

CALLAHAN TELLS OF A REMARKABLE PLAY.

There have been a lot of stories written about the freak plays of Ty Cobb and other stars, but nothing they ever did in that line compares with the feat of Frank McNichols, according to Jimmy Callahan. Callahan told of it recently.

Cal was one day playing short for the Logan Squares, with McNichols on first. Owens was umpiring in the center of the diamond and had unwittingly dropped a ball. Chick Fraser, who was pitching, sent a fast one to the batter. He hit it. The ball jumped by Fraser on the ground and hit the lost ball behind the box. The hit ball jumped to Callahan at short, and the other ball went to third, where the player there corralled it. Both fielders tossed fiercely to first base, where Frank McNichols was stationed. Callahan's throw was wide and to the right of the first baseman. The third baseman's throw was low and to the left of the playing line. McNichols got them both.

ONE BILLIARD SHOT COST DE ORO $2,450.

Billiards becomes more expensive than joy riding when one shot costs $2,450.

Yes, verily, friends, it's a gentleman's game at that price.

Alfredo De Oro, the veteran Cuban billiard and pool player, is telling his friends how he made the most expensive shot ever recorded on the green cloth.

In his recent match with John Daly in New York, a match that did not involve the title, De Oro was playing for a side bet of $1,000, with a purse of $500 added by the house. The expenses were deducted from this, leaving exactly $2,450 for the winner.

In the third and last block of the match De Oro needed two points when Daly needed only one to win. It was De Oro's turn to shoot. The position of the ivory is shown in the diagram.

De Oro had what promised to prove an easy shot, a force follow to the cushion with enough English to get the corner cushions and complete the billiard. Without a second's hesitation he clicked off the point—rather he thought he did.

Referee Tom Gallagher then put in his oar and declared that De Oro didn't make the shot. There was an explosion with the Cuban as the storm center. De Oro wailed and whooped, but old Tom Gallagher declared that the shot had not been made.

"Gallagher was the only man in the house who didn't see the shot," declared De Oro recently. "I was so sore at his decision that I blew up entirely, and, although Daly missed his next try, I couldn't get going, and I lost the match, 150 to 148. I should have won. Had Gallagher allowed that point I had perfect position for the final shot. Gallagher's oversight cost exactly $2,450."

TWO GOOD MARATHON MEN.

Kolehmainen and Bouin Likely to Press Americans in Olympics.

William Kolehmainen, winner of the Edinburgh Powderhall Marathon run, had no great success during his visit to America a year ago. His brothers Hannes and Tatu are amateurs, while William is a professional. Hannes Kolehmainen is one of the greatest distance runners developed in years. With Jean Bouin of France, Hannes is likely to make some of the United States runners hustle at Stockholm.

Hannes won a four mile championship at Stamford Bridge, England, last July in 20 minutes 3 3-5 seconds. He holds all the Finnish records from 800 meters to 5,000 meters. At the last Finnish track and field championships Hannes won both the 5,000 and 10,000 meter events, his brother Tatu finishing second in both races. Tatu is the oldest of the brothers.

KENNARD IS SOME SWIMMER.

To Prove This Will Try Boston Light Test Next Summer.

Victor Kennard, the former Harvard university football player and athlete, has joined the New York Athletic club and announces that he will try for the all around Amateur Athletic union championship next summer and also take up long distance swimming.

Kennard, who kicked the field goal for Harvard that beat Yale at New Haven in 1908, thinks he can swim to the Boston light and will attempt the feat.

Walsh Greatest Pitcher, Says Schulte.

"I could always get a hit or two against Mathewson," remarked Frank ("Home Run") Schulte to a party of friends after the Sox had beaten the Cubs four straight, "but against that big fellow Walsh that pill looks like a pea. He is the best ever."

40-POUND CHINOOK CAUGHT.

The largest Chinook salmon caught in the Willamette near this city this season was caught by Carl Rothe Monday night. It weighed forty pounds. The salmon was purchased by the Brown fish market and there was a big demand for the slices. The fish was hung for several hours in front of the market and attracted much attention.

For Tired Nerves.

After a trying afternoon in the shops or at business take a hot lemonade with a dash of pineapple fruit sirup and you will be surprised at the revival of energy and general relaxation it affords. If the drink is taken at a soda fountain be careful not to get chilled when going out of doors. Hot lemonade opens the pores of the skin and causes one to be particularly sensitive to cold.

No complexion lotion has been found equal in beneficial results to lemon juice. The juice should be applied after the face is carefully bathed in hot water and a pure mild soap to remove all particles of dust and grime. If contact with the face causes a stinging sensation, as it is sure to do, it is merely tangible evidence that the lemon is doing its work.

The juice should be gently massaged into the face until dry and should be allowed to remain overnight. In the morning bathe it off with warm water and the merest hint of soap and apply a greaseless cream and pure rice powder as a soothing influence and a protection from the cold.

Skin blemishes, such as pimples, blackheads, brown spots and freckles, yield quickly to this treatment, which eventually refines and bleaches as well as improves the texture.

As for the flesh reducing value of lemon, it lies in the well known fact that acid is the enemy of superfluous flesh. Discomfort caused by added pounds melts away before the fruit diet for the simple and sufficient reason that when the outward supply of flesh producing foods is cut off the system feeds upon its own fatty tissues, much to the relief and joy of the consumer and consumed.

So then, the season of candy and sweets being past, let the beauty seeker go in search of that homely little fruit—the lemon.

POTATO GROWERS ARE SLOW TO SELL

The potato-growers of the districts immediately tributary to Oregon City seem to be tightening their hold on the supply. There are some sellers in all parts of the country, and their offerings are finding a fairly good market at $1.25 to $1.50 a hundred at shipping points, but the improvement that has taken place in the market within the past week or two appears to have stimulated the confidence of many of the producers in the future of the market, and as a result they are letting go less freely than a month ago.

Dealers report a continued good demand in the Southern States, and find no difficulty in moving all the good grade stock they are able to obtain. Most of the potatoes now going out of the state go to Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma, and the indications are that there will be a fairly active movement in the states named for at least two months. In California the call is still for only strictly first quality stock, and the demand for that is limited. Most of the extra fancy potatoes now being taken over by dealers go to San Francisco.

The marketable surplus remaining in Oregon is yet large. Estimates show so wide a range as to make them little more than random guesses, but in all quarters it is conceded that the supply of potatoes now remaining in grower's hands is a very considerable one. It is believed, however, that the demand in the Southern States will be such as to absorb practically everything available in this state between now and the end of the season, and while buyers are not predicting any material advance in values in the near future, there seems to be no fear of a decline.
