MR. CARNEGIE'S MISTAKES.

We must admit the truth of the contention that Mr. Carnegie is talking too much. He may find it necessary to do so in wandering away from some unpleasantly direct questions put to him in the last few days in the investigation of the steel trust. Sometimes the most reticent of men, can become the most loquacious when it is necessary to divert attention from a point they are trying to conceal. But even in such emergencies a resourceful man will be careful in his choice of words and the expression of his opinions on irrelevant subjects, all of which are being made a matter of record. Mr. Carnegie is less careful than he might be.

The other day he told of how he once "skinned" Mr. Rockefeller. That sort of thing is not as much admired in this country as it was until a few years ago. Too many of us have discovered that we are less expert than too many others. The game has accordingly lost that popularity it had while every man felt himself capable of taking care of himself in an all-round skinning game. He is not a wise man who boasts himself a better expert than Mr. Rockefeller long ago condemned as far too expert. Mr. Carnegie told the committee that it is much easier to make big money than it is to spend it. This seems very much like "rubbing it in." What will they say in Wall street where

"Young China" In New York Acclaims the New Republic

Photos by American Press Association.

NEW YORK'S Chinese population, while not originally unanimously for the republic, seems to have pretty generally renounced the monarchy and its works. On New Year's day the colony's long pentup enthusiasm burst its bonds and exploded in countless strings of frecklers. Crowds paraded the narrow streets of the quarter, cheering for Sun Yat Sen and bearing the red, white and blue banners of the newly proclaimed republic. The children took a prominent part in the celebration, representing "Young China" in a literal as well as a figurative sense. Those shown in the picture above are the pupils of the Morning Star mission. The other picture is of the altar to Confucius in the joss house, which was specially decorated in honor of the occasion.

These advertisements are enabled to keep pace with advancement, convenience, economy, utility, beauty and style. "Every advertisement bears fruit—some more, others less; but all some. Much depends on the advertiser, a great deal on the advertisement, but all on the medium by which publicity is gained." The circulation and popularity of the newspaper is, of course, the determining factor. That explains the desirability and value of the Morning Enterprise as an advertising medium.

Influence of Advertising. "Are women influenced in buying by newspaper advertising?" The question is an interesting one and it impressed the Nashville Democrat to the extent that it offered a prize for the best 200-word answer. The views of the winner are: "The daily newspaper goes into the home, it fills an intimate place in the everyday life of its readers; it is the cheapest, most convenient, most popular source of general and special information for the public; it is an educator along all lines. "It not only brings to our doors the news of a busy world, its advertisements are the text-book of progress for every woman, be she the society devotee or the thrifty housewife. By woman present will wear some outlandish costume of her own conception, the only restriction being that she must not wear skirts. It will be remembered that San Francisco originated the "Bizzly Bear" and "Texas Tommy," two dances which are much in vogue. City after city have put the taboo on these exhibitions but this form of dancing seems to grow more popular every day.

Bully for that Washington girl who at the last minute summoned up nerve enough to say "No!" when asked by the minister if she was willing "to love honor and obey." 'Tis better for to create a scene at a wedding, than for years and years to put up with a man she did not love.

Tonight the big Commercial Club doings. Remembering the highly successful affair held two months ago, we are looking forward to a very enjoyable time.

The political situation is a little quiet just now compared to two weeks ago. Neither side has much to say—but everyone is expecting "something" to happen when it comes time for the Mayor to sign the warrants for the January salaries of the city officials.

In every town there seem to be a small bunch of men who do all the work when it comes to anything new for the city or the betterment of civic conditions. In our own town we have two men who have actually done more work, spent more of their time and ability to further the interests of Oregon City than any other five men put together. It is simply another case of "working a willing horse to death," and it is time that other men should step in and share the work of these two men. Both of them are Live Wires, one is especially interested in the Publicity Department and the other man is "the" man to sit in the chair of the president of the Commercial Club for the new year.

