BUY AT HOME.

The support of home industry is the duty of every citizen. We live by the interchange of trade. There is small need indeed for the people of Oregon to go outside their state for the everyday requirements of life, and if the Oregon people would insist on "Made in Oregon" goods being sold them, retail dealers everywhere would keep up their stock to meet the demands of their trade.
Cities and states are built up by the pay-rolls within the state. Property values are kept up by the pay-rolls of the factories. Farm values are kept up by the demands for farm products from the cities, the manufacturing centers. The whole problem is one which even casually studied will prove to any citizen and to every man, woman and child within the state that his support of "Made in Oregon," goods means that his own prosperity will be greater. It is a "wheel within a wheel" proposition. Insist on "Made in Oregon" goods.

Instead of continuing as a single organization the Standard Oil Company will divide itself into thirty-five parts. No doubt, the consumer will find lots of comfort in the change.

The fact that Indiana is the only state in which snow is reported as having fallen this summer makes it look chilly for any contemplated presidential boom for Senator Kern.

Wisconsin's new Bureau of Home Economics has just reported that the women are responsible for most of the extravagance of our rapid American life. Is this one of the evils that the suffragettes propose to reform?

Australia has enlisted more than 100,000 youths between 14 and 18 years of age as the beginning of a standing army. Australia has the Jap scare. There might be a great future for Mr. Hobson in that country.

Mr. Cannon says that perhaps the best pronunciation of "Arkansas" is as if the name were spelled "Arkansas." This has been particularly true since Jeff Davis has been in the Senate.

"The Man On Horseback" should be the hill policeman.

COUNLON GOING ABOARD.

Claimant of Bantamweight Championship May Tackle Digger Stanley. Johnny Coulon, who claims the American bantam championship, is planning a trip to England, where he hopes to arrange a match with Digger Stanley, the British title holder. If Coulon makes the trip he will find that Stanley will insist on the English limit, 118 pounds at 2 o'clock. Coulon always has insisted on 115 ring size as the American limit, though 116 is the generally recognized weight in this country. At that it is believed that the little Chicago man can whip Stanley at the latter's best weight.

Best Stealers Take Short Lead. The best stealers in the American league do not get the biggest lead off first base. Germany Schaefer gets farther off first than any other player. Bobby Wallace and Wild Conroy lead farther off than Cobb, Collins or Speaker. Danny Hoffman, former Brownie, got as far off first as Schaefer.

Food and Strength. Remember that the food you take one day supplies the strength you put forth the next. It is a heavy mistake to take a heavy meal on the day of heavy work. The time to take it is the day before. Wise stablesmen know this, and when a horse has a long day's drive before him they give him only what is called a "check feed," a very light meal, to be followed at night with a heavy one. So there are two good reasons for a man's not eating much on the day of stress. It adds nothing to his strength on that day, and the process of digestion calls the blood to work at the stomach when every ounce of it is needed at the brain.—New York Post.

Why He Paled. Wife—Wretch! Show me that letter. Husband—What letter? Wife—That one in your hand. It's for a woman. I can see by the writing, and you turned pale when you saw it. Husband—Yes; here it is. It's your dressmaker's bill.—New York Mail.

Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE. AT THE CENTER. For a thousand years astronomers have tried to find the center of the universe.

Where is the center? You are the center. Also I am the center of the universe of my universe. Which is to say there is more than one center of the universe. There are as many centers as there are sentient beings.

In a subconscious sort of way we all recognize this fact. Unconsciously each of us draws about him certain circles.

There is the small circle which represents our relation to our immediate family or friends, and there is the larger circle which stands for our relation to our neighborhood and city, and so on. And finally, with its great sweep, there is the great circle—whose are only we may know—that represents our relation to the wide universe.

But always—In the center of these concentric circles is you. You are the hub.

And that is no egotistic view, because, outside God himself, there is no bigger thing in the universe than a man.

You are the axis on which turn all things, and all things are made for you—air, sunshine, day, night, stars, planets—just the same as if you were the only man in the world.

Is it not so? Even the God of all things is in a very real sense your God.

The great trouble with us is that we often get away from the center where we belong. Then there is trouble and friction, lack of harmony. Instead of staying at the center we try to get to one side, thinking we may find a better position.

You know what an eccentric is? In mechanics it is in having a point on which the wheel revolves at one side of the center. That makes the wheel run unevenly. It wobbles.

Just so do men and women often wobble. They get away from the center of things. That is what is the matter with the odd, the irregular, the erratic man. He is eccentric. If he is very eccentric he becomes insane.

Stay in the center. Do not go wobbling off after this fad and that ism. So long as you stay in your right place there is peace in you, and harmony about you, and all things are yours, and naught can harm you. Stand fast in the center.

Telephoning in China. In China when the subscriber rings up exchange the operator may be expected to ask:

"What number does the honorarium of the moon and stars desire?" "Hoh, two-three."

Silence. Then the exchange re-quested: "Will the honorable person graciously forgive the inadequacy of the insignificant service and remit this unpaid slave of the wire to inform him that the never-to-be-sufficiently-ensured line is busy?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Gay Birds of the Olden Time. Extravagance in dress prevailed in the reign of Edward III, who ascended the English throne early in the year 1327.

