THAT VETO OF THE WOOL BILL.

President Taft has done the expected in his veto of the wool bill. His purpose to disapprove of the measure was well known to Congress when the measure was passed.

The President had made it clear that while he favored tariff revision, he wanted it accomplished in a scientific manner and not through the haphazard process of logrolling, so long the vogue and fraught with so much disturbance to the business interests of the country.

Mr. Taft again makes apparent his desire for a tariff revision that should be based upon accurate information, with protection to American labor as the guiding star.

Haasty revision, based upon guesswork and too often actuated by political motives, has resulted in great injustice in the past and the President does not purpose that there shall be any more of it.

Mr. Taft maintains that the tariff should be revised after due deliberation founded upon exact knowledge and in this position he will have the support of the country generally.

President Taft recalled the recall.

There are times when a man's money talks in a way not at all enjoyable to him. Ask Colonel Astor.

The automobile horn makes the little German band take to the sidewalk.

Congressman Lafferty should have taken a correspondence course in courtship by mail.

Congress takes the wool duty off blankets just about the time we are getting ready to put the blankets on.

The joy of living is not increased by the cost of it.

Everybody will favor the recall of Judge Lynch.

The Portland Daily News is out after the scalp of the owner of the Portland baseball club. McCredie has been successful in giving Portland a pennant-winning team and success to the News is what a red rag is to a bull.

Deserved recognition of merit is noted in the appointment of Bert T. McBain as manager of the Willamette Pulp & Paper Company's Oregon City mill. McBain is a very young man for such a responsible position. He was not born with a silver spoon, and his early elevation to the management of property that runs into the millions is an example of spirit, hard work, energy, study and perseverance.

Booze and motor cars do not assimilate readily. The outside of a bar will not work with any other business.

WARHOP GAINS CONTROL.

By Gripping Ball Hard Yankee's Twister Discovers Secret of Success. Jack Warhop of the New York Americans is in many respects one of the most remarkable pitchers in the big leagues. When he beat the Red Sox in Boston recently Warhop established his fifth consecutive victory.

JACK WARHOP, NEW YORK AMERICANS' CLEVELAND YOUNG PITCHER.

This is the more remarkable because Chase did not pick any soft clubs or soft opposing pitchers for this twirler. Warhop is the lightest pitcher in fact company. He weighs but 152 pounds in his street clothes. But he is a bundle of muscle and nerve and is physically fit to take his turn as regularly as any of the big fellows.

Fanning with several of his admirers recently, the clever little pitcher declared that he looked for his best season this year.

"You will notice that my control has improved," piped Warhop. "In the last six games I have given only two passes and hit but one batsman. I used to be able to do that much damage sometimes before I retired a man. Now, the whole trouble is that I did not pitch my under-hand ball correctly. I used to let it slide loosely from my hand. Now I grip the leather tightly, and I find that my control is practically perfect. A pitcher can get away with a lot of stuff if his aim is unerring."

Agreed. "It's too bad," she sighed, "that life can't always be a honeymoon."

"I agree with you," he replied. "When we were having our honeymoon you were not at all careless about your hair or your general appearance, and I don't recall a single occasion on which you endeavored to convince me that you had married into a lower sphere."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE GUILTY PARTY

One of the most powerful short stories written by the late O. Henry was called "The Guilty Party."

Like many of his stories, the scene was laid in the east side, New York, on which "twilight falls Satan sets up his recruiting office."

"Papa, won't you play a game of checkers with me, if you aren't too tired?"

"The red haired, unshaven, untidy man sitting shoozies by the window answered, with a frown: "Checkers? No, I won't. Can't a man who works hard all day have a little rest when he comes home? Why don't you go out and play with the other kids on the sidewalk?"

"The woman, who was cooking came to the door. "John, she said, 'I don't like for Lizzie to play in the streets. They learn too much that ain't good for them. She's been in the house all day long. It seems that you might give up a little of your time to amuse her when you come home."

"Let her go out and play like the rest of 'em if she wants to be amused, and the red haired, unshaven, untidy man, 'and don't bother me."