Shipping strawberry plants to Japan is something that a good many of us never thought of. But in another case of Clackamas county coming to her own. A particular feature of the matter is that it is cheaper to mail 2,000 plants to Japan than it would cost to mail them to Portland.

An examination of the numerous entries in a certain book at the office of the County Clerk leads us to believe that Clackamas county girls realize that this is leap year and are getting in the game early.

The local saloon men are wondering who will run the "thirst emporium" in the new hotel. No new saloons can be started under the present city charter, consequently a local man will be the lucky one to get the choice location.

ENTRIES FOR POULTRY SHOW COMING FAST

M. J. Laselle, manager of the poultry show to be given at the Armory on Friday and Saturday nights, February 2 and 3, has invented collapsible poultry coops that will be used at the show, and no doubt will be found satisfactory to the exhibitors. The larger coops will be used for the turkeys that are to be on exhibition. There are many entries being made by the prominent poultrymen of this city as well as the county and state. Mrs. Chris Hartman, owner of "Hans," a handsome Angora cat, will exhibit this animal, and no doubt will win one of the prizes. "Hans" is about four years old. The Commercial Club Band, with R. V. D. Johnston as leader, is making good headway. Band concert will be given each evening, and before the commencement of the program an open air concert will be given on Main street. There will also be musical selections by some of the leading soloists of the city.

DR. WILEY IS GIVEN CLEAN HEALTH BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the chemistry bureau of the Department of Agriculture, the storm center of the pure food law administration controversy last summer, is given a clean bill of health in the report of the House committee investigating the charges and counter charges. The committee in its report, which will be presented to the House next Monday, sustains Dr. Wiley all along the line except on unimportant technical details. The Republican members of the committee joined with the Democrats in making the report unanimous. The report of the sub-committee was amended in a number of particulars, including its references to the Remsen board, which investigated and passed expert judgment on the greater food problems.

Live Wirelets

A young chap who was born and reared in this city moved with his parents to Portland two weeks ago. This lad thought Portland was all right, but liked Oregon City better, and was so homesick for the "City by the Falls" that he virtually camped at the waiting room at First and Alder streets for the best part of three days, simply to see Oregon City people board the car on their way home. Nearly every merchant in town is advertising big reductions of prices on their merchandise, but their reductions are nothing compared to the reductions Xmas made on our pocket-books. This story of coal shortage in Nome, seems a joke after everyone has been telling us so much about the valuable deposits to be found in various parts of Alaska. Leave it to San Francisco. The newest one is a "pantolon ball." Every

The Wayward Kid

By MARIAN L. GUERNSEY

"You can't most always tell about children," said Farmer Fowler to Deacon Smith. "Some on 'em turns out well and some doesn't. It aint seemed to me that all my children had no use for me except what they could git out of me. There's my oldest boy, John. Seems to me that boy was born contrary."

"I tried all sorts o' ways makin' 'im obedent, but they failed—that is, all sorts o' ways except whippin' 'im. That I don't believe in. I shut 'im up by myself. I deprived 'im of those little things children most wish for. Then I tried kindness. None o' them ways worked with Johnnie."

"How about your other children," asked the deacon, "when they were little?"

"They didn't any of 'em appear to have much sense o' responsibility. If I or their mother was sick and we expected 'em to give up anything they thought o' doin' to help us out they didn't want to do it. Nothing must interfere with any pleasure they laid out for themselves. My youngest boy and my second girl was the best o' the lot. They're with us yet. Billy's a fast rate farm hand, and his sister Ruth is very useful, helpin' her mother with the cookin'."

"What became of Johnnie?"

"Oh, John as he grew older he got a lot of all-fired ridiculous notions in his head and was worse'n when he was a kid. He got an idee that he'd like to be a perfesser in a college. Did y' ever hear o' sich nonsense? He wanted me to spend all the money I could make on the farm to educate him for some useless job, and when I wouldn't do it he got mad and walked away, sayin' I wouldn't hear anything from him ever ag'in unless he'd done somepin' worth doin'."

