At the Portland Theatres

LAST CAR LEAVES FOR OREGON CITY AT MIDNIGHT

Forbes Robertson at Heilige Theatre, January 10, 11, 12 and 13. The noted English actor and his London company will present Jerome K. Jerome's symbolic comedy, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," at the Heilige theatre, Portland, for four nights, beginning next Wednesday, January 10. Matinee Saturday. Seats go on sale Monday.

FORBES-ROBERTSON TO BE HELIG ATTRACTION.

Forbes-Robertson, the greatest of English-speaking actors, has, in his long and notable public career, experienced many different Christmas. This year he was in San Francisco, many thousands of miles from his London home, and many hundreds of miles from his charming wife, Gertrude Elliot, who will be playing in Chicago Christmas Day. Forbes-Robertson, is, however, most philosophical, and, where an actor of far less fame and fortune might be disconsolate at this turn and trick of fate, he is optimistic, bright and cheerful. The question of Christmas time was broached to the great actor a few days ago. The writer wondered what this remarkable man thought of finding himself at the end of the continent at Yuletide. Forbes-Robertson replied: "The first Christmas I spent here was when I came over to this great and hospitable country to play 'Lead' with Mary Anderson a lovely woman and fine actress. Altogether I have spent five happy Christmases in this delightful country, and I think I may say that Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Toronto have all contributed to my happiness at this festive season. One Christmas I spent on the ocean in a liner crossing to New York with my company for 'Love and the Man' but, inappropriately enough, without my wife. That was a fine Christmas crossing five years ago. I was seated by the captain and separated from my company. All of us rose at a given signal and I drank to them across the tables, while they clinked their glasses in sympathetic silence. The solemnity of the sentiment seemed to touch our fellow-passengers, and one old lady burst into tears. Perhaps she was homesick, too! "When at home we always have a gathering of our clan at my house in London, and sometimes with our brothers, sisters, wives and children, we muster a score of happy kith and kin, mostly clad in kilts. But certainly I must give the place of honor for the happiest and most interesting Christmas I have ever spent to that I enjoyed a decade ago with my American bride, Gertrude Elliot, under the blue skies of Biarritz, on the Bay of Biscay, close to the Spanish border—a beautiful country basking in the shadow of the Pyrenees and not far from the scene of Pierre Loti's famous novel, 'Ramuntcho.' But it was not the romantic atmosphere or the glorious sun which made the occasion so memorable to me. The fact is—it was my honeymoon. "I remember that just over the Spanish border stood a great castle, a magnificent pile, far from being in ruins. The palace was for sale and was offered to us for a very reasonable figure. The price included a title, if you please. But Mrs. Forbes-Robertson and I were happy enough as it was, building our own castle in Spain. What need had we for a purchased one?"

Robert Hilliard in "A Fool There Was" at Heilige Theatre. The distinguished actor, Robert Hilliard will present his famous play success, by Porter Emerson Browne, "A Fool There Was," at the Heilige theatre, Portland, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights, January 7, 8, 9. This play is taken from Rudyard Kipling's poem, "The Vampire."

ROBERT HILLIARD

In "A Fool There Was" at the Heilige Theatre. Robert Hilliard comes to the Heilige Theatre corner Seventh and Taylor streets for three nights, commencing Sunday, January 7th, in his only Portland presentation of the curiously fascinating play "A Fool There Was." Mr. Hilliard is now making an ocean to ocean tour under the direction of Klaw & Erlanger, that is bringing him to the northwest for the first time. The phenomenal success of "A Fool There Was," due largely to the power and pathos of Mr. Hilliard's personation, is a matter of stage history. During the past two years he has given it no less than thirteen distinct revivals in various theatres of New York and Brooklyn; six in Philadelphia, and three each in Washington, Pittsburg, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, and other cities. "A Fool There Was" has been pronounced a graphic object lesson in clean living and domestic idleness, and a powerful temperance lesson of vivid import. In his portrait of the diplomat brought to ruin by the vampire woman, depicted in Kipling's grimly satirical poem, Mr. Hilliard has shattered nearly one thousand mirrors, and smashed twice as many wine glasses and brandy bottles. He has fallen down ten thousand feet of stairway—a distance about equal to the highest recorded aviation flight. All this involves great nervous and physical strain. In this very human drama is shown how a man of the highest mentality and social distinction may be brought to absolute ruin through infatuation for a hypnotic woman. The man impersonated by Mr. Hilliard is a distinguished diplomat going abroad upon a government mission. Upon the deck of a big ocean steamer about to sail he meets the vampire woman—a seductive creature all physical allurements. Instantly he falls under her Scene from the famous play of Alaska, "The Barrier," by Rex Beach. At Baker Theatre all week, starting Sunday matinee. Matinees also Wednesday and Saturday.

