CONTEST NOTES

(BY THE CONTEST EDITOR.)

The contest closes within eleven days. Are you making the best of the remaining time? Take five minutes and think it over. Isn't there someone who promised to help you before the close whom you have not called on to make good that promise? Yes! Then go after him at once. Get ready for the "Candidates' Ball." If you fail to be present you will miss the most enjoyable evening of your life time. The contest management assures all candidates and their friends a pleasant time.
Miss Story: I see you still lead. Very good, but keep busy, there are others after your position.
Miss Meyers: You still occupy second place. Better put forth a little extra effort before the close of the "Double Vote" offer. You can easily take the lead again if you try.
Miss Kent: It appears to me that you didn't pay the least bit of attention to my advice, "to get back in the lead and stay there." I repeat it.
I hear Miss Cross has started after vote with renewed energy. You can easily go to the front! Miss Cross, if you do your best. You have a host of friends and well wishers.
Another voluntary subscription with request that the votes be credited to Mrs. Zimmerman. Let all your friends know you're in the race, and your campaign will take care of itself. Miss Smith: Don't stop! But just turn your head and glance behind you. Miss Clossner is still "camping on your trail."
Miss Clossner: I feel that you are going to swell the subscription list and take the lead on the "Roll of Honor" when you "turn in" this week. But you will have to go some, for Miss Smith is still "on the job" and "up and coming."
None of the candidates have succeeded thus far in usurping Miss Ream's position. But you will have to continue your good work Miss Ream or they are liable to.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for a child of two, four or six years of age. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 694, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

TOILET TALK.

Black Satin Much Used in Head Dressing.
Many little plisses, jabots and frills show touches of black velvet in the form of tiny buttons.
White parasols of silk or satin, bordered with a six or eight inch band of black velvet, are very handsome.
A charming addition to the sailor collar collection is one made of cream mousseline, with a broad hem in color, such as king blue, mauve or old rose. Black satin is used in head dressings, combined with red, white, blue and green. White feathers are sometimes combined with rose puffs and ribbon flowers.
Foulards are combined with plain silks. Rarely do we see a silk dress entirely of one kind of material. It is a season for remnants.
A simple nightgown for a little girl is illustrated here. It is made with a high or with a low square neck, as preferred. Nainsook is the material used, the yoke and cuffs being finished with narrow frills of handkerchief lawn.

Curiosities of Coffee.

Coffee, as experts are aware, has a very extraordinary property. It is one of the most absorbent matters in existence. Coffee beans placed in a damp room swell and absorb moisture till they nearly double their weight. So absorbent is coffee, not only of moisture, but of gases and flavors, that shippers of Brazilian coffee always stipulate that the sacks of fresh Rio beans shall never be carried on a steamer which has raw hides as any part of her cargo. These will taint the coffee more surely than anything else and render it unfit for use. The useful side of this quality of coffee is that in a sickroom a handful or two of fresh roasted and ground beans act as an excellent purifier and deodorizer.

All the Bargains Were Gone.

An American of hitherto undoubted veracity tells the story of a restaurant in Berlin to which he and a friend went one evening. The fare and the music were so good and the people about them so amusing that they lingered on and on. When at last they rose to go the American's hat was not to be found.
"What sort of hat was it, mein herr?" inquired the stoic person in charge.
"It was a new top hat," said the American briskly.
"Ach, but, mein herr, all the new hats have been gone for half an hour!" said the smiling German placidly.—Exchange.

The Old Time Skipper.

Inmates of the workroom on an American man-of-war often allude to the captain as the old man or the skipper. The latter is not, as many suppose, a slang term, but a sound word, of excellent etymology and valuable as carrying within itself an interesting bit of commercial history. Skipper is simply skipper, and it comes down from a time when every commander was as well part owner of vessel and cargo, or, literally, the skipper. There are still local shippers along the Atlantic coast, some of them the outgrowth of private yards where the "vessel owners" of years ago built their own ships to carry their own and their neighbor's crops to market.

CHIC FABRICS.

Waist Line Outlined by Flowers on Lingerie Dresses.
Earrings should never be worn in the morning.
One of the new petticoats is of crepe de chine edged with a deep, net ruffle. This latter has a hem three inches wide of crepe de chine.
Small flowers are used on hats just as profusely as the large ones. Puch stias, foxgloves, sweet peas, forget-me-nots, violets and geraniums are in the first ranks.

CHILD'S LINGERIE DRESS.

The waist line is outlined by flowers on many lingerie dresses for young girls. These are either made of bias bands of silk or bought in bunches, separated and attached to the band.
The empire style, both in costumes and suits, is reigning supreme. From the high placed waist line the fabrics fall in natural artistic folds along the figure, which should be as slender and willowy as possible.
Natural linen scalloped with gobelin blue was the color scheme for this attractive child's dress. Simple linen frocks of this sort are very popular for the little ones. All the pale colors, such as rose, green and blue, make up well in this style. The dress can also be fashioned from thinner materials, such as lawn and chambray. The work of making the garment may be simplified by omitting the hand embroidery and trimming the edge with a band of embroidery or heavy lace set under the edge.

SENATOR BACON OF GEORGIA, VETERAN OF BULL RUN.

ONE of the most interesting visitors to the battlefield of Bull Run on the fiftieth anniversary of the fight was the only man now prominent in the nation's legislature who fought there. Senator Bacon was in the Confederate army and is able to recall vividly many of the events of that stirring day. He served through the war and then resumed his law studies. For more than thirty years he has been prominent in politics. He is serving his third term in the senate, having been designated the last time by a primary vote unanimously in his favor. Recently Senator Bacon introduced an amendment to the senate rules to limit interruptions of a senator to mere questions. "Discussion in the senate now is carried on," he says, "after the fashion of men jabbering on a street corner."
