LIABILITY FOR BAGGAGE.

A decision handed down by the supreme court of Massachusetts holds that a passenger on a railroad is not limited to the recovery of $100 for the loss of baggage, the maximum amount fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, where he did not know of the regulation and had not agreed thereto.

The decision was the outcome of a suit brought by a Los Angeles woman to recover damages for the loss of trunks burned when the railroad station at Sunapee, N. H., was destroyed.

The ruling is of more than ordinary interest because it overrules the Interstate Commerce Commission in a case apparently within its jurisdiction and in that it sets up ignorance of a public regulation as a defense against its enforcement.

The case is to be appealed and the final decision of the federal courts will be watched with deep interest.

Princess Louise of Saxony has seems to be about all Louise is living for.

Political chestnuts are also ripening.

Whoever Reaches Back Hardest Into the Past Will Go Forward Farthest Into the Future

By President HADLEY of Yale

There are few things so important and few so little understood as the REAL USE OF TRADITIONS. Some people do not revere them at all; others revere them for their own sake and care for NOTHING BESIDES. The true man revere them because they help to keep his IDEALS HIGH and hold them erect in life's storms. The strongest tree is the one which drives its roots DEEPEST INTO THE GROUND. The taller the tree grows the harder its roots must take hold on the soil. So it is with the life of a man. HE THAT DESIRES TO REACH FORWARD FARTHEST INTO THE FUTURE WHICH HE WOULD SERVE MUST ALSO REACH BACK HARDEST INTO THE PAST FROM WHICH HE HAS SPRUNG. All our great human institutions are attempts to realize this idea and to get man into these relations. A family has its associations and its traditions which make a man STRONGER for having brothers...

Local Grappler To Meet Champion

Peter Borzukus, lightweight champion of the world, who will meet "Auk" Smith at the Armory Tuesday night.

Peter Borzukus, lightweight champion of the world, who will meet "Auk" Smith at the Armory Tuesday night.

Much interest is being manifested by local sporting fans in the handicap wrestling match between Peter Borzukus of Portland, the Greek grappler who claims the world's lightweight championship, and "Auk" Smith of this city. The bout will be held at the Armory Tuesday, October 3. These men have been anxious for some time to try conclusions on the mat, and now that they are matched, the outcome is awaited with great interest. In his challenge, Borzukus agreed to throw Smith four times in an hour or close the match. Many think that the artful Greek will be able to do this, but Smith, who is a remarkably good man, has a great many supporters who are positive that Borzukus is biting off too large a chunk when he endeavors to spill Smith. A program of interesting preliminary events is being prepared.

"The Astor business is over," remarks the Syracuse Post-Standard.

If we were sure about that we'd sing the doxology.

"The elderly millionaire" is the way in which the Syracuse Post-Standard refers to Col. John Jacob Astor. And he is only forty-seven, many years this side of Dr. Osler's chloroform stage.

There is much paragraphing about a man named O. Hell, who has petitioned a court for a change of name. A man with such a name as that must be forever thinking of himself, and the courts should relieve him of his self-consciousness.

The price of granulated sugar has advanced. If you don't like it you can lump it.

THE GREATEST OFFER EVER.

The Morning Enterprise, the Clackamas county daily and the Northwest's greatest weekly, The Weekly Oregonian will be sent to any address for $3. This offer is good on and before October 31, 1912.

Old subscribers or new, it makes no difference—both receive the benefit of this wonderful offer. Send in your subscription now. Don't wait till it is too late. Remember, October 31 is the best day of this offer, and as the papers both start at once and run until November 1, 1912, you get more for your money if you subscribe now.

Nicknames for London papers. Nicknames for newspapers have gone out of favor. While the Times was formerly Granny and afterward the Thunderer, the Morning Post used to be known as James, that generic name for finkies being attached to it in allusion to specialization on society news.

When the Morning Herald and Standard had the same proprietor and to a large extent the same staff and used to appeal to each other as independent authorities, they were familiarly known as Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Gamp. The Morning Advertiser, as the organ of trade, has at various times been dubbed the Barrel Organ, the Tap Tub and the Gin and Gossip. Gazette—London Chronicle.

Perussion. The percussion method of igniting gunpowder in muskets was invented by a minister in 1807.

Trademarks. About 100 trademarks are registered each 100 at the patent office in Washington.

FANCY PEASANT BLOUSE.

face, and nowadays that is a point not overlooked by the up to date woman or girl. Fancy mesh veils to match one's chapeau are also in vogue, and one sees numbers of brown, blue and green veillings. But the black veil will always have its admirers, and there are many smartly groomed women who stick to black veils of various styles despite the whims and vagaries of that whimsical dame, Fashion. The peasant blouse in its many variations will continue to be popular this fall and winter. The model pictured is quite new, the yoke being cut in points. This waist is made of mesaline with trimming portions of all over lace, piping and buttons of velvet.

