

TONGUE AND LEVINGS DENOUNCE EACH OTHER

PROSECUTOR DENIES CHARGE OF HINDERING HILL MURDER PROBE—NO ACTION TAKEN

District Attorney E. B. Tongue was under fire for more than two hours Saturday afternoon before the Clackamas County Court, which had requested his presence at a conference, having for its primary purpose the solution of the mystery surrounding the killing of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hill and their two children at Ardenwald last summer. Mr. Tongue engaged in a number of verbal tilts with Sheriff Mass and Detective L. L. Levings of Portland, and the lie was passed a score of times.

The conference, however, was fruitless. At the outset County Judge Beatie explained its purpose as being calculated to assist the District Attorney in ferreting out the murderer and even offered to appoint a special prosecutor at the expense of the county, but Mr. Tongue evidently did not receive this suggestion with favor for he never referred to it during the entire afternoon. There were present at the hearing Judge Beatie, Commissioners Blair and Mattoon, District Attorney Tongue, Deputy District Attorney Stipp, Sheriff Mass and Detective Levings.

Mr. Tongue immediately plunged into a caustic criticism of the methods employed by Sheriff Mass and Detective Levings in attempting, as he expressed it, to influence the grand jury to bring in an indictment against Nathan B. Harvey, the wealthy Milwaukee nurseryman, who was arrested on a charge of having murdered the Hill family and who was released upon preliminary examination of Justice of the Peace Samson.

"Levings took liberties," said the District Attorney. "In telling his story to the grand jury he read letters said to have been written to the District Attorney that the District Attorney never got. He has said in this investigation, 'Now I know my duty and I do not care if Levings is not satisfied, I do not care who it suits and I do not care who it does not suit. I do not care to please or displease anybody and I only seek to bring out the facts. Levings told me a long while ago that the grand jury was anxious to indict Harvey. He told me that he and Sheriff Mass had been working for months on the case and had not got very far and he wanted me to have Harvey indicted, for if Harvey's indictment came as a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, Levings

TROOPS ARE READY TO INVADE MEXICO

UNITED STATES SOLDIERS TO CROSS BORDER IF NECESSARY.

PATROL IS RAPIDLY REINFORCED

Manifesto Accuses President Taft of Being Responsible For Trouble—Orozco Called Loyal.

EL PASO, Feb. 24.—Four troops of United States cavalry tonight patrol the Rio Grande with orders to cross into Ciudad Juarez, if necessary, to protect American life and property.

With the 22d Infantry and three companies of artillery entrained at San Antonio for this city, and at least 1,000 Vasquistas at Baucha, 14 miles south of Juarez, the situation generally is considered the most critical since the recent outbreak in Chihuahua.

The troops at Baucha are commanded by Colonel Inez Salazar, who, it is understood, will demand formally the surrender of Juarez tomorrow morning. It hardly is believed any show of resistance will be made as Juarez is garrisoned only by about 100 men.

That General Pasqual Orozco will remain loyal to Madero is the statement contained in a message tonight from Governor Gonzalez to Mexican Consul Enrique C. Lorente in El Paso. Lorente also declared he had received advice that Antonio Rojas and Braulio Hernandez, rebel leaders, had been captured, but further confirmation was unobtainable.

Anticipating unexpected developments, Juarez residents tonight moved their portable effects to the American side.

United States and Mexican secret service operatives and Texas rangers late today seized a manifesto issued by Gonzalo Enrile, former Mexican Consul at Brussels. The manifesto makes an attack on the President of the United States, accusing him of "being responsible for the troubles of Mexico and Latin America."

It was designed for circulation tonight in Juarez and Northern Mexico. Officers are searching tonight for Gonzalo Enrile.

The manifesto in part says: "There have been so many bad acts in Mexico caused by your great efforts at expansion and domination, that it would be a crime of lese patrie to suffer them in silence longer. You have created, fomented and consummated the revolution which placed in power the traitor who is giving you our country. Your troops have invaded our territory. In the name of the Monroe doctrine you put at half-mast the flags of your sister republics. You appropriated Hawaii, you took the Panama Canal zone. The Cubans did not blow up the Maine. Spain did not. Wall street did with its imperialism. This crime was called 'William McKinley,' and he paid the penalty by a bullet of Czolgoz."

