Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE GREATER LOVE. August Johnson and Herman Greenwald were steeplejacks.

A steeplejack is a human fly that goes up a steeple or a smokestack or a flagpole where no one else will verture. He courts death for pay. Usually he is a saflor.

Accustomed to trifle with his destiny raging storm, his head, heart and stomach know no such thing as altitude. Usually also he is rough on the outside.

Like the structural steel worker who rides the beam up into the steel | 1, 2, the face. He is kin to the primitive man. But-

His heart is true. For the proof of which read the story of August Johnson and Herman Greenwald. These two jacks who toy with the awful secret were employed to paint the lofty steeple of the North Broad Street Presbyterian church in Phila-

August Johnson was working above Greenwald. He lost his footing, slipped and fell.

As he fell past Herman Greenwald the latter made a tremendous effort to save his partner. He caught hold of Johnson's overalls. Clinging with one hand to the steeple, he essayed to swing Johnson to a place of safety. He failed.

Both men fell to the pavement 200 feet below, and two crumpled masses of human flesh were gathered up for And-

When the bodies were picked up the heroic hand of Greenwald still grasped the overalls of his friend Johnson,

Had you seen these men before they climbed the steeple you might have called them "roughnecks." Maybe they were. But-

In the church under that steeple the minister doubtless often reads from a big book this statement:

"Greater love bath no man than this -that he lay down his life for his friend."

If so the Judge of the great day is not likely to forget the mute witness of the dead hand of Herman Greenwald grasping the garment of his friend.

NEW POSITIONS IN BASEBALL

Years Ago Pinch Pitchers and Assistant Managers Were Unheard Of.

Two positions have been created in baseball which a few years ago were unheard of. These are the assistant manager, for instance, and the pinch pitcher. Most of the clubs are carrying a twirler nowadays who has the happy faculty of stopping batting ral-

Griffith has Hughes for this purpose New York has Crandall, Boston has Hall, and the other day the Phillies secured Doc Scanlon from Brooklyn for this purpose. Ed Walsh, though a regular and, in fact, star of his team, has always filled this position in addition to pitching in his regular turn, but there are few pitchers who can do this. That many teams would be benefited by having an assistant to the manager there is no doubt, provided the proper judgment was used in selecting him.

The contestant polling the most votes that day will receive an additional 2,000 free votes, which represents the value of two one year subscriptions. Here is a splendid chance for some contestant to make a substantial gain of 2,000 votes very simple-poll more votes than the "other fellow" and the free votes will be yours. The "special day" in the previous special contest witnessed the most spectacular avalanche of votes ever deposited in the big ballot box in one day, when Kent Wilson broke all previous records by voting 20,000 ballots. What developments Saturday will bring out are unknown but there is no doubt that some candidate is already at work on a scheme to produce startling results. The keen interest evident from the inauguration of th big race for the new Ford has never for a moment subsided. Each candidate is in dead earnest in his or her determination to win the touring car and each enhim or her to the utmost.
