HERE AND THERE.

Poke Shape Bonnet Seen in Fall Millinery.

Gradually the little poke has crept in among the toques and turbans, making even the smartest of these look a little passé. The poke is likely to hold its own in the new fall millinery.

A collar, if high, should be just as high and fit just as close as can be worn with comfort to be smart looking.

Veiled jewels—this is the last cry—and the ornament in greatest vogue is the enamelled and jeweled watch.

USEFUL FALL COAT.

hung upon a chain of equal elaboration of beauty. Though the chain shows in full view around the neck, the watch is thrust beneath the corsage veiling.

Waists close at the back as usual, but in front the arrangement of revers and side bands is very misleading. One would naturally think that the waist fastened under one of these adornments.

The loose long coat is a fashionable one for many occasions. This one is made in present style, with sleeves and body cut in one. There are seams on the shoulders and at the center back, which provide graceful lines.

JUDIC CHOULET.

This May Mantle pattern is cut in sizes for misses of fourteen, sixteen and eighteen years of age. Send 25 cents to this office, giving number, 728, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

Origin of Blackguard. Scullions and lower servants of the English court, who were clothed in sable garments, were originally called blackguards. Gibbon informs us that "those who carried coals to the kitchen or rode with the pots and pans were in derision called the blackguards." A proclamation issued in England in 1683 officially recognized the title by applying it to "a sort of vicious, idle and masterless boys and rogues, commonly called the blackguard, with divers other loose fellows."

BURKE HAS MADE GOOD.

Brooklyn Middleweight Entitled to Be Classed With Crackerjacks.

Why all the holler about Sailor Burke, lads? He cleaned Mr. Willus Papke just as well as any fighter was ever cleaned, and yet some writers refer to the tar as a third rater.

Hain't the Brooklyn deck scrubber proved his worth? He defeated Mountana Dan Sullivan handily. He also handed out a nice lacing to Tom McMahon, the Pittsburg tiger. Then how about Ted Nelson, the Australian bear? Didn't the sailor flop him on two different occasions? Wasn't Mr. Burke pegged for a fine lacing by nearly every sport in New York, and didn't he make Papke look like a boob?

Of course Burke is not a Dempsey nor a Tommy Ryan, but you always see a battle when he starts, and there is always some one bunged up before his fists are finished. He backed Papke all around the ring in the recent fight. He forced the fighting and never refused to mix. If Papke had been willing to mix he would have had company, for the sailor was there with the heart of a lion and ready to stand toe to toe for the limit.

Burke is one pugilist who is always in condition. You never see him slopping in the brew around cafes, as many other fighters do. He never squeals about lack of condition as others do. Fighting is his business, and he is expected to be in shape. He always is.

WILL FOLLOW LONG TRAIL.

Automobiles to Tour Across the Country in October.

A novel transcontinental automobile tour will leave New York Oct. 2. This tour will be on a scale and plan that have not hitherto been attempted. Fifty persons in ten seven-passenger cars will make the trip, which from start to finish will cover fully 4,000 miles, from New York to Los Angeles. The route chosen for this coast to coast tour is that known as "the trail to sunset."

INSURGENTS DENY THEY'LL BACK HUGHES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—(Special.)—The New York Herald published a story today that the progressive insurgents decided to back Justice Charles Hughes for president, and that Senator La Follette would withdraw at the proper time. The progressives here say this is a plot of the reactionaries.

Medill McCormick, in a statement issued from the progressive headquarters, said:

"None of the progressive insurgents with the movement to control the convention of 1912 have decided to back Justice Hughes. Some time ago some of Hughes' friends started a good canvass on his behalf, and it is well known that the justice himself opposed the plan in the end and would not permit the consideration of his name.

"The fact that the reactionaries are already attempting to create an impression that the men managing the progressive movement are playing backstairs politics proves that the progressive strength is alarming to those who know nothing but the old game of politics."

The Funny Bone.

A most unpleasant sensation is caused by the violent excitation of the ulnar nerve due to a blow on the elbow. This nerve passes down on the inner side of the arm and then rather inconsiderately bends round and enters the forearm at the back of the elbow joint. Any one who has felt his neighbor's elbow sticking into his ribs knows that the elbow is remarkably deficient in flesh. The nerve is therefore at this point very near the surface and has little to shield it from a blow. If we give our elbow a smart tap we obtain a practical confirmation of the fact that the ulnar nerve is the principal sensory nerve of the forearm and hand.