King George V. and His Bag Of Tigers In the Jungle

KING GEORGE V. is said to be one of the three best shots in England. From the reports of his bag of tigers in the jungles of Nepal one may judge that he lived up to his reputation during his recent hunting trip in that Indian state. Thirty-four tigers were shot by the party, and twenty-four were killed by the king. This looks as if some of his party had been better courtiers than sportsmen, but their politeness in letting his majesty shoot first has nothing to do with the accuracy of his aim, and nobody is likely to question the claims to nimrodship of any man who has killed two dozen tigers, even though he shot from the back of an elephant as towering as the one on which the king-emperor is seen in our illustration.

JAGGAR DEPOSITS CHECK FOR $115,000

ROADMASTER LEAVES FORTUNE IN BANK AND GOES ABOUT BUSINESS.

Frank Jaggar, Road Master of Clackamas county, and recognized throughout Oregon as one of the best road builders in the country, did something Saturday that was never done before in the city—he deposited a check in the Bank of Oregon City for $115,000. Many large checks have been deposited in the two gibraltars of finance here, but for the amount of money involved Mr. Jaggar has carried off the palm.

The staid road master walked calmly into the bank early Saturday morning. He notified a salutation to the tellers and clerks and they replied in kind, just as they had done hundreds of times before.

"I want to make a little deposit," said Mr. Jaggar. He had made out his slip, but passed a minute to endorse the check. It wouldn't do to endorse a check like that before reaching the bank. It might be lost. An indorsed check is legal tender.

The deposit book, check and slip were handed to the teller, an entry was made in the book, and with a "good-bye," "nice day," Mr. Jaggar disappeared into the bank to the hand of a friend on the street who never made more than $2 a day in his life.

It would be giving away secrets to say that after Mr. Jaggar left the bank the check was the cynosure of all eyes in the financial institution, but it is supposed such was the case. And, it is whispered, that when it became noised about that a check of such magnitude had been left in this city half the population clamored to get a peek at it. But nothing doing—the banking business is sacred, as of course a check for $115,000 cool samoleons.

Theodore B. Wilcox, president of the Portland Flouring Mills, bought from the Jaggar estate for $230,000 cash the 50x100 foot lot on the southeast corner of West Park and Washington streets, Portland. The lot was owned many years by Benjamin Jaggard and Louis W. Jaggard, the commission merchant. The part of the money derived from the sale deposited here by Mr. Jaggar was that belonging to the Benjamin Jaggard estate.

CONGRESSMAN HAWLEY WIRES ACTION OF COMMITTEE TO COMMERCIAL CLUB—QUICK WORK EXPECTED.

B. T. McBain, president of the Commercial Club, W. A. Huntley, George C. Brownell, Mayor Dimick, Col. C. H. Dye, H. E. Cross and other residents of this county received telegrams Saturday night from Congressman Hawley announcing that the Rivers and Harbors' Committee had adopted the proposition to dredge the river between this city and Portland so as to give a six-foot depth at the lowest stage of the water. It is believed that the report of the committee

Ethel Rief	Oregon City	1,000
John Halechos	Oregon City	1,000
Fred Metzner	Oregon City	1,000
Frank Bruce	Canemah	1,000

With twenty candidates representing every part of the county against him, Joseph Sheahan, in the first six days of the Enterprise Grand Automobile Contest has polled more than 15,000 votes, which sets a new record for the first week of any newspaper contest ever held in this county. While most of those nominated have been waiting to see who their opponents were before getting out to work, there are more than a dozen entered so far who will make a hard, fast, fight for the $785 automobile. With the contest barely a week old there are known to be thousands of votes that have been issued which have been held back for a future date by the different contestants.

The leader of the race, Joseph Sheahan is a hustler from way back and he declares that he is in the race to be at the top of the list from the start to the finish. Joe knows automobiles too, and he says the Ford that goes to the winner is well worth every effort that will have to be made to be declared the winner.

E. L. Shaw the local chief of police, who is the bone of contention in the Mayor-Council wrangle, is also out to see the race to a successful finish, that is, successful to Shaw. He doesn't have very much to say, but the people of this city who have stood by him now have an opportunity of showing their allegiance in a substantial way and it is a foregone conclusion that he will be a hard man to beat.

Miss Ruby McCord, one of the most popular young women of this city, thus far stands third, and if determination counts for anything Miss McCord will be the lucky person the first of June. From the number of subscriptions turned in by her and the number of votes cast to date it is evident she is holding back a large number for future use.

