"I've given up telling my wife anything."
"So have I mine. It simply goes in at one ear and out at the other."
"That isn't the trouble with my wife. It goes in at one ear and comes out at her mouth."—Boston Transcript.

More Suggestion.
"There is nothing slow about me."

Origin of High Heeled Shoes.
Mme. Pompadour was a very small woman, but to make herself look tall she built her hair up high and wore the first pair of high heeled shoes ever made. The high heels that were invented for her have been accused of many crimes to the foot, but physicians now seem agreed that "broken arches" may be produced by an sudden shock, such as jumping from a car. Children who jump the rope a great deal some times have this disease of the foot.

CHILDREN.

Children are travelers newly arrived in a strange country; we should therefore make conscience not to mislead them.—Locke.

Evident.
"Is he a man of good taste?"
"Excellent."
"What does he admire most?"
"Me."

Letting Him Know.
"Tell me, pretty maiden, are there any more at home like you?"
"Yes sir, there are several."
"That interests me all right."
"You needn't come round. They all have more sense than I have."

No Insinuation.
"I have a little hen that lays two eggs every day."
"Every day in the year?"
"Yes."
"You ought to learn to count."

Scene from Henry Miller in "The Havoc" at Heilig Theatre

Famous actor will present his latest play success, "The Havoc," at The Heilig Theatre for three nights, beginning Monday, September 4, with a special price matinee Wednesday.

Henry Miller, America's foremost actor-manager, will appear in Portland for the first time in eight years tomorrow night at the Heilig Theatre, when he will begin a three days' engagement in H. S. Sheldon's powerful play, "The Havoc," which scored a tremendous success in New York last season and in which Mr. Miller is winning overwhelming triumphs on tour this year. The appearance of the distinguished actor next week will mark the opening of the new season of 1911-12 at the Heilig Theatre and will prove one of the most notable dramatic events of the fall and winter months. Mr. Miller's visits to Portland were annual appearances prior to 1903, but his increasing activ-

Two years ago he was booked here in his famous success, "The Great Divide," but the booking was cancelled to permit him to present the William Vaughn Moody play in London. Portland theatergoers, however, still recall his great acting in "The Only Way," "Heartsease," and other overwhelming successes which stand to his credit as an actor and as a producer. The opinions of famous newspaper critics are backed up by tributes from experts in every other department of

DID you ever notice that when a man says he is tired of facts it is always the other fellow's facts he has in mind?

A beauty contest will wreck a town as thoroughly as a cyclone.

What is everybody's business is nobody's business, but there are always plenty of people to mind it.

We like to see the other man get what is coming to him, but our own troubles are always undeserved.

It is noticeable that the married man who talks most about the blessedness of his bachelor days marries soonest after his wife's death.

What is the use of striking for shorter hours when your wife always has the lawn mower or the baby car waiting for you when you get home?

Let not the sun go down before your wrath. He will be big enough to wait for you some day.

It is an optimistic young couple who hope to furnish a home by the cigar band and soap wrapper method.

Did you ever hear of a man who had stolen a hundred thousand or so feeling moved to contribute to the concert fund?

Moderation.
A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men. But don't do the idea clutch. That they will relish very much.

For man is far too dignified. To throw the throttle open wide and take as he might take the air. Straight nonsense for his daily fare.

He wants it as a little spice. A fresh confection kept on ice. And then it will not be declined if he has nothing on his mind.

But when he feels the weight and care of business in the very air. He wants the finest, choicest brand of common sense you have on hand.

Man takes himself, as you may note. As serious as some wise goat. And it will almost make him choke in business hours to scent a joke.

When in the stern and solemn chase for dollars he must hold his face. As rigid as a piece of steel. Or he might miss some two cent deal.

So when you find that you are broke. Do not approach him with a joke. Be dignified and cool as stone. And you may touch him for a dime.

Extending the Hope.
"I just loaned him $50."
"What security did he give you?"
"His note for thirty days."
"Why didn't he make it sixty?"
"He wanted to make it thirty."
"The only difference would be that you would have had another month in which you might think something was coming to you."

Getting a Rest.
"My wife hasn't spoken to me for three days."
"What is the matter?"
"Family jar."
"Say, if you can just get her to keep that up for a week you won't need any vacation this year."
