puts of any kind with either of these gentlemen before, and never met either of them before in my life. My first introduction was when the younger Bickner greeted me with a long-handled, round-pointed shovel, raised in an attitude of striking me with the sharp blade and with which he struck me as viciously. It was not his fault that he did not split my head open with the shovel point. The only thing that prevented this from happening was the fact that I was somewhat athletic, and with a small board which I picked up, was able to ward off the blow, so that no extremely serious damage was done. This attack was followed by the continuous efforts on the part of the younger Bickner, to strike me with the shovel, and while being engaged in warding off his attack, I felt a blow from behind. On turning around, I found the older Bickner with a club raised to strike a second blow. Acting upon an impulse, I administered a blow on the gold gentleman's head, and while in the act of doing so, the younger Bickner was again at me from behind, striking with the shovel blade again. It was fortunate that Mr. Hansen happened to be by and ward off the blow, receiving the blow on his arm in order to protect me from receiving it on the head.

Denies He Knew Them.

As far as I am concerned, I never had any disputes with these people over property, and never knew them before. When they attacked me, I did not know whether their names were Bickner or John Doe. The younger Bickner is a strong, husky fellow and his attack with the shovel was certainly a cowardly and dastardly act. A great many convicts are in the penitentiary today serving life sentences for crimes committed, that were not more serious than his, for, as above stated, the fact that my head was not cut open was not due to any fault of his, but to the fact that I happened to be able to ward off the same and protect my life.

Explanation Asked.

I desire to have an explanation from you, and will appreciate very much if you will answer the questions which I have asked above. First, regarding why you did not explain to us that you had already dismissed the suit that morning, and without any investigation whatsoever, and second, how you can confuse a criminal assault with the kind in any way with a dispute over property rights. If, after hearing the story from Mr. Bickner's attorneys you had deemed it best to annul the action filed here, please advise me why you did not first summon witnesses, at least, to determine whether any criminal assault had been made against me or not.

Twenty-five Thousand Men Were In Elks' Atlantic City Parade

Photos by American Press Association.

TWENTY-FIVE thousand members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks took part in the parade which formed the principal feature of the recent Elks' convention at Atlantic City. The parade was seven miles long, and it required two hours for it to pass the reviewing stand. About fifty bands furnished music for the marchers, and 75,000 spectators witnessed the pageant. Every state was represented in the parade, and many of the lodges had costumes and floats that were unique and striking. The Trenton (N. J.) lodge, shown in the picture, attracted much attention. The members wore blue serge suits, with white caps and shoes and carried blue and white parasols. The lodge from Columbus, O., also shown in the picture, carried a huge American flag, and they stopped at times while their well trained chorus sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Gans Gave Deed.

Gans' sale of the property to us was conditional that he retain possession until August 1, 1911. About 10 o'clock Tuesday morning last, July 25, Mr. Gans rushed to our office, requesting our bookkeeper, Mr. Hansen, to advise me to come over to his place forthwith. Mr. Hansen conveyed the message to me in our factory grounds where I was busily engaged. I could not leave at that moment but directed Hansen to proceed to Gans' place to investigate the trouble. About twenty minutes later I concluded that I would also go personally, to determine what the difficulty was about. On reaching Gans' place I found him sitting on the porch with Mr. Hansen. I also noticed a fine stretched across the garden and some new fence posts installed. I broke the line and started to remove the timber that had been propped from one post to another. At this moment a strong husky looking man rushed through a hole that had been broken in the fence between the Gans and Bickner properties. He had a long-handled, round-pointed shovel in his hand and looked like a wild man as he charged me with the shovel blade raised to strike me. I had no alternative but to defend myself, and to do so I picked up a small board which I used to ward off the several blows which the attacking man aimed viciously at my head. While thus engaged I suddenly felt a terrific blow from behind, which for a moment dazed me. I wheeled around and saw another husky, heavy-set man as vicious looking as the first with a club raised over me in the act of striking a second blow, but before he could strike, I was able to ward the board in my hand on the attacker's head and to ward off a further attack, although I did not succeed in knocking him down or to render him unconscious, as he continued to come at me like a mad bull, until some ladies appeared through the hole in the fence and induced him to throw down his club and with them back through the hole in the fence. While the second attacking party was receiving my attention the first continued his attack with the shovel behind and at that moment Mr. Hansen rushed in and received a blow from the shovel blade, which had been intended for the back of my head. The first attacker seeing the blood coming from a wound in the scalp of the second attacker's head, at this moment also stopped his vicious attack and later, after my commanding him several times to leave the premises also disappeared through the hole in the fence. Whereupon, the posts were removed, the holes filled, and the hole in the fence boarded and nailed.

Gans Sees Attack.

Mr. Gans later informed me that the first attacker who had made the assault with the shovel was one Henry Bickner and that the second attacker who had struck from behind was the father, Joseph Bickner, and that by endeavoring to fence a part of his property as they were doing, they were trying to steal the piece of land, including the improvements which he had a few years before erected thereon, including shed, out-houses, etc., also his garden vegetables which were growing in the soil. This is my first and only introduction to the Bickners. As I returned to my office, I informed them as I passed by their store, that I would certainly have them arrested for the villainous assault. Later they hurried to Oregon City, related "a pack of falsehoods" in an effort to excuse their villainous action, and also trying to appeal to the public because the older Bickner was an "old man," 71 years of age—"had been a pioneer," was the "father of the present Mayor of Oswego," etc., etc.

CONSIDER well before you buy vegetables. Think for a moment of how they are bought and kept. Vegetables should be fresh and moist with the appearance of having just come from where nature grew them. That is, when they are well kept—the way we keep them.

This is the reason why all our vegetables look as if they had just arrived—with all that delicious, fresh, natural flavor you like so well. And we take good care that not a moment is lost in their delivery to you. Send a trial order.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 2.—(Special)—San Francisco won an exciting game today from Portland, the score being 5 to 4. Both Koestner and Suter were hit hard, several safe drives being made off the Portland twirler and ten off the Bay City man. Portland scored 3 in the third and 1 in the fourth, and it looked as if victory was assured. But San Francisco got busy with one in the fourth, two in the sixth, one in the eighth and one in the ninth.
