Clark was born at Rickville, Conn. in 1849, and at the time of his death was sixty-two years age. At the age of eighteen years Mr. Clark came to Oregon by way of the Isthmus of Panama, and located in Oregon City. He married Miss Nora Moss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Moss, prominent and well-known pioneers. Mr. Clark for twenty-five years was superintendent of the finishing room of the Oregon City Manufacturing Company ,and also owner of a similar woolen mill at Bandon, where he and his family resided for several years. Mr. Clark returned to this city from Bandon, and was for some time connecte with a manufacturing plant at Sell-wood, until recently, when he was engaged in the real estate business in Portland.

Who art thou that complainest of thy life of toil? Complain not. Look up, my wearied brother. See thy fellow workmen there, in God's thy fellow workmen there, in God's eternity, surviving there, they alone surviving: sacred band of the immortals, celestial bodyguard of the empire of mankind. To thee heaven, though severe, is not unlimit. Heaven is kind, as a noble mother, as that Spartan mother saying while she gave her son his shield, "Return with it, my son, or upon it."—Thomas Carlyle.

A CONDUCTOR'S STORY

Whereupon he said that it had been sold to him whereupon he paid to a station called he didn't pay further he would be put Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stawley and off at Harkerville two miles beyond son, Willard, who have been touring Ariington.

The man was evidently playing some game I disliked forerfering with him off that he might serve some purpose by doing so The fellow looked too respectable for his clothes. However, the rules were imperative, and when he refused to pay at Arlington I determined to put him off at Harker ville. When the train stopped I put tny arms under his and lifting him out of his seat hustled him to the door of the car I got him through. but when I endeavored to dislodge him from the platform he put up an effective resistance. Getting his grip on the guard rall, he hung on till a crowd, attracted by the noise, collected, and my man, though struggling. found breath to curse the railroad, its management and all its employees Plantly I pushed him off and signaled the engineer to pull ahead. I left the man shaking his fist at me and vow ing vengeance. Looking back from a distance, I saw him haranguing those who had witnessed his ejectment. The matter troubled me. I expected that he had some right to ride that I knew not of-that he would sue the company and I would be discharged for not having passed him. Ordin arily, this would not have troubled me, but in this case the man, though shabbily dressed, did not look like a tramp or a man accustomed to force sessments of $1100 was assured, and himself as a deadhead.

There had been an attempt to wreck of the trains on the road which had nearly succeeded. The train referred to carried a large sum of money for an express company, and it was supposed that it was to rob this car the attempt had been made Running a local train myself, i did not take much interest in the matter, for my train was not liable to be wrecked for purposes of robbery. One morning I was told that the gang who had attempted to wreck the train had been tracked by detec tives employed by the company, and an arrest had been made. But where they had been captured I did not hear I was just starting out on my daily trip and had no time to indulge my curiosity by making inquiries about the matter When I reached Arlington I was handed a telegram from the superintendent to stop my train just across a bridge about a mile before I reached Harkerville and take on a party that would be waiting there for me. I made the stop as ordered and found several clothes police officers, armed with rifles as well as revolvers, goarding a number of handcuffed prisoners. The officers put their captives aboard the train, and after starting I went into the car where they were to collect their fares. One of the officers, clap ping a hand on my shoulder, said: "See here, conductor, a few weeks ago you put me off this train for not paying my fare. I was obliged to sub mit, but now I propose to carry this whole gang through without tickets or We're quite prepared for any emiling "I think I do." "You should. You belped me get in with these gentlemen with bracelets on their wrists. They are the men who tried to wreck the express some time aro. They were tracked to Harkerville, and the company sent me there to gain their confidence. I saw no better way for an introduction than to get put off the train. I stayed awhile in Hark critic, cursing you and the road, until one of these men was emboldened to propose to me another attempt at wrecking. He had had a pass in his pocket at the time I put him off, and had another now for himself and party. But didn't ask to see it.

FIRESIDE GAMBLERS. Because of the scandals connected the north side, Chicago, have started a crusade against "fireside" gambling What is "fireside" gambling?

It is gambling indulged in by exclusive society women. The fair gamesters do not merely play whist for prizes, but poker games for money.

The captain of police sent detectives warn certain hostesses, declaring that if the gaming were not suppressed he would raid these homes the same as if they were downtown gambling Mirabile dictu!

According to the police, the poket games are played at frequent inter vals, some of the card clubs meeting as often as five times a week. And the stakes run higher than $100 at And the women at whose homes the clubs meet take a "rakeoff of as much as $10 from each of the players.

One woman complainant, a Mrs. Ten Eyck, told the police she was robbed in one of these aristocratic homes while playing poker of $35 contained to her hand bag.

It is disc learned that considerable domestic discord has followed the revelations of the police. Husbands who had wondered at the sharp increase in household expenses saw a possible ex-

WILL BE APPEALED WOODCRAFT WOMEN

SALEM, Or., Dec. 27.—For the sole purpose of relieving the state of all danger from making the mistake in issuing warrants for the appropriation of the University of Oregon, Attor-ncy-General Crawford, has made preparations to appeal the case of J. C. Friendly against the Secretary of State, in which the referendum petition against the appropriations was held to be invalid by the decree of Judge Galloway, of the Marion County Circuit Court. The Secretary of State requested the Attorney-General to appeal the case and secure a judgment from the highest court in order to assure the state officers that the money is available without further legal proceedings. The appeal is based on the ground that the lower court erred in holding that any person may start an injunction proceeding that the lower court error of the start of the sta ing against the Secretary of State to prevent the placing on the ballot the title of a referendum petition after the same had been filed with the state, and that because a few names on the petitions are found fraudulent, the entire petition is invalidated.

DANCE MUSIC GIVEN

Cataract Hose Company No. 2 gave its tenth annual ball at Busch's hall Monday night. Notwithstanding the many counter attractions incidental to Christmas day ,the attendance was more than satisfactory and the dance will count as one of the most success ful ever given in this city.

The dance program was exceptionally well arranged. A feature of the affair was the instrumentation of the orchestra, supplied from the dance section of the Philharmonic. Stringed instruments were predominant, and contributed much to the enjoyment of the night, although the first few dances were somewhat marred by the evident unfamiliarity of the leader with the dance tempo in vogue in Oregon City. The officers of the company are to be congratulated on a very successful dance, financially and otherwise.
