scribes to magnetic storms that are putting a brake on the earth, increasing the length of the day and night so that if the retardation should keep up as it has been for the past ten years in 2,320 years there would be on one side of the earth an everlasting day hot enough to melt even the rocks, while on the other side there would be darkness and cold equally destructive.

But according to the professor we will not have to wait three thousand years for evidence of the approach of that long day. The day will gradually lengthen to 30 hours, then 30 days and finally a year, and then the earth will come to a standstill and the long day will be upon us.

The professor, of course, knows more about these things than we common-place laymen, and we shall have to abide by his conclusions. But at the same time we will keep plodding along in the same old way and take our chance of that long day of extremes catching us.

Up in Alaska a woman was pardoned from jail so that she could get in her fuel for the winter. Chivalry occasionally asserts itself in this prosaic age.

Jail sentence would be much more consistent punishment than fines in the case of food adulterators.

Philadelphia is having a spasm of reform. There is no danger of its becoming chronic.

Reform by the indictment route is the order of the day in Atlantic City. There are abundant indications that it will be successful.

The ministers are still worrying over the fact that so few men attend church Sunday mornings. They say that if it were not for the big attractive Sunday morning papers more men would go to church, but as it is they stay at home to read the paper.

The newspapers come back at the "brethren of the cloth" with the assertion that if it were not for these interesting Sunday papers some men would not get out of bed till dinner time.

In spite of the efforts of the Bankers' Association and other strong organizations to induce President Taft to declare the third Thursday of November Thanksgiving Day this year as the last Thursday falls on the last day of the month, the President says that in accordance with custom the last Thursday in the month will be "turkey day" even if it does inconvenience the banks.

A great number of men high in business circles declare that young men who are college bred do not as a rule make the best kind of successes themselves as business men, yet we notice that these same business men always send their own sons to the big universities.

Prof. Bauer of the Carnegie Institute, Washington, says the revolution of the earth about its axis is getting slower and slower, and one of these fine days, when we are least expecting it and instead of thinking about the mutations of time are fretting about a coal or ice bill or some other more vitally important subject, it will stop motion altogether. Then half of the earth will be turned toward the sun all the time and the other half turned toward dark, cold space.

The causes of this slowing up on the part of the earth the professor

Roy Young, who has returned from an extensive trip throughout the East, has been quoted as saying that the East is all right but there is no place like the West for the "young" men.

People like to tell us about the famous men of the nation who started as poor boys. We have some of them right in Oregon City. We can name one man who started here in business a few years ago with a capital of five hundred dollars and who at the present time owns one of the largest stores in the city, employing over ten clerks. Then there is a well known lawyer who makes no secret of the fact that a few years ago he was working in the mills across the river for $1.75 a day. By studying law in his spare hours he has by his own efforts made himself one of the useful citizens of Oregon City, as well as a name all over the state as a capable lawyer. There are still opportunities to make good for all those who are willing to do hard.

Postmaster General Enjoys Ride In Aeroplane That Carries Mail

Photos by American Press Association

CARRYING the mail in an aeroplane is not only practicable, but it is enjoyable, according to Postmaster General Hitchcock. He ought to know, because he has tried it. In the recent aviation meet at Hempstead, about twenty miles east of New York city, out on Long Island, mail was carried at regular intervals from the aviation field to Mineola to be placed on the train. All letters and postcards mailed—and nearly every visitor mailed from one to a dozen—bore a special postmark showing that it had made a flight through the air. In the lower picture Mr. Hitchcock is shown handing the first mail pouch ever carried through the air in the United States to Earle L. Ovington. In the upper picture Mr. Hitchcock is shown seated in a biplane beside Captain Paul W. Beck of the United States army. In this machine Mr. Hitchcock flew over to Mineola, several miles away, dropped the mail bag and then returned to the aviation field. He had previously made a flight in a monoplane, but said he much preferred the biplane, as it gave him a better view of the country over which he was flying. He said he enjoyed every one of the twenty minutes he was in the air.

SUGAR INTERESTS FORCED TO GIVE IN

The weakness in the sugar trade, which resulted in the decline of twenty-five cents a hundred pounds along the Pacific Coast is said to be the result of a much decreased consumptive demand. Refiners are said to have plenty of high priced sugar to offer at this time, although up to a short time ago they were far behind with their orders.

The weakness is said to be an attempt on the part of the Pacific Coast interests to force retailers to stock up heavily with sugar; thus allowing refiners to get from under while the merchant carries the load.