"After all I'd done for him—keepin' 'im in food and clothes—to treat me that away! I tell you, parents are to be pitied."

"Then you don't think children pay?"

"No, they don't in the long run. When they're little tots they're kind o' cunnin' and have spasms of affection in 'em. But I never could make out whether the spasms of badness or of affection was the principal part o' 'em. Anyway, after all the pains you've had with 'em they're sure about the time you get 'em to be of some use to you to go off, the gals with some feller and the boys with some girl, and you never get any return for your trouble."

"Didn't it pay your father to bring you up?"

"I dunno as it did. I've often thought that maybe it didn't."

The gate clicked, and a well dressed man about thirty came up the walk. The farmer put on his glasses.

"Somepin' familiar about 'im," he remarked. "Seems to me I've seen him before."

"Hello, dad!" said the newcomer. "You don't know me, do you?"

"By gum! You beent Johnny, be you?"

"Certainly I'm Johnny."

"Well, I want to know! Come back to see the old man, eh, my boy? I'm powerful glad to see you." And he folded his arms about his son.

"Yes, I've come back, dad. When I went away I think I must have been a trifle cantankerous. I was determined to learn a lot of things that may seem useless to you. But I've learned them. I'm professor of biology in W. university."

"Do tell! What y' learned, Johnny?"

"Why, I've learned that we are born to nature, and our parents' job is to get nature out of us as fast as they can. We are all animals, only we humans are capable of a higher development than those below us. But in the beginning there's not much difference between us and them. Look at a newborn kitten and you'll see it clawing the air. I've seen a newborn baby doing the same thing. But the kitten grows into a cat, and the baby grows into a man or woman. While the civilized child is developing it is simply getting away from its ancestral inheritance. It has little sense of responsibility, just as the puppy will eat up all the dinner provided for the family if permitted to do so. I dare say, father, you thought me brutal as a boy, and I was brutal, but I was simply obeying a natural, not a refined, law. But I'm doing pretty well now and have come back to look after those I left behind me."

"By gum, Johnny, how you talk! Does biology pay?"

"Not in money, though my published books, my salary and my lectures bring me in a fair income. I've something to spare for you, dad, and mum, and if there's anything I can do for the boys or the girls I'd be glad to know it."

"Well, Johnny boy, I'm powerful glad to see you back. Of all my children you was the most obstinate, but you've got there, John, and I'm glad of it. You've topped the bull lot of us."

"And the reason he got there," remarked the deacon, "was that very obstinacy. If he'd been the obedient child you would have liked him to be he'd been doin' work not much better than a horse can do."

"But that time is passin' away," said the professor. "Farming is now a science. I've come back to look into the matter of taking it up on the new basis."

He did take it up scientifically and made himself and his parents rich.

A FRIEND.

There are two elements that go to the composition of friendship, each so sovereign that I detect no superiority in either, no reason why either should be the first named. One is truth. A friend is a person with whom I can be sincere. The other element of friendship is tenderness. When a man becomes dear to me I have touched the goal of fortune.—Emerson.

NOTICES.

Summons. In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Clackamas. Akiyo Shigemori, Plaintiff vs. M. Shigemori, Defendant. In the Name of the State of Oregon: You, M. Shigemori, are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you herewith on or before Tuesday the 5th day of March, 1912, that day being six weeks from the first publication of the summons herein, and if you fail to appear and answer herein, plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief prayed for in her complaint to which reference is hereby made and more particularly as follows: For a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between plaintiff and defendant on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment; for a decree granting to the plaintiff the sole care, custody and control of the two minor children, to-wit: Yasu, a daughter aged 8 years and Shizu, a daughter aged 11 years; for a decree granting to plaintiff the right to resume her maiden name that of Akiyo Shigemori; for a decree granting to plaintiff her costs and disbursements herein and for such other sum as the court may adjudge reasonable herein; for a decree granting such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just and proper in the premises.

This summons is served upon you by publication thereof for not less than six successive weeks in the Oregon City Enterprise published in the county of Clackamas, state of Oregon and by order of the Honorable Judge J. U. Campbell, judge of the above entitled Court which order is dated the 18th day of January, 1912.

