HEDGES PLEADS FOR FREE CANAL

years, but it will probably take four. They will be built for centuries to come and not the present. The advantage to the state and especially to the Willamette Valley will be so great that the share of Oregon City in it will be much greater than any loss which it can possibly sustain. Nor do I believe there will be any loss or disadvantage. I see no reason why if we take away by the construction of the locks a foundation for a mill the mill may not be constructed on that portion of Oregon City between the present basin and Seventh street. It is not necessary in order to obtain power that the mill be on the crest of the falls.

"Again, an inevitable result that will follow the construction of new locks by the government will be that work which is necessary to make an open river to the sea. I am of the opinion it will not be very difficult. If the locks are constructed, to induce the government to make an additional appropriation to clean out the channel from Oregon City to Portland and especially to remove the rapids below Oregon City. Again, as the government builds permanently, and the engineers have had all the data necessary in making their report, including the lines of highwater heretofore, and the probability of floods hereafter, the locks will be so constructed with a wall outside to keep them from the overflow and to protect the city as it never has been protected of danger from washout.

"I am told that in the 1890 flood, if it had not been for a jam of logs accumulated at the south end of the woolen mills, the building of the Oregon City Manufacturing Company would have been destroyed, and we of timber to clear out the channel overflow and to protect the city as it never has been protected of danger from washout.

"If the locks on the west side were purchased it would be necessary in order to make them adequate either to condemn some of the plant of the largest of the corporations here—the Willamette Pulp & Paper Company—or to condemn ground west of the present canal, which would make it necessary to cut away a bluff of several hundred feet that is eighty or 100 feet high. The entire locks on the west side would have to be reconstructed.

"Finally, gentlemen, it is too late for us to divide on this subject and get anything. We have worked hard for the construction of new locks. This has been done openly and if any protest was to be made, any dissensions, they should have been at the beginning. For it is only by remaining harmonious that we may expect locks at all. Those who oppose the recommendations of the government engineers are doing that which is equivalent to opposing free locks and working against the greater development of the Willamette Valley, including this county and city."

The tramp leaned against the door jamb, while Miss Annabel Sneidon peered out at him through the screen, and he gazed past her at the kitchen table.

"You look strong," said Miss Annabel. "Are you equal to the task of sawing and splitting half a cord of wood?"

"Equal to it, madam?" said the tramp. "The word is inadequate. I am superior to it." And a moment later the sunshine played on the door jamb where his figure had so lately leaned, and down in the road drifted a cloud of dust raised by his patient, plodding feet.

STATE BOARD WILL INSPECT LOCKS SITE

SALEM, Oct. 16.—Unless present plans fail members of the State Board will probably make an official trip to Oregon City next month to inspect conditions there relative to the proposed free locks. The state has made an appropriation of $300,000, payable $100,000 annually, to be used in connection with a similar appropriation from the government for the establishment of such locks.

The agitation in Oregon City for locks on the East Side of the river will meet with the opposition of the State Board, according to the present outlook, and it is to investigate personally this question of right of way that the board wishes to examine the situation.

Under an opinion of the Supreme Court, handed down a number of years ago, the state has a proprietary interest in the present locks on the West Side of the river, amounting to $200,000. Should the course of the locks be transferred to the East Side it would result in the state's interest in the locks becoming practically worthless, it is said.