"THE BARRIER."

Latest Play on Alaska Presented at Baker Theatre. Alaska, the new El Dorado, is the scene chosen by Rex Beach for his great drama, "The Barrier," which comes to the Baker Theatre all this week, starting Sunday, matinee, with other matinees Wednesday (bargain day) and Saturday. This stage success is not, however, the popular conception of Alaska, a place of eternal snow, but the beautiful Northland in summer where the day never ends, and everything suggests the warmth of springtime in this home of the Midnight Sun.

The book has had an enormous sale, and the story in play form held the metropolitan audience of New York for one entire season. Owing to the theatrical war which has raged for some time, the original tour to the Pacific Coast was cancelled but now that peace has been declared Klaw & Erlanger's New Amsterdam theatre success will make its tour appearing here this week at the Baker.

Not Saving Them.

Three men, one a German, were smoking together and talking over the topics of the times. An odor not of cigars detracted somewhat from the interest in the conversation and soon became almost unbearable. The German apparently did not mind it, but the other two men began looking around for the cause of the odor, when one of them discovered that it came from the burning cigar band which their German friend had left on his cigar. "Excuse me, Heinrich," he said. "Your cigar band is burning." "Ach, dank you, old man," the German replied. "I'm not saving dem."—Housekeeper.

VICTORIA FALLS.

The native name for the Victoria falls is the "Smoke That Sounds." The Arabs call them more imaginatively "the end of the world." When a great river suddenly pours over a 400 foot deep precipice and disappears in a 400 foot deep gorge it might well be falling over the edge of the earth into the immensity of unoccupied space.—South Africa.

The Edge of a Windstorm.

A curious example of how sharply the edge of a windstorm may be defined is reported by the captain of a bark. When off Valparaiso, the captain says, a whirlwind came along and passed over the stern of the vessel. A great sea accompanied the wind, and every sail and movable thing on the after part of the ship was carried away. The forward part of the vessel was untouched by the storm, which passed away in the distance, leaving a train of foam in its wake.

spell. His mission is neglected, and his friends abandon him. Then follows the supreme struggle between opposing forces of good and evil. It is in this tense and gripping portrayal that Mr. Hilliard has been acclaimed an actor who gives the best example of tragic art since Richard Mansfield was seen in "A Parisian Romance" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The play has symbolism and vivid contrasts, with moments of comedy and sentiment, and is rich in pictorial stage efforts. The episode of the ocean steamship's departure is fine stage realism.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Separate Traveling Wraps of Wonderful Smartness. Separate wraps for the traveler are an important feature. They are in dark colors, and some have collars and cuffs of bright ratine. In spite of many new popular materials the gowns of soft satin and of crepe meteor still hold their own for elegance and beauty. Frenchwomen are enthusiastic over the fad of using kid trimmings on their outdoor costumes. The kid must be Eyelash Tonic.

To acquire long, thick eyelashes try anointing them with the following tonic: Fifteen grains sulphate of quinine and one ounce of sweet almond oil. This should be applied with a camel's hair brush with extreme care. See that none of the tonic touches the eye itself.

The Last Straw.

Old Money (dying)—I'm afraid I've been a brute to you sometimes, dear. Young Wife—Oh, never mind that, darling. I'll always remember how very kind you were when you left me.—Sydney Bulletin.

Dalny's Harbor.

It is said of Dalny, the chief city and port of Kwangtung province, that it has the finest harbor and wharfs in the far east, vessels drawing up to twenty-eight feet being moored alongside the quay. Goods can be discharged from a ship and placed aboard the freight cars, which run out on to the wharfs, in one operation. While ice forms in the protected parts of the bay at Dalny, it never becomes sufficiently thick to interfere with navigation, so that the port is open the year round, and Dalny being the southern terminus of the main line of the South Manchurian railway, the advantages offered are at once evident.—Argonaut.

Brute.

Poetical Lady—Is there any spot on earth that you long for at times with a great yearning? Mere Man—Yes, there is. When I draw two cards to three aces there is one spot that I yearn for with all my might. But the lady had left him.—Toledo Blade.
