, pork, beef and other foods will be barely sufficient for the home demand. Then we will have to import some of it; as Great Britain has been doing for more than two-thirds of a century, although the time is not likely to come in centuries when we will have to import such a large proportion of our food supply as England has been doing in recent times.

We see in our tables of exports every year an evidence of the relative gain of manufactures among us, as compared with agriculture. Fifty years ago agriculture furnished the bulk of our merchandise exports. For the fiscal year 1910 manufactures, in the aggregate, caught up with farm products. In a few years manufactures will contribute a much larger share than agriculture of the total exports.

Here is an incentive for the farmer to employ all his skill in his calling. The home market, which is the profitable market, for his products is increasing much faster than are the products. There is a limit to the acreage of farm lands. That limit has not yet been reached, but it will be reached in a few years.

Essence of Peppermint. You can remove that insidiously white spot from the polished top of your dining room table caused by a hot dish by simply saturating a piece of cloth with essence of peppermint and rubbing the spot with it.—National Magazine.

The Dodger. Redd—I see the greatest range of vision among human races is said to be possessed by the Peruvian Indians, who have distinguished individuals eighteen miles distant. Greene—Gee! I'd hate to have a Peruvian Indian for a tailor.—Youkers, Statesman.

CALUMNY. Calumny is the very worst of all evils. In it there are two who commit injustice and one who is injured, for he who calumniates another acts unjustly by accusing one who is not present, and he acts unjustly who is persuaded before he has learned the exact truth, and he that is absent when the charge is made is thus doubly injured, being calumniated by the one and by the other deemed to be base.—Herodotus.

before many more decades pass. Irrigation is beginning to make the desert blossom, but a country which increases its population by 16,000,000 in a decade must soon people all the new acres which irrigation furnishes. As a large proportion of the newcomers drift into the factories instead of going to the farms, they increase the demand for food faster than the supply grows. The census of 1920 will see a much greater decennial expansion in population west of the Mississippi than that of 1910 revealed. All the resources of scientific cultivation of the soil must be brought into requisition by the American farmer if he is to continue to supply the American consumer without calling in outside aid. The desert lands are being irrigated and the swamps are being drained. Thus hundreds of millions of acres will be added to the area susceptible to high cultivation. But the gain from these sources will have to be rapid if it is to keep pace with the growth of consumption. Nobody now alive will be likely to see agriculture fall again to the low estate into which it dropped in 1893 and for a few years afterward.

GOOD TASTE. Flat Hats Are Sometimes Lined With Cotton Crape.

The newest sailor collars are deep in the back and very brief in front. Large flat hats are lined with colored cotton crape, sometimes stenciled in pale blues and pink.

Quite fixed among fashions are berths, flasks and large flat embroidered collars that round very short from the front, deepening to below the shoulders in the back.

Many tailor jackets have a little finish of white inside the collar to break the hard line of the cloth and to act as a protection for the fine lace of the bodice.

The plain shirt waist illustrated here is simplicity itself, for the only seams are the underarm ones, where a gore is fitted into the waist. This not only makes it fit, but gives great freedom of movement for the arm, so that the pattern is especially suitable for golf or tennis wear. This model was made up in striped percale. It can be finished with a round collar of the goods or with a neckband to which any kind of stock may be affixed.

JUDIC CHOLLET. This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for a thirty-four to forty-four inch bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 700, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

"King of Cricketers" and the Prince of Wales Shake Hands

CRICKET is an essentially the national game of England as baseball is of the United States. The man who leads in cricket in England is as popular with all classes as any Pop Anson, Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner or Christy Mathewson ever was on this side of the Atlantic. The biggest figure that cricket has ever seen in England is William Gilbert Grace, who, though now sixty-three years old, is able to bowl a successful game. When he was only forty-seven he had accomplished the scoring of a "century of centuries"—that is, he had made a hundred or more runs in a hundred games, a record unapproached by any other player and one that can be understood only by a devotee of the game. Mr. Grace is noted as a surgeon as well as a cricketer. In the picture above he is shown by the side of the Prince of Wales. This sixteen-year-old actor of royalty was apparently bored by the part he was compelled to take in the coronation exercises, and the only time he showed any particular enthusiasm was when he met Dr. Grace. Then his face lighted up with enthusiasm, and he showed that he had met a man he understood and admired. The "king of cricketers" and the youthful prince were interested in each other, and they had an enjoyable time talking over the game that every English schoolboy knows and plays.

COURTNEY DEAN OF ROWING COACHES

Charles H., or "Old Man" Courtney, as he is more familiarly known, is the dean of American rowing coaches. He has turned out more champion crews than any other coach in this country—more, in fact, than all the others combined. Some persons have attempted to minimize his ability with the explanation that darsenism grew in the

CHARLES H. COURTNEY.

Invigorating climate of Lake Cayuga, but Cornell's annual successes are due more to Courtney's almost infallible judgment in the selection of his oarsmen and his rare skill in rigging a boat than to the natural advantages which he and his crews enjoy.

Courtney has been connected with Cornell's rowing from its infancy and has done more than any other man in this country to develop college rowing to its present high state of efficiency.

Courtney is a strict disciplinarian and never tolerates any violation of training rules. He has been known at times to "fire" an entire crew and to win with an eight of green men. As a rule, he is considerate with his oarsmen, but insists upon attention to business.

The most recent example of his discipline and relenting spirit occurred just prior to the departure of his crews for the recent Poughkeepsie race. Three members of the freshman eight had been found guilty of breaking training rules to the extent of eating ice cream. Courtney "fired" them on the spot, but he took them along to Poughkeepsie, and when he thought they had been sufficiently punished he replaced them in the boat. Now they are known as the "ice cream kids," a name that will probably stick to them during their undergraduate days.

HARD FOR PLAYER TO QUIT. Davy Jones Says Call of Baseball is Too Strong.

It is difficult for a big league player or a minor leaguer, for that matter, to quit baseball. Davy Jones, the left fielder of the Detroit Tigers, thinks so, and Davy admits that when the time comes for him to lay aside his uniform for the last time he will find the task a hard one.

Davy is one ball player who should not worry about the future. He has an established drug store, does a profitable business, has a long lease and a competent partner in his brother. Still Davy hates to think of the time when he will have to quit.

It is not a case of not being able to pursue some other line of business, but not wanting to, in the case of the ball player. He has lived the life of the game, and its features have got into his system. The call is too strong.

Arrangements are practically completed for the erection of the training quarters for Frank Gotch in Humboldt Ia., to be used in his preparations for the world's championship wrestling match with George Hackenschmidt to be held in Chicago next September. Several cities have been making offers to Gotch, but he has been anxious to do his work at home, and so during the next few months Humboldt will be the center for wrestlers.