Rivers in Korea.

On the western coast of Korea the sides of the Yellow sea are higher than anywhere in the world outside the bay of Fundy, and while the rivers of eastern Korea are clear streams, that run swiftly from the mountains, those on the western side are great brown, muddy rivers, up which the thirty foot ocean tides surge many miles.

GOOD AND EVIL.

If we wish to overcome evil we must overcome it by good. There are doubtless many ways of overcoming the evil in our own hearts, but the simplest, easiest, most universal, is to overcome it by active occupation in some good word or work.—A. P. Stanley.

Companions.

We want one or two companions of intelligence, probity and grace, to wear out life with—persons by whom we can measure ourselves and who shall hold us fast to good sense and virtue.—Emerson.

Bricklaying.

Bricklaying was known in 2247 B. C. Bricks were used by the Romans in England in 44 A. D.

Too Deserving.

A young village maiden had obtained the modest prize. "I suppose, then, my child," said a Parisian lady, addressing her, "you are the most modest girl in the parish?"

"There is not the slightest doubt about that, ma'am, and it's a downright shame I didn't get all the other prizes!"—Paris Journal.

An Example of Stern Bravado.

For stern bravado, says the United Service Magazine, it would be hard to rival the feat of Ensign Gillis, who saw a stray torpedo coming slowly, but surely, toward the anchored torpedo boat Porter in the Spanish-American war. He sprang overboard, turned the nose of the torpedo in a safer direction and screwed up the firing pin tightly so that it would not operate. Then, treading water, he saluted Lieutenant Fremont and reported, "Sir, I have to report I have captured a torpedo." "Bring it on board, sir," commanded Fremont, and Gillis actually did so, swimming with it to the ship and fastening tackle to it.

Why the Waiter Was Worried.

With a smile on his rubicund features the hotel manager was enjoying forty winks. Trade was booming. The place was full. Good!

Knocks on the door of his sanctum recalled him to earth. In staggered a perspiring waiter.

"P-p-p-lease, sir," he stammered. "I'm in a terrible fix. A gent has just ordered roast mutton!"

"Well, what of it?" snapped the manager. "There's plenty of it, isn't there?"

"Yes, sir," breathed the distracted knight of the napkin, "but he's already had one portion for venison!"—London Tit-Bits.

Needless Alarm.

"Am forwarding a barrel of spruce gum as a gift," wired a Bennington (Vt.) man to a friend in Boston. "Gee whis!" ejaculated the Boston man. "That's more gum than my family could consume in several lifetimes." So he went to his druggist and arranged to have him take a hundred pounds or so at a fair price. Congratulating himself on being so much in pocket, the Boston man awaited the arrival of the barrel. It came. It was three inches high.—Boston Transcript.

An Ex-Convict.

Jokley—I once heard a man say that he would rather be an ex-convict than anything else he could think of. Folksy—The idea! How eccentric! Jokley—Not at all. The man was in the penitentiary for life.

Chief Sufferer in the Duel.

The cost of duels is dwelt upon by Aurelien Scholl in his reminiscences. He tells of the elaborate preparations made for a hostile encounter between two journalists whom he knew. One of them borrowed £20 from Scholl to meet his share of the expenses. This sum was never returned. "After ten minutes' perfunctory fencing," he adds, "the principals embraced each other, and both left the ground without a scratch. I was the only man hit."

Carved by Giants of the Past.

The strange stone carvings on Easter Island are one of the mysteries of the world. They range in size from a colossal seventy feet in height to a pigmy standing three feet. There are 555 of them. The theory has been advanced that they were made by the race of wicked giants mentioned in Genesis, for whose punishment the flood was brought about.

YOUR STANDARDS.

The most difficult problem that any human being has to solve is the prevention of an insidious lowering of his standards. It is so easy to drop into habits of neglect in small matters that were once considered duties that the whole life has slipped to a lower plane before one is aware of it. Keep your standards high and unshakable.