Millstone "Around Its Neck" Does Not Discourage This Tree

HAVING a millstone around one's neck is a dangerous thing, according to Holy Writ, especially if one is to be cast into the sea. But the tree shown in the above picture has thrived in spite of such a handicap. Many years ago a huge millstone that had been used in turning wheat into flour at Sheldon's mill at South Dover, N. Y., was discarded. The new roller process made the old fashioned method obsolete, and the heavy millstone was useless and was thrown away. It lay on the ground beside the road for many years, and then a seed under the stone sprouted, and a slender plant poked its head through the hole in the center of the stone. It continued to grow until it filled the hole and gradually lifted the heavy stone from the ground. It continued to grow and to raise the stone until it now appears as shown in the picture. The stone is used as a seat by wayfarers who are tired. It is a comfortable seat, too, and is different from anything seen anywhere else in the world.

CROP REPORT OFFICE LOCATED IN PORTLAND

Portland has become headquarters for the Oregon-Washington crop reporting section of the bureau of statistics, department of agriculture. With the appointment of E. T. Marchetti as statistical agent of the department, the crop reporting districts have been changed. Formerly A. F. Hill of Idaho had the territory composed of Oregon, Idaho and Washington for his field. Mr. Hill will now have charge of Idaho and Montana, while the new district composed of Oregon and Washington will be in charge of Mr. Marchetti. The new arrangement is expected to strengthen the hold of the crop reporting bureau of the government because it will place its agents in closer touch with the situation. Heretofore the territory has been so extensive that even with hard work it has been impossible for the department's representatives to fully cover all the details. Portland has been selected as headquarters for the new division because of its central location. Mr. Marchetti was for some years connected with the census bureau and is therefore equipped for the work here.

MADEMOISELLE'S VEIL.

This Adjunct of the Toilet Completes a Charming Hat Effect. Of course she wears a veil if she wishes to be in the fashion and also if she likes to keep her well coiffed head in trim, orderly style. Black and white lace veils which hang straight from the brim of the hat are very smart indeed. They add a bit of charm to a charming hat or Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

CHILD SLAVERY. Alma Whaley of Chattanooga, Tenn. drank one and one-half drams of carbolic acid in an attempt to end her life, but was saved by the physicians. Why a suicide at fourteen? The girl revealed the fact that she with several of her fellow workers in a factory had entered into a suicide pact, preferring to die rather than work in the mills. "We all wanted to die at our frame. We go to work at 6 in the morning and work until 6 at night. We have no time to play. Little Bertie cries and says she would rather be dead than alive. So we made up our minds we would die." What a tragedy of childhood! Without the power of self analysis, these children did not fully realize perhaps that under the depressing and monotonous labors of the mill both their bodies and brains were being stunted, but they did realize they were miserable. They did realize they were being cheated of their birthright—the right of self development, the right to education, to recreation, to play. They did realize that because of the long and grinding hours of labor in the insupportable factory with its nerve racking noises they were losing the best years of their lives. Their parents? It is sorrowful to record that in many cases of this character the parents are to blame, dividing with the greedy mill operators the responsibility for conditions as they are. "But," say certain legislators—"I worked on the farm as a child when I had to reach up for the post bundles. It is good for children that they should work." Yes, but working in the open air and sunlight is one thing; working in the dust and grime of a stifling mill atmosphere is quite another. We are proud of the fact that we are a working people. Nearly all our great men as boys were poor and worked hard. But none of them worked under the conditions of our modern child slaves—in a stifling factory, or at opening the gates of the dark mine, or standing over the "breakers," labors that change boys and girls prematurely into old men and women, ground by sordid greed into human waste. There is more than one sort of white slavery. Alma Whaley preached a powerful sermon against child labor when she told how these miserables preferred death.

STRENGTH IS LIKE GUNPOWDER To be effective it needs concentration and aim. You can concentrate your selling talk and aim it at the people you most want to reach through the medium of The Enterprise "Liner" section. An ad in this section that tells what you want to tell and nothing else will talk to more than three thousand people every day and is sure to bring returns. If you are in doubt try it for a stated period and learn what these busy little ads can do for you. By you is meant YOU. The Enterprise "Liners" are an opportunity that you should grasp. They will set you on the highway of success. No other medium will reach so many Clackamas county people every day and in no other county are there so many people with money to invest in a good thing, no matter what.
