Repudiated National Debts.

Spain, at one time by far the most powerful of European nations, was the earliest power to contract a national debt, which in 1556 only amounted to the modest sum of £1,000,000. By 1610 it had grown to £40,000,000 under Philip III., after whose death the whole of it was repudiated.

. France in 1643 began to incur her debt, chiefly through the wars of Louis XIV, and the invish expenditure in building Versailles. In the later years of Louis XVI, this amounted to £408. 000,000, only to be repudiated on the establishment of the republic, when some creditors received 33 per cent and others nothing.

By EDWARD L SPENCER

I was brought up in luxury, but without father, mother, brother or sister. When I became six years old and was still kept from going about with other boys nature rebelled against not having playmates, and those who were responsible for me were obliged to make some provision in that direction.

I lived in the house in which I was born, my father having died before and my mother at the time of my birth. I knew nothing about this, being taken care of by a Mrs. Perkins. One day she brought into my playroom a girl about my own age and told me she had a little sister for me. At that age I felt no great surprise as to the existence of a sister, though I remember asking some questions as to why I had never seen her before. I would have preferred a brother, but was nevertheless delighted to be relieved of my loneliness, and from that time forward my life was very different from what it had been.

Lucy was my sister's name, and since we were kent from other children we grew very much attached to each other. I was a fiery little fellow, while Lucy was of the quiescent kind. She was always soothing me. There was a good deal of the boy in me or I might have become effeminate, playing as I did all the while with a girl. I much as I would had I not become so much attached to Lucy.

The reason why I was kept so close at home was that my mother, knowing that she must leave me to the care of others, had manifested to Mrs. Perkins, who was to bring me up, a fear that I would learn "badness" from my associates, which she, my mother, would not be with me to counteract. Had it not been for a strong musculine nature in me I would have been spoiled as a result of this motherly timidity. Mrs. Perkins engaged tutors for me and for Lucy as well, and, being educated alone, when we were fifteen years old we knew as little about the world as when we had been just brought together.

It was at this time that Lucy and I began to discuss our situation. Why was it that we had no parents like other children? Why had we never met till we were about six years old? These and other similar questions came up for discussion, and we asked Mrs. Perkins for answers to them. But she evaded giving direct answers, and we were no wiser than we were before All we could get out of her was, "When you come of age you will know all about it."

When I was in my sixteenth year 1 was sent to boarding school, where I prepared for college, Lucy being sent at the same time to a girls' seminary. I was dreadfully homesick for Lucy, and she wrote me that she suffered the same for me. During my stay at school there was no one to tell me anything about myself more than I knew. Two years after that I went to college, and the period in which I was born over which seemed to hang a veil began to interest me. I was old enough to make an investigation, but when Mrs. Perkins said I would know all about it when I was twenty-one I preferred to wait. One thing especially deterred me, a dread lest I should find out something I would rather not know. While I was at college Lucy discovered what was being kept from us, but clothing of all kind cleaned, pressed she did not tell me. I carse home one vacation during my senior year at college and met her there. I threw my arms about her and kissed her, as I had been accustomed to do at our meetings, and was surprised to see a blush on her cheeks. I wondered at the time what it meant, but it soon passed out of my mind.

However, from this time I noticed a great change in Lucy's treatment of me. She seemed constrained. I was telling her one day of a girl friend of 1, to be finished September 1, 1912. mine who I liked very much. Lucy looked serious. I persisted in sounding ject any or all bids. A certified my friend's praises, and Lucy suddenly got up to leave the room. I caught her and, pulling her down beside me, faith. Plans and specifications can told her that she need not fear for my be had of G. S. Rogers at Runyon deserting her for a sweetheart or a wife, for I would never marry and did not see how I could bear to have her marry. This seemed to satisfy her, and she smiled at me through her

I was twenty-one years old a month after being graduated from college. A lawyer had notified me that he would call on me on my birthday, and he did so. Lucy and I were both at home. The lawyer said he wished to see us together and told the secret. My past or most of it has been told. Lucy's was as follows:

Her father died when she was two years old and her mother when she was three. Our mothers were sisters enjoying an undivided fortune. They had arranged that we should be brought up together and for each other. The fact of our being kept in ignorance that we were cousins was that in the beginning of our intimacy Mrs. Perkins had told me she had a little sister for me. She thought nothing of it at the time, but put off telling us the truth till we had grown to an age at which she did not like to disabuse our minds. Besides this, she thought the plan of our mothers to unite us when we came of age would be best served by our being kept in ignorance of the truth.

The will of my mother and of Lucy's mother expressed a wish that we should marry. And we did.

Along with the Egyptian motifs think I did not miss boy associates as popular in trimmings and fabric designs are the Turkish toweling effects and the crashes, over which Paris is most enthusiastic.

The Norfolk jacket is a becoming one to young girls, and the coat pictured is of this type with new and attractive features. It is made of corduroy and is wonderfully good either for a separate wrap or to be worn with a corduroy skirt.

Three Vital Reasons

"I want to give every person not using electric light THREE vital reasons why the MAZDA LAMP should make them have their house, store, office or factory wired.

FIRST:

The MAZDA LAMP gives nearly THREE TIMES THE LIGHT of the ordinary carbon incandescent.

SECOND:

It COSTS NO MORE to burn.

THIRD:

The QUALITY of light is vastly superior -- a clear white light like sun rays."