With beet sugar being offered in the world's markets, it was but natural that weakness and declining prices should be reflected in the situation, despite the efforts of refiners to hold up quotations.

Latest advices give the lie to recent rumors that a large part of the Cuban sugar crop was ruined, which would have resulted in a further strengthening of quotations.

The market is weaker everywhere. Some of the larger retailers who had bought heavily previous to the big advance, are now trying to unload. One firm offered to sell sugar at retail at $1 a hundred pounds less than the actual price at wholesale.

Prevailing Oregon City prices are as follows: HIDES—(Buying)—Green hides, 12c to 6c; salted, 5c to 6c; dry hides, 5c to 14c; sheep pelts, 25c to 75c each.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A SUCCESS STORY. From section hand to vice president of a great railway system is a long, hard climb.

An Iowa boy made it. Early in the seventies W. C. Brown, aged sixteen, was a section hand on the Milwaukee road. In the evenings he stayed around the telegraph office, where the obliging agent permitted him to practice on the key.

He mastered telegraphy. In a little while young Brown was a telegraph operator. Soon he was known as the best operator on his division.

When he was twenty-two years of age he was a train dispatcher on the "Q" system, with headquarters at Burlington. Then came an opportunity.

One Sunday night in midwinter a fierce blizzard swept over the middle west. In the railroad yards at East Burlington were some 300 loads of cattle. Unless they could be got into the sheds the Burlington road would lose thousands of dollars.

It was none of Brown's business. But—When his day's work was done he went to the superintendent and asked for the job of taking care of the live stock. He said he was once a section hand and knew just what to do and how to do it.

The next morning T. J. Potter, then head of the Burlington system, came down to the superintendent's office. He said: "Things are pretty bad over at the east yards, I suppose."

"They would have been but for that young train dispatcher." Potter was told how young Brown had volunteered to get the cattle out of the cars into the sheds and of his success.

"What is his name? A man like that is worth watching." After that incident Brown went up rapidly—chief train dispatcher, train master, superintendent, general manager. He did not know it, but while he was reaching up for the rounds of the ladder Tom Potter was behind pushing him.

Then came vice presidencies, and now he is the executive chief of the great New York Central, actual head of the Vanderbilt system. Moral—When you try to boost yourself others will help to boost you.

BEAVERS CONCEDED PENNANT WINNERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—McCredie and his champion Beavers arrived here today and are prepared to win every game possible from the San Francisco Seals. The Beaver twirlers are all in first-class form, except Henderson, who did not take the best of care of himself at Los Angeles.

Everyone concedes Portland the championship and McCredie is receiving the congratulations of the fans from all sides. One would almost imagine he was on his home lot receiving the plaudits of the Portland rooters.

All the players except Chadbourne, Steen and McCredie will participate in the post-season series with the Oakland team next week. Five games are to be played and the proceeds will be divided between the players. Sixty per cent goes to the club winning the majority of the games, and the rest to the club coming out second.

Lindsay and Sheehan may be able to get into the game tomorrow and if they do, Rodgers, whose leg is both ailing him of late, may be permitted to play off.

The Hatter and the Rabbit. Millions of rabbits are killed annually in the British islands and in Australia for their skins, or rather, for their fur, which is used in making felt hats. Great quantities of the English rabbit skins are sent to hat manufacturers in the United States, but first they go to the continent of Europe to have the long, useless hairs laboriously pulled out by cheap hand labor.

Lunilology In China. In China the practice of lunilology exists at the present day and is of very early origin. The chief festival, that of Yueping, or moon cakes, is held during the eighth month of the Chinese year. Persons make cakes of various sizes in the shape of the moon and paint different figures upon them.

Politicians Should Be Made to Fear Honest and Deep Thinking Voters. By WILLIAM BARNES, Jr., Chairman of New York State Republican Committee.

ONE of the GREATEST DIFFICULTIES a political manager encounters who desires for the GOOD of his STATE and COUNTRY that the cardinal principles of our form of government should be maintained inviolate is the INDIFFERENCE and INDOLENCE of the very citizens upon whom the BURDEN of the maintenance of this government REALLY rests. Their inattention, due in a great degree to what they believe is their feebleness politically, only serves to INCREASE this feebleness and makes men in public life and politicians fearful of the MOUTHINGS of the CHARLATAN, whereas they should be afraid of the DEEP, CALM and SOBER THOUGHT of the INDUSTRIOUS and EARNEST MEN of the country.