The date of the first publication of this summons is Saturday the 20th day of January, 1912, and the date of the last publication of this summons is Saturday the 2nd day of March, 1912.

MORRIS A. GOLDSTEIN, Attorney for Plaintiff, 607-8 Lumbermen's Building, Portland, Oregon.

POTATO GROWERS ARE URGED TO SELL

There is a strong effort being made by buyers to ship out some of the heavy crop of Oregon potatoes that remains at present in the hands of Willamette valley growers. As high as $1.25 per cent is now said to be offering for No. 1 selected Gresham or other eastern Uniform-Clackamas Burbanks. Growers are not offering this grade to any extent, most of them being content of still higher prices to come at a later date. On the other hand there seems to be a slight weakening of the holding of ordinary quality potatoes at Willamette Valley points. As a rule buyers are bidding around $1 per cent for these, f. o. b. country shipping points. The onion market is firmer all along the coast. Local growers are very firm in their views and it is likely that the minimum will be advanced to $1.75 per cent at country points at the meeting of the Confederated Onion Growers Association in Portland. As growers are not willing to sell at the minimum formerly established at $1.50, the trade is inclined to the opinion that much trouble would be removed if the minimum was placed at the value where stock could really be obtained. Otherwise the quotation would have no real meaning.

Prevailing Oregon City prices are as follows: DRIED FRUITS—(Buying)—Prunes on basis of 6 1/4 pounds for 45-50's. Fruits, Vegetables.

HIDES—(Buying)—Green hides, 5c to 6c; salted, 5 to 6c; dry hides, 12c to 14c; sheep pelts, 25c to 75c each. Hay, Grain, Feed.

HAY—(Buying)—Timothy $12 to $15; clover, $8 to $9; oat hay, best, $9 to $10; mixed, $9 to $12; alfalfa, $15 to $16.50.

OATS—(Buying)—Gray, $27 to $28; wheat, $28 to $29; oil meal, $53; Shady Brook dairy feed, $1.25 per 100 pounds.

FRED—(Selling)—Shorts, $26; rolled barley, $39; process barley, $40; whole corn, $38; cracked corn, $40; bran $25.

FLOUR—$4.50 to $5.25. Butter, Poultry, Eggs.

POULTRY—(Buying)—Hens, 10c to 11c; spring, 10 to 11c, and roosters, 8c.

GETTING RICH

A few get rich quickly, but it is generally done on the installment plan. That means spending less than one earns and increasing the bank balance step by step. Many a man has lost what he accumulated by trying to be his own banker. It's hard to accumulate money out of a bank. Open an account here and be on the safe side.

One Hundred Miles an Hour In an Aeroplane

By WALTER BROOKINS, Aviator

AEROPLANES VERY SOON WILL BE ABLE TO MAKE FROM NINETY TO A HUNDRED MILES AN HOUR, WHERE THEY NOW MAKE FROM FIFTY TO SIXTY MILES. THEY WILL BE ABLE TO MAKE LONG VOYAGES OVER SEAS, TO ALIGHT IN THE OCEAN, START AGAIN FROM THE WATER AND "TRIM SAIL" AFLOAT IN THE AIR.

We need aeroplanes that can stay aloft at twenty miles an hour and under, and if we get them in a condition to do that and then can reef in the sail spread after we get up we can send them to ONE HUNDRED MILES AN HOUR on the present engine development. A single aeroplane capable of running at twenty and then at one hundred miles an hour—how would that be for a development? Wouldn't it make the automobile look sick?

The railroad train doesn't haul the load of the steamship. Yet as between steamships and railroads we prefer the latter where speed is requisite. We are now facing a chance to go between fixed points at from SEVENTY-FIVE TO ONE HUNDRED MILES AN HOUR OVER THE SHORTEST POSSIBLE ROUTE, and we must not belittle the aeroplane's capacity.

When we can see these things ahead of us it amazes us.
