THEORIST CAN BE CONVINDED.

The most stubborn theorist will sometimes surrender to concrete fact and these capitulations are so rare it is pleasure to recall and record them. The late United States Senator William P. Frye, of Maine, was an ardent devotee of outdoor sports, and greatly enjoyed the keen delights of the rod and gun at his camp by the Rangeley lakes of Maine.

It was the wont of the senator to boast with pride of his having caught the largest square-tailed trout ever taken with a fly. The weight of the trout was given by the senator as being seven pounds. Professor Agassiz, the great naturalist, challenged the assertion, saying it was a scientific fact that no trout ever attained the weight mentioned by the senator.

The next season Senator Frye captured an eight-pound specimen of the same species, packed it in ice and sent it to Professor Agassiz. Acknowledging his defeat Professor Agassiz wrote the senator: "The theory of a life-time kicked to death by a fact!"

The incident disclosed that trout attain a weight of more than seven pounds, that Senator Frye was a true sportsman and that scientific theory must give way to cold fact.

ARMY'S CONQUEST OF TYPHOID.

Another great achievement of Uncle Sam's army is the conquest of typhoid fever.

During the Texas manoeuvres, in which 12,000 men participated, only one man was attacked with typhoid fever. He was a private of the hospital corps whose immunization had not been completed when he was attacked. His was a light case and he soon recovered. The entire division was vaccinated with the anti-typhoid serum.

During 1898 the second division of the army encamped at Jacksonville during the same season that the manoeuvre division was in Texas. The climate, latitude and topography are similar. There were in the Jacksonville encampment 10,759 men, and of these 2,692 had typhoid fever, 248 deaths resulting. Typhoid vaccination was then unknown. In Morocco the French have an expedition of 13,000 men. Morocco is a hot country, yet from April 21 to June 25, not a single French soldier died from disease. These figures show the great advance made by medical science in their triumph over that great foe of the soldiers in camp, typhoid fever.

France boasts of a machine that turns wheat directly into dough. Huh! Wall street uses water as a basis.

A Nebraska enthusiast declares that William J. Bryan's head ought to be put on the new postage stamp. Hasn't he been licked enough already?

It takes all varieties of persons to comprise a cosmos, with the possible exception of the woman whose beauty is enhanced by wearing earrings.

Karl Pearson will be the first professor of eugenics at the University of London. The late Sir Francis Galton left $225,000 to endow this chair, so that it ought to be well cushioned.

We are prepared to weep for Senators Herburn and Jeff Davis when that Washington society for the suppression of unnecessary noises begins to point its suppressor in their direction.

Heart + Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE. DISILLUSIONED. Some time ago I made a visit to a town where forty years ago I lived as a lad for three years—three happy years.

I wanted to see the river where I had gone swimming in summer and skated in winter, a wonderfully big river, so wide that only Tom Smith of all the gang was able to swim across it.

A divided stream, a thing of pools and shallows and stretches of sand—that was once the Wabash! Driving upstream to see the "big brook" that was "just around the bend," I found only a cornfield. Below the town only a few stumps remained of what was "the old mill."

Even the big school-house on the hill which, with its ambitious cupola, was the pride of the town, had been razed and a modern structure was going up. And on the lot where we played "town ball" and "bull pen" and "ball" stood the new interurban depot.

I began to inquire about some of the boys and girls I had known. "Dead." "Dead." "Moved to Nebraska years ago." "Lives somewhere in California." "On a farm eight miles east of here." "Met a man who broke her heart." "Dead." "Somewhere in Chicago."

So ran the answers. I inquired if any one remembered the son of a certain itinerant preacher. One old man said this one was a mischievous lad and he opined had "turned out bad." I had not the heart to tell him I was the lad.

I felt like one who had looked at a fair mirage which had lifted in midair and disappeared. Disillusioned and strangely saddened, I took the first train out.

I remembered what Conan Doyle told his friend. Doyle advised his friend never to "go back to Heidelberg." He himself had gone back to the old town where he had studied and dreamed and loved, only to find the grand old buildings shrunken in size and the old streets that had been so picturesque and full of romance dirty and commonplace.

A sweet memory was spoiled. It must be so. Change and decay are written upon all things, and the picture of memory is not the picture of present reality.

Resides— We ourselves have changed. We have outgrown ourselves. We have lost the angle from which we once looked. It requires so much now to make us happy!

We vainly dream of the places where once we were "so happy and so free." Patronize our advertisers.

No Beef to Export In the Future. Will Need It All For Ourselves. By J. OGDEN ARMOUR, Millionaire Meat Packer.

THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THE UNITED STATES IS SOON GOING TO BE UNABLE TO FURNISH BEEF FOR EXPORT TRADE. Our wealth and population are growing to SUCH AN EXTENT that we will soon use the ENTIRE DOMESTIC PRODUCT for our home consumption. South America now is exporting GREAT QUANTITIES of meat to Europe, most of it going to Austria, Italy and the southern countries. Of course Germany is buying no outside meat, the laws forbidding. All the beef used in that country comes from within its own borders. I can't say offhand just what the proportion of increase in the export product from South America is, but it is growing ENORMOUSLY.