Men then wore silk hoods, paricolored coats with deep sleeves and narrow waists, short hose, long pointed shoes, bushy beards and tails of hair at the back of their heads.

"The ladies," says a poet of that period, "are like peacocks and magpies. They were attired in turbans or lofty-miters, with ribbons flowing from them like streamers, tunics half of one color and half of another, and deeply emblazoned zones or belts from the front of which daggers were suspended.

Dialects in China. There are as many different dialects spoken in China as there are in the whole of Europe.

GOOD MANAGEMENT

You have noticed that those who get ahead in the world are generally those who are good managers—who have learned to take care of their incomes.

It is conceded the world over that the best way to take care of one's income and have a growing balance is to keep a bank account. There are just as many reasons why YOU should have an account at this bank as there are why any of our hundreds of satisfied depositors should.

Come in and let us tell them to you. The Bank of Oregon City OLDEST BANK IN THE COUNTY

HOLD CHAUTAUQUA MEETING TUESDAY

The Board of Directors of the Willamette Valley Chautauqua Assembly will meet at 2 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon to settle the unfinished business of the recent meeting at Gladstone Park. There is little business to give attention and the meeting will not last long. The recent assembly was one of the most successful ever given, and plans are already being made for the one next summer.

Assurances have been received that several more buildings will be erected on the grounds, and other improvements will be made. The Willamette Valley Assembly is one of the most successful chautauqua organizations on the Pacific Coast.

PREDICT PASSAGE OF BILLS OVER VETO

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The sight of a Democratic House and a Republican Senate passing tariff revision bills over an expected presidential veto is predicted by leaders in both Houses of Congress today. It is believed that the Underwood cotton revision bill will not pass the Senate because the Southern Democrats there are disinclined to take it up at this time.

It is freely predicted, however, that the coalition of Democrats and insurgents, Republicans which was formed in the Senate for the passage of the wool tariff revision bill and the farmers' free list bill will be held together and probably will be sufficiently strong to pass these measures over the veto that is generally expected.

This is a contingency that actually threatens the standpatners is evident today from the action of regular leaders who are canvassing the House and Senate for pledges against the bills.

CANDIDATES WORK HARD FOR GEMS

No doubt each of you has numerous promises from friends to give you a subscription later on. Now is the time to prevail upon them to make good their promise, for not only will it be the means of helping you to win a genuine diamond ring, but will go a long way toward winning one of the other valuable prizes as subscription count double from now until 6 p. m., August 14. Don't waste a minute of your time from now until the close of this special offer. If you follow this advice you will march on to victory September 2 and be the happiest person in all Clackamas county.

RAISING CHICKENS.

When Jane essayed to raise some chickens Her husband thought to "raise the Dickens."

He said, "They'll eat off their blinded heads," And scratch out all the garden beds."

For the John raised both hay and grain, He sometimes took to "raising Cane."

With his wife's plans—like many a man; Women must do as best they can.

Jane wished a good house for her chicks; John took his head and answered, "Nix."

So she fixed up the old pigshed, (The hogs were butchered, sold or dead), With roosts, a place for scratching,

"A hash-shit," sighed she, "but 'twill do."

When winter rains came wandering by Her chicks were sheltered "in the dry."

Jane fed them grain and kale in there; The pullets thanked her, filled the air.

With song and tackle—merry din— And oh, the eggs she gathered in! The price soared upward day by day—

How high it went I couldn't say. Then John forgot he'd "raised the Dickens," And took an interest in those chickens.

"More profitable," said he, "than grain." His wife replied, "or 'raising Cane.'" Then added to herself, "I wonder, When prices fall if he'll 'raise thunder!" SAMANTHA OF CLACKAMAS CO.

How Wheat Came to Earth. A classic account of the distribution of wheat over the primal world shows that Ceres, having taught her favorite, Triptolemus, the art of agriculture and the science of breadmaking, gave him her chariot, a celestial vehicle, and that in it he traveled light and day, distributing this valuable bread grain among all nations of the earth.

Business Men Should Observe Golden Rule

By E. H. GARY, Chairman of United States Steel Corporation

THERE should be established and continuously maintained between business competitors a friendship which compels one to feel the same concern for his neighbor that he has for himself.

IT IS NO LESS IN PRINCIPLE THAN THE GOLDEN RULE APPLIED TO BUSINESS. IS IT POSSIBLE? IF IT IS, IT WILL BE CERTAIN TO PAY.

For example, take any two men engaged in competitive business, but who are sufficiently acquainted to have the entire confidence of each other. Is there any doubt that in the daily conduct of their affairs neither would be disposed to do anything unneighborly or unreasonable toward the other or that the acquaintance would bring to both better results than could be realized if they were unfriendly or engaged in bitter and DESTRUCTIVE competition?

If they are in frequent discussion on questions in which they are INTERESTED, freely interchanging opinions and frankly disclosing conditions concerning their business, will not the individual conclusions reached by each naturally be of a higher order and MORE SATISFACTORY in every particular?

Argument, IF SOUND, applies with greater force whenever a large number of persons are in the habit of meeting one another with the same spirit of friendship which exists with reference to a smaller number.
