WHY BRESNAHAN REMITTED EVANS' $25 FINE.
Louis Evans, the St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder, is a joker. You'd never suspect him of being a bonehead, but he pulled one of this class off plays one day trying to steal third base when it was occupied and was fined $25 by Manager Bresnahan.
Later Bresnahan started from first to second before the runner on the keystone had departed and was an easy out.
Running from the bench toward Bresnahan as the latter returned, feeling like 30 cents, Evans yelled, "That'll cost you $25, old top!"
"What's that?" shouted Bresnahan, sore as a boll.
"Twenty-five bonus out of your envelope for that bonehead work," replied Evans, starting for his position.
"Say, who's running this team?" demanded the manager angrily.
"That's all right. Just remember that fine!" Evans shouted.
The outcome was the remitting of Evans' fine. He was too much for Bresnahan, and Roger enjoyed a laugh over the antics of his player.

Frederick the Great.
Frederick the Great looked with serene indifference on all that his enemies might say of him. One day, as he rode through Berlin, he saw a crowd of people staring at something on the wall and on sending his groom to inquire what it was found it to be a caricature of himself. The placard was so high that it was difficult to read it, so Frederick ordered it to be placed lower in order that the people might not have to stretch their necks. The words were hardly spoken when with a joyous shout the placard was pulled down and torn into a thousand pieces, while a hearty cheer followed the king as he rode away.

The Antiquity of Man.
Man was looked upon as old when it was shown that he was contemporary with the mammoth in the glacial period, but recent discoveries prove him to be immeasurably older and to have lived with the fore-runners of the mammoth, elephants antiquus and the Etruscan rhinoceros, rhinoceros struscus. He found his way into Great Britain while the British islands were still a peninsula, and the Thames was a tributary of the Rhine, and in the ancient valley of the Thames pursued the deer or fled from the cave bear and the tiger. This we know from the bones and stone implements found in undisturbed ground far below the present surface of the soil.—Century.