Now that all the names of those so far entered in the contest have been announced, the coming week will see every entrant settle down to good hard work. A brand new automobile is a prize that attracts every one, and the outcome is a matter of speculation throughout the county. Any person regardless of age or sex may enter the race and right now is the opportune time to send in your name. The nomination blanks will appear but few times more and as every candidate nominated with a blank receives 1,000 free votes as a starter, it is to your interest to enter at once. Every ten days a special contest will be held, a valuable prize to be awarded the candidate receiving the most votes in that time. The first of these "ten-day contests" closes March first, and while Sheahan is in the lead so far the remaining five days will no doubt bring about several sensational changes in the standing of the candidates. But the candidates who receive the most votes between last Monday and March first will receive a $15 merchandise certificate on one of the local stores.

Every vote will be counted in the contest for the automobile, but these special prizes are given only for votes cast during the specified time. Regardless of the opportunity of one of the contestants winning the automobile, these special prizes are themselves worth every exertion on the part of the entrants. That this fact is realized by the candidates themselves is evident by the statements of some of them that the special prizes were particularly what they desire to win regardless of winning the big prize.

There is room for you in this contest, whether you are a man, woman, boy and girl. Work will bring results and if you are willing to spend some of your time in securing subscriptions to the Weekly or Daily Enterprise, you can at least win one of the special prizes. Votes are given on every subscription, for either paper, subscriptions to start at any time. The work is easy and the rewards good, so send in your name today.

ARDENWALD CITIZENS TERROR-STRICKEN

"The people of Ardenwald are in a condition of continual terror," said Edward Barnes, a wealthy resident of that place, who came to Oregon City to tell the County Court the feeling that generally prevails about the scene of the Hill murders.

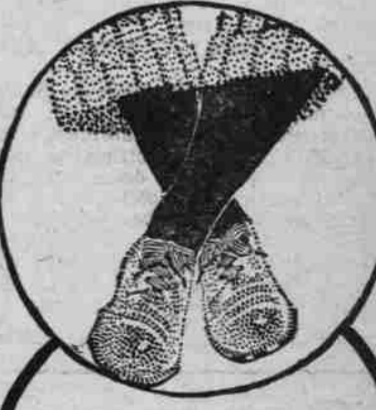

"The finger of suspicion is pointed at a man who lives in the vicinity," said Mr. Barnes, "and without intimating that he is guilty of the horrible crime, I most emphatically declare that something should be done to relieve the tension. It is no exaggeration to say that during the last six months the Ardenwald people have not had a normal night's sleep. They have read so much of this case in the newspapers and have talked to each other about it until their nerves are unstrung.

"About ten days ago Mr. Harvey came to my house about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and when my wife and daughter, who were alone in the house, saw him approaching the latter went into a fit of hysteria and Mrs. Barnes locked the doors. When Harvey knocked, she talked to him through a window screen. His errand was seemingly peaceable enough, for he only wanted to know the whereabouts of an old step-ladder that he said a former renter on my place had borrowed of him. My wife knew nothing about the ladder and told him so and he went away but not without asking her if she had locked the door, and when she said she had, he made no rejoinder.

"This feeling is general. The country around Ardenwald is beautiful, but this terrible crime has completely stopped its progress. Before the Hill murder I was offered $35,000 for my place and I did not want to sell, but now I doubt if I could get $25,000.

"Some of the Ardenwald people have been unable to stand the strain and have moved from the place. Others would like to move, but they do not want to be forced away from their homes through a condition for which they are in no manner responsible.

"If anyone should go to a house at Ardenwald at night and knock the door would probably not be opened, unless the identity of the visitor was at first ascertained, and even if the door should be opened, the person requesting admittance would be covered

L. ADAMS Oregon City's Big Department Store

Buy Your Ownself A Present

There are a lot of people who buy presents right and left for their friends, but never think of buying presents for themselves.

Of course, there is no pleasant association connected with the ownership of jewelry that you got for yourself, but the article you have bought is sure to please. When you buy for others, you are not sure of their wants and when they buy for you they have to guess at what will please you.

Come in and let us show you jewelry suited to your own fancy; jewelry that is genuinely good; that is priced within reach of any purse; that you can buy with the nickels and dimes you spend foolishly every week. Remember, it is better to buy yourself a watch, ring or locket even though you consider it a luxury, than to carelessly spend money and get nothing in return, as people so frequently do.

Drop in and see our many beautiful jewels—rings, lockets, pins, brooches, card cases, watches—in fact, everything that is sold at jewelry stores. We guarantee our goods to be exactly as represented or we will refund your money.
