BEATTIE GIVEN DEATH SENTENCE (Continued from page 1.) A stay of execution was granted, however, to give counsel an opportunity to apply for a writ of error when the Court of Appeals meets in November. "You have had a fair and impartial trial, Mr. Beattie," said Judge Watson, "and the jury has done what it considers its duty. Therefore, you have been convicted of murder in the first degree, and November 24, between the hours of sunrise and sunset, you must forfeit your life to the community. May God have mercy on your soul." A moment later, accompanied by his father, and his brother, Douglas, their heads bowed in grief, young Beattie walked in the darkness of his cell.

Man's Essay on Pope. From Armstrong's "Teaching of Scientific Method" we extract the following: "If the proper study of man (sic) be man, as the highest dignity of our church some time ago asserted," etc. This is not simply due to a natural confusion between A. Pope and the pope. It comes of a poet's having two Christian names, including one for his surname, so that the student of the "Dictionary of Familiar Quotations" is apt to be betrayed by the description of him as Pope, Alexander.—London Punch. Good Elderberry Wine By M. QUAD Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

One summer's day in the long ago, when you could meet a lightning rod outfit at every five miles on the highway, one of the craft drove into the town of Plainfield. In showing off his fine horses he ran over a hog, and the hog limped squealing away. It was nothing to make a fuss over, and none would have been made if the hog hadn't belonged to Elder Carpenter. The elder was a solemn, severe man. He happened to be passing at the time the animal was run over, and he caught a laugh and an oath from the lips of the man of lightning. What does he do but go before a justice and swear out a warrant for malicious injury to a hog. An arrest and trial followed. Of course the lightning rod man testified on his own behalf that no malice existed. He and the elder's hog had never met before. He was driving up to the hotel in a fancy way to show off before the loafers sitting on the veranda, and the hog was unseen until too late. At the conclusion of the trial the lightning rod man told the elder and about forty others what he thought of their town and their fathers and mothers before them, and there was a fight, in which he got badly banged up and driven out of town. Of course he wanted to get even. You must know that there is a fellow feeling between men who are skinning the public, and it was quite natural that the elder's victim should select a tin peddler as his instrument for carrying out his plan. A shallow river runs through Plainfield. At that time its banks were lined for a mile up and down with elderberry bushes. Toward the last of August the clusters of berries were a sight to see. One could gather a wagonload in half a day. One day a tin peddler stopped to gather a couple of bushels. In answer to inquiries he stated that he was going to make elderberry wine after a recipe brought from China by a missionary. Your mother, if she lived in the country, used to make wine of these berries, but only in limited quantity. It isn't the beverage to make one enthuse. There was considerable talk about the tin peddler and his Chinese recipe, and an excitement followed. He returned to Plainfield with a twenty gallon keg of new wine, and wanted to form a syndicate for gathering the berries and making the wine. He had with him a letter purporting to come from a large wine house and offering him $8 a gallon for all the elderberry wine he could ship. Six hundred dollars was the cash capital wanted for a press and building and to pay for the gathering. The dividends for the season would be 100 per cent. There was no hayseed in the hair of the population of Plainfield. The peddler's talk sounded all right, but the people said he must show them down before they invested. That was why that twenty gallon keg was placed on the tavern veranda, and the public asked to help themselves. Elder Carpenter was a temperance man right down to refusing ginger beer, but he saw no hurt in manufacturing a good brand of elderberry wine and selling it for medicinal purposes. It was three hours before the keg was empty, and by that time it was the universal verdict that the peddler was a "good fell'r" and that the town stood ready to invest not $900, but $900,000.00, in his enterprise. They would buy 6,000 presses. They would gather 60,000 loads of berries. It was in the midst of the greatest good feeling and general hilarity that the town blacksmith said that Elder Carpenter was a hog himself for making the lightning rod man trouble over the other hog. The elder promptly replied that the smith was a born liar and started the row. The peddler made for the tavern barn and hid away, but his example was not followed. Every man got the idea that it was his duty to wade into some other man, and for an hour there was fighting up and down the streets. Fathers whanged away at sons, and brother punched brother. The three local ministers butted in as penemakers and were early left stranded in the dust. There were a few men in the town who did not get black eyes and bloody noses and lumpy heads, but they were the old men who had had their fun in other days and were now willing to let the younger generation go in and whoop 'er up. It was these old men who assisted the women when it came to poultices and bandages and to wheeling home those who could not walk. Only two men knew what was in that keg, and they never told. It may have been Chinese elderberry wine according to missionary recipe, or it may have been a mixture of whisky, brandy, gin, wine and drugs. At any rate, the "feeling" lasted two whole days, and there were fights almost daily for the next fortnight. It was a month later that the lightning rod man came driving up to the tavern again. This time he ran over two hogs instead of one. Elder Carpenter was passing again, but he did not stop or turn. He simply uttered an "um" and held his way. There was the usual crowd on the veranda, but they crossed their ribs, spat their tobacco juice over the railing and were mum. The town had been struck by lightning and didn't want any more of it. It didn't even want the empty keg the peddler had left behind him in his flight.

