- Postal Telegraph CAN WAIT-BOURNE. WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—While the postmaster general's proposal that the government take over the telegraph lines, which was authorized by the President, has caused general surprise, leading Republican members declared that unless all telegraph tolls are materially lowered there will be a general sentiment in the House in favor of the government taking hold of the systems. Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., chairman of the Senate committee on post-offices and post roads, before which any legislation to carry out Mr. Hitchcock's proposal would go, had this to say this afternoon. "I am unable to understand the declaration alleged to have been made by Postmaster General Hitchcock in favor of government ownership of telegraph lines. When the advocates of an enlargement of our inadequate parcel post service asked for his views some time, he objected to the enactment of a law establishing such a service and asked for an appropriation of $100,000 which he could expend in experiments on a few rural routes and in a few cities. If we cannot enlarge a service we already have without spending $100,000 experimenting, we are certainly in no position to undertake an entirely new service. "Personally, I doubt if the postmaster general authorized the statement attributed to him. Last August it was stated in a Washington paper that he gave an interview saying he had collected data from foreign countries on the subject of the parcels post. I repeatedly requested him to submit the data for use of the Senate committee on postoffices and post roads, but received no response for several weeks, and then Mr. Hitchcock repudiated the interview and admitted that he had not collected the data."

Couldn't Keep it Quiet. Being called to his feet unexpectedly at the gathering and asked to respond informally to the toast "The Ladies," Mr. Giffers hemmed and hawed and began: "My friends, all that I am, all that I have in the world, I owe to a woman—my wife." Here he was interrupted by that lady herself, who arose and said: "I told you when you put the property in my name you'd give it away the first time you opened your mouth."—Judge's Library.
