"I was helpless from the giant disease Rheumatism. I managed to make my way on crutches to the Everett Theater, when Dr. Madison called for crutches. I went to the platform and he treated me for 30 minutes, after which I walked off the stage and went home without crutches. I went to work for B. H. Vollans on March 1, and feel fine. I was treated February 25, 1909.

"C. E. SMITH,
"Everett, Wash."

"I was on crutches for four and a half years. Dr. Madison treated me at the Everett Theater on Thursday night, February 26, 1909, and he broke my crutches and I walked out of the theater. I continue to walk without the aid of the crutches and am feeling fine.

New Stock Journal Has Bright Future

With the entrance of the Western Stock Journal into the field of trade journalism stock breeders and those interested in livestock have an excellent medium for representation. The February issue of the Western Stock Journal, just off the press, is the first in the life of this new trade paper and if the high standard, both as to print and material is maintained there seems little doubt as to its unequalled success.

The pages contain many valuable articles on livestock and stock conditions which should prove a decided help to the breeder. Special subjects are treated by experts in the livestock business under their own signatures and the wide field covered by the Journal includes all species of livestock.

The Western Stock Journal is devoted exclusively to livestock and stock breeding and is the only journal on the Pacific Slope confining its attention to stock breeding alone. The particular territory throughout which the Western Stock Journal circulates embraces the states of Oregon Washington, Idaho, Montana and California. These Pacific states are rapidly developing the stock industry and the peculiarly favorable climatic and soil conditions render this territory ideal for stock breeding.

The hog breeding branch of the livestock industry is perhaps more marked in its advance than any other. Particularly is this true of the Poland-China variety. Cattle, sheep horses, and goats all thrive and the raising of this class of stock is forging rapidly ahead. All of these various kinds of livestock are most amply treated in the columns of the Western Stock Journal in a forceful and intelligent manner.

A feature that is new and which will prove of unquestionable value to all stockmen, is a Law Department. This is a treatise in itself and will be one of the salient features of the Journal. The editorials are strong and to the point, dealing entirely with livestock and what should be done to better the various breeds.

The Journal is profusely illustrated with pictures of stock which adds much to the value of the printed matter.

The Western Stock Journal had its inception at the State Fair held at Salem last year when stockmen discussed the launching of an organ devoted to stock breeding only, a Journal that would be representative of the livestock industry. The question has been finally settled and several stockmen have pooled and are supporting the Western Stock Journal financially, thus insuring its permanency.

The Western Stock Journal is essentially an Oregon product from its inception to its appearance in the journalistic field. It had its birth in Oregon and its home is at Oregon City where it is published, with temporary offices in the Andresen block.

The Journal is beautifully printed and the artistic arrangement of the material is unusual for a trade Journal. Stockmen or those who are interested in a new home city publication may obtain a sample copy by addressing the Western Stock Journal, Oregon City, or calling at the office in the Andresen block; the Journal will be on sale at the news stands within the week.

The advent of the Western Stock Journal fills a long felt want of the stock breeders, they never having enjoyed an organ devoted alone to their interests.

The Enterprise welcomes the Western Stock Journal and wishes it success in this field of the Pacific Northwest, the great and growing livestock industry, which has long needed representation through a medium of its own.

MEXICAN DEMAND FOR WHEAT IS GROWING

Practically 3,000 tons of wheat have already been sold direct from Portland to Mexican millers and the probabilities are for a continuation of a moderate demand until June 1, when the new crop of that country will be available.

Business in the wheat market with Mexico is entirely confined to small lots, sales as a rule being for lots of 5,000 to 10,000 tons.

Wheat was holding firm locally, although it was weak and lower elsewhere. Foreign markets were again down and this had an effect upon the trade on the Atlantic seaboard. Conditions on the coast are entirely different, owing to the huge flour orders to be filled.

Flour market was unchanged, both as to price and demand. New business is coming forward very slowly from the orient on account of the high price asked. No change has been made in patent.

Oats market is holding firm, but conditions and the price remain unchanged. Millstuffs are firm and scarce. No change in prices.
