a little before.

The amount of Franklin's fine was exactly the sum taken from him at the time of his arrest, while talking in the street with Prospective Juror Geo. N. Lockwood Assistant District Attorney Ford, who has charge of this money, will turn it over to Franklin, who will pay his fine.

The probable effect of the Franklin plea and fine on the case of Clarence Darrow, who must stand trial under a bribery charge was discussed freely by Darrow sympathizers and others following today's procedure in court. It was the general opinion that the Darrow defense will make much of the train of incidents in the Franklin case in the contention that the entire Franklin affair was a "plant."