When Tea Was New. "I sent for a cup of tea, a Chinese drink, of which I had never drunk," wrote the immortal Pepps, who felt in duty bound to sample every new thing that came along. And about the same time another Englishman was extolling the new importation in the following terms: "It enacts the brain of heavy damps, prevents the dropsic, consumes rawness, vanquishes superfluous sleep, purifieth humors and hot liver and strengthens the use of due benevolence."

Must Shave or Be Fined. It is in the contract of every male member of the chorus at Covent Garden, London, that he must shave—or be shaved—once a day. For this purpose an allowance is made to him of 36 cents weekly. The face of each one is carefully examined every night, and if there are signs of a "growth" 6 cents is "docked" off the allowance. BEATTIE'S AFFINITY DENIED STAGE CAREER NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Her promised theatrical career uncertain here, because of the protests of prominent women that her appearance on the stage would spell ruin for hundreds of innocent girls, Beulah Binford in New York for the first time in her life was awed and abashed. "New York is too big. I'm afraid," she said. "I wish they would leave me alone. From the minute of my arrival I have been treated like a freak. I don't want notoriety—I want freedom." Freyman Bernstein today declared that he had canceled the girl's engagements in recognition of the mighty storm of protest. Despite threats that moving pictures of the Beattie case with Beulah as the central figure would be barred by the censors, motion picture men rushed the girl to a secluded spot today to obtain a series of films. They answer objections by stating that she will portray characters designed to have a highly moral effect and that her pitiful story will be a strong influence against vice, rather than the reverse. WOODMEN INITIATE FIVE. Fourteen Applications for Membership Are Received. Willamette Falls Camp 148, Woodmen of the World, at a regular meeting Friday evening, initiated five applicants and received fourteen applications for membership. WILLAMETTE STREETS ARE TO BE LIGHTED The Willamette council at a meeting Thursday evening decided to install a lighting system for the streets as soon as possible. W. A. Ross was appointed a committee of one to investigate various systems and report at the next meeting of the council. The town formerly was supplied with lights by the Willamette Falls Company, but this service was discontinued about two years ago. As a result the thriving Oregon City suffers since has been in total darkness at night, although wide-awake and bustling during the day. Dr. A. L. Beattie, owner of the Oregon City gas franchise, it is thought, will submit a bid for lighting the town.

hits this afternoon, while the Beavers drove Thompson from the mound in the first inning, after rapping him for four hits which netted three runs. Thornton, who replaced Thompson, was hit heavily, and contributed five walks. Portland won, 7 to 1. The game was featured by two home runs inside the lot, Buddy Ryan completing the circuit when a drive from his bat dropped the ball in the tall grass near the right field fence. Van Buren and Madden were unable to find the sphere, while Ryan trotted for a home run. And Tommy Madden drove the ball to the score board in left field, also making a circuit trot. Madden's home run provided the only tally registered by the Senators, who were absolutely baffled by Henderson's shoots. The results Friday follow: Pacific Coast League. Portland 7, Sacramento 1. San Francisco 5, Vernon 4. Los Angeles 3, Oakland 2. Northwestern League. Portland 1, Victoria 0. Vancouver 6, Spokane 4. Seattle-Tacoma no game; rain. American League. Chicago 8, Detroit 3. RAILWAY HEAD IS GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 8.—William R. Crawford, president of the Seattle, Renton & Southern, was sentenced to a term of thirty days in the county jail yesterday afternoon by Justice Fred C. Brown, for violating the public utilities law requiring streetcar companies to carry passengers for only a nickel fare within the incorporated limits of any city. In passing sentence Judge Brown declared that merely to impose a fine would be to make a farce of the law. "A fine would mean nothing to a wealthy corporation," said Judge Brown. "To make the law efficient, a jail sentence ought to be imposed. The punishment should be such as to prevent a recurrence of the offense." Crawford was arrested on a warrant issued by Prosecutor Murphy on complaint of Horace Barnes, who testified that he was compelled to pay two five-cent fares to reach the city from Rainier Beach. The facts were admitted by Crawford, but Sachs, his attorney, questioned the jurisdiction of Justice Brown to try the case. Sachs contended that the complaint must be made by the public utilities commission. Following the sentence notice of appeal to the superior court was given and Judge Brown fixed the appeal bonds at $500.

GOVERNMENT ASKS BIDS ON HAY AND OATS The Department of Commerce and Labor has asked Oregon City firms to submit prices on hay and oats to be used at the Clackamas and Rogue River hatcheries. The hay and oats, however, are not intended for the fish, but for the horses and cattle at these stations. About ten tons of each is desired, and it is believed that the prices submitted by the Oregon City firms will insure the placing of the order in this city. The government frequently asks local firms to make bids on supplies for use in its various departments in this part of the state.