Which is the first part. And the sequel? Ten years later Lizzie, who has taken her father's advice and found her entertainment on the streets, in a fit of drunken frenzy kills her lover on account of jealousy and commits suicide.

And this is Henry's "dream." He dreamed he was in the next world and sees Lizzie brought to the judgment bar. And the angel prosecutor says:

"You haven't the guilty party. He is that red haired, unshaven, untidy man sitting in his stocking feet by the window while his child plays in the street."

An overdrawn picture? Possibly. But there's the moral: Oftentimes it is the parent who is really guilty of the child's delinquency. Play with your children. It is as much your duty as to feed them. If you would safeguard them make them your playmates, your confidants, your chums. Let home, not street influences, dominate.

Moreover, playing with your children will help to keep you from growing old. There is no better tonic than association with the light heartedness, the enthusiasm, the play of children. Play with your child, rest, unapplied, you may become "the guilty party."

POTATO MARKET QUIET BUT IS IMPROVING

The potato market is very quiet and virtually no change is shown in the situation. There are somewhat greater offerings of supplies from nearby points and the quality is improving, but still practically none of the present offerings are sufficiently good for long distance shipment.

While the stock now coming forward from Oregon points is somewhat better than that received from California growers have a reputation of marketing nothing but matured stock and for that reason are not willing to offer until the quality is right.

There promises to be an earlier demand for Oregon potatoes from California points than usual, this season, owing to the fact that the southern state has been a very heavy seller to all points in the United States. Therefore, even though California has a heavy crop on an increased acreage, total holdings there at this time are said to be much smaller than usual.

Shipments of potatoes from Idaho points to the Middle West are still going forward. For that reason there will be a smaller amount of stock from there to compete with the Oregon stock in the California markets after the regular shipping season from here opens.

CONTEST NOTES

others in the contest. Steady work from now on and a five, ten or twenty year subscription occasionally, means victory.

Miss Ream has passed the 100,000 mark, and every day her vote total is increased. A carrier route will be established in Willamette, commencing next Saturday morning, due to the efforts of Miss Ream and we look forward to liberal support in her behalf, from Willamette and vicinity.

Miss Clonier's vote total shows a decided increase today. She is only about 18,000 votes behind Miss Smith; just at this moment a pretty even race thus far.

Miss Smith still retains the lead in District No. 2, but not to such an advantage as to afford a lay-off because others are "up and coming." Miss Smith has done and is doing real well and deserves success.

There is not a great difference in the vote total of Mrs. Mack and Miss Batdorf just at this moment. Either one are eligible for first place September 2.

Miss Story continues to hold down first position in District No. 1, but all those on the "Roll of Honor" can easily usurp her position.

Miss Cross and Miss Meyers are just about "neck and neck" for third place.

Miss Kent continues to hold second position in District No. 1. About 15,000 votes would put her in first place this morning. Six thousand votes would place Mrs. Zimmerman in third place this morning.

Thomas, Miss Gardner and Miss Rabek could easily take third place and no surprise will be felt if either of them do it before the week is out.

Remember, the last special offer of the contest goes into effect this morning. Don't overlook a possible chance for a long-term subscription. Only one or two may mean victory.

Grange Work Club Meets. The Grange Work Club of Parkville went to the home of Mrs. Taxon Hayford at Gladstone Friday. The members took with them a number of Mrs. Hayford recently returned to her home from the hospital in Portland, where she underwent a surgical operation.

RALPH MILLN AND MAY JACK MARRIED

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Jack, of 363 Benton street, Portland, Wednesday night, when their daughter, Miss May, became the wife of Ralph St. Clair Milln, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Milln, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father B. Kelly in the presence of the relatives of the contracting parties. Lohengren's wedding march was rendered by Miss Anna Bayley, of Aberdeen, Scotland. The bridesmaid was Miss Laura Jack, sister of the bride, who was attired in a beautiful gown of yellow voile over mouseline; the bride being beautiful in her gown of white crepe, which was elaborately embroidered. Roy Sleight, formerly of this city, but now of Portland, was best man. Miss Irene Moore, caught the bride's bouquet.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack was artistic with its decorations, the dining room being in golden glow, while the dining room was in pink roses. About thirty persons were present and remained for the reception, which was given at the home of the bride's parents.

