WHEN PLAYERS PLAYED MEAN TRICK ON FERRIS.

"At the close of one season, when the Boston Americans swept everything before them," said Jess Tannehill. "John I. Taylor told the management of a big hotel where we were stopping to give us unlimited credit for anything we might desire. I never knew whether John I. was sorry afterward or not, but the bill that was handed him footed up $3,000. Everybody had champagne unlimited, and Hobe Ferris put five quarts of the golden wine into a suit case. Chick Stahl, myself and three other players waited till it was almost time for Hobe to take the train for home. Then we deftly snaked the five quarts out of the suit case and refilled it with bricks. Hobe, who wanted to take the stuff home with him, never opened the suit case on the train, probably for fear the sight of the five quarts would make him thirsty and force him to break into the supply. When he arrived and proudly opened the suit case to display his trophies there was an interesting scene, though we could never get Hobe to give us the full details."

FIGHTERS SPRING FROM HUMBLE ORIGIN MOSTLY.

Most boxers sprang from lowly positions. Young Corbett used to earn $8 a week before he fought McGovern. Terry himself was a poor newsboy when picked up by Sam Harris, who made a champion out of him. Jeffries was earning $15 a week in California as a handy man in a boiler shop when Billy Delaney took hold and made a fighter of him. Bob Fitzsimmons did not have more than one suit of clothes when he came to this country from Australia. Jim Corbett left a good position in a Frisco bank to seek honors in the ring, but there were few like him. Sharkey, Gardner, Ryan, Erne and many other flat stars were all poor at the time of starting out for pugilistic honors. Following is a list of other well known fighters and their former vocations: Heavyweights.—Gus Ruhlin, pressman; Peter Maher, cooper; Tom Sharkey, sailor; Kid McCoy, farmer; Jim Jeffords, miner; Joe Choynski, candy maker; Denver Ed Martin, porter; Bob Armstrong, teamster.

YANKEE PLAYERS TALLEST.

Eleven Members of New York Americans Are Over Six Feet in Height. The New York American league baseball team will go through the season of 1912 with the highest average in one respect at least—of any big league club. It will include more tall players than any other team. As Manager Wolverton figures it, there are eleven men in the Yankee squad who stand over six feet in height. The giants of the squad and their heights are: Shears, 6.4; McConnell, 6.3; Sweeney, 6.2; Knight, 6.2; Vaughn, 6.2; Caldwell, 6.1; Appleby, 6.1; Stump, 6.1; Clarke, 6; Upham, 6; Williams, 6.

CAPRON MAY JOIN PIRATES.

Minnesota Football Star Offered Contract to Sign by Barney Dreyfuss. George Capron, the star quarterback of the University of Minnesota, has been offered a contract to play with the Pittsburgh Pirates next season. Barney Dreyfuss sent Capron a contract with the salary line blank and requested him to fill in the amount he thought he would be worth. Capron has been an all around star at Minnesota for several years, his work on the baseball and football teams stamping him as one of the greatest athletes ever turned out in the middle west.

International Regatta. The second of the international regattas of Europe will next season be sailed in German waters, at Kiel, June 26 and 27. Last summer the first of these international affairs was sailed in British waters.

HABITS.
Nothing is easier to form than a habit. The first action breaks a path through an untrodden wilderness, the next widens it, the third makes a trodden highway. To beware of an evil habit is as important as to form a good one.

HOP MARKET FIRM WITH BETTER DEMAND

There is a much firmer tone to the hop market, and orders are coming forward at an advance of 1 to 2c a pound over previous ones. The present showing of strength is the first real sign of a revived trade that the market has shown for some time. It signifies that brewers really need remaining supplies, and are being forced to pay for them, as shorts can not deliver.

Market for hop contracts is firmer than ever before, but growers are still holding aloof. Some dealers expect liberal contracting during the first part of March, but in other quarters the predictions are being made that a smaller percentage of the crop will be contracted during 1912 than ever before.

Regarding the outlook for hops a mail advice from New York says: "There are increasing evidences that the long spell of cold weather has considerably lessened the sale of beer throughout the country, and this in turn has kept brewers from buying hops, except in cases where they required a few for current needs. Dealers have also held off because they found no opportunity to sell and the movement has been so slight that the market has continued in a somewhat depressed, weak condition. As a rule there has not been sufficient pressure to sell to require any marked change in values, and yet it seems quite probable that some further concessions would be made if larger business would result. Country markets are lifeless. Growers in New York state have modified their asking rates somewhat, but find no one interested in buying at present. Mail advices from Germany indicate that the markets on the continent are in a similar condition to our market."