Bathing Not Only Way of Keeping Cool

Hard Work Will Make You Forget Heat —CANNON

Bodily Health Will Stop Hot Weather Suffering —MULDOON

I DON'T THINK THERE IS ANY SAFE AND SANE RECIPE FOR KEEPING COOL. GOOD, CONSISTENT HARD WORK THAT WILL MAKE YOU FORGET THE HEAT FOR THE TIME IS A SORT OF COUNTER IRRITANT.

Cold drinks won't help, but I don't hesitate to say that if I were invited to a midsummer dinner that was to be more or less of a function, with rich food and richer conversation, I might indulge in some.

Then along with the dinner, if you didn't want the food to disagree with you, lots of ice and some carbonated water might help.

Cold Unsweetened Drinks Will Keep You Cool —CHRISTIAN

A COLD DRINK IS NOT NECESSARILY COOLING.

For instance, there is never a GREATER MISTAKE made than that of the person who runs to the soda water fountain and absorbs many ice cream sodas, thinking these cooling. The ice cream is full of sugar, sugar is full of carbon. You feed the system with carbon and heat the blood, so how can one then expect to be cool?

If a man or woman wants to drink SOMETHING COOLING, take lemonade without sugar, or use any of the fruit juices without sugar, or drink butter-

RECENT statistics give the report of over 400 deaths throughout the country, a direct cause being from excessive heat.

IT SIMPLY SHOWS HOW FEW PEOPLE GIVE PROPER CONSIDERATION TO THE CONDITION OF THEIR BODIES, OF THEIR BODILY HEALTH, TO RESIST THE CONDITIONS IN EMERGENCIES OF THIS KIND.

Our bodies are well able to stand the strain if our minds would only give them PROPER CARE by reducing the amount of work as much as possible without extra demand upon the vitality; laying aside such work as can wait for a few days, cutting down the amount of food to one-half or less, cutting out ABSOLUTELY anything containing alcohol, cutting down the use of other narcotics, tobacco, coffee and tea to a very MODERATE amount, taking longer hours for rest, making up your mind to submit GRACEFULLY to the discomforts of the high temperature.

Remember that a cool drink may feel refreshing while you are swallowing it; but that it is only a MOMENTARY SATISFACTION and will probably put the body to a great deal of inconvenience a little later. The very best thing to drink is water, sufficiently cool to taste nice, but not ice cold. In fact, any drink ice cold or as cold as it can be made by putting ice in it is very injurious, more so in hot weather than in cold.

PINCHOT TO MAKE TRIP TO ALASKA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Gifford Pinchot will start from Seattle September 1 for an extended trip in Alaska. He contemplates a thorough investigation of conditions in the Northwest territory and an examination of its wealth of natural resources. He will be accompanied by Senator Poindexter of Washington.

"Before we return," said Mr. Pinchot, "we shall have gone thoroughly into Alaskan conditions and the best methods for the development of her natural resources. Alaska must be regarded as the nation's treasure house, and the development of her mineral, timber, waterpower and other resources will be the most important subject of legislation Congress will have to consider next session."

"The people of Alaska want big business, but like a comprehensive plan. They want legislation protecting their interests in every way, and at the same time providing for the wisest and best utilization of all resources. Conservation means development, not the locking up of resources."

Mr. Pinchot had planned to study forest conditions in the Adirondacks in New York, but postponed this for the Alaska trip. He will study in the Adirondacks upon his return late in the fall.

GOVERNMENT PROBES COCKTAIL CHERRY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(Special.)—The question, "What is Whiskey?" having been answered officially by a Presidential ruling, the pure food experts of the Department of Agriculture now have taken up one of the other component parts of the seductive cocktail, and have propounded the inquiry, "What is a Maraschino Cherry?" They hold that Maraschino cherries should be bottled in Maraschino liquor, and not in a compound of benzaldehyde, oil of almonds and glucose. The Government has asked for seizure, and condemned cases of what it says are only imitations of real Maraschino cherries. The libel was filed in the District Supreme Court today.
