Public Libraries.

In most public libraries all books are disinfected when they are returned. They go into all sorts of places and are read by sick people in their homes and in hospitals; hence the precaution.

"Time is money," quoted the wise guy.

"Possibly," replied the simple mug, "but it isn't always an easy matter to effect the exchange." — Philadelphia Record.

Look Before You Shoot.

The true sportsman may be defined as one who looks before he shoots.—Amateur Sportsman.

"Hereafter," said a smoker to his wife, "I prefer to buy my own cigars, darling. You are very good to volunteer to do my cigar buying, but really this bunch at twelve for a quarter is a little too cheap."

"I know twelve for a quarter is cheap," his wife answered, "but I thought there'd be one or two good ones in the twelve." — Exchange.

For the Children

A Happy Farmer Boy and His Pet Rooster.

Most city boys and girls might think a big, lusty rooster a rather queer pet, and so perhaps it is, but the boy in the picture, who lives in Indiana, has fine times in the company of his bird companion. He has had him ever since he was a wee chick, and they know each other very well. Every morning at sunrise Whitey begins to crow, and as he has a fine, clear voice the whole neighborhood hears him. His master, however, does not always respond immediately to his invitation to get up, but when he does he carries corn and water to his early rising comrade.

Some Queer Fiddles.
There are quite a number of people who collect musical instruments. Men have been known to pay tremendous prices for violins of rare make, merely to place these instruments in collections they were making of such things. One of the greatest fiddles that ever was known was to be seen at the French court in the time of Charles IX. This was a viol so large that several boys could be placed inside it. These boys used to sit inside this queer instrument and sing the airs that the man who handled the bow was playing on the viol outside. The effect is said to have been very beautiful, though it would seem as if the presence of the lads in its interior would seriously interfere with the tone of the "great fiddle," as it was called. Many years after another huge instrument of this kind was used at concerts in Boston. It was so large that to play it the fiddler had to stand on a table to use his bow at the proper point on the strings. This instrument was called "the grandfather of fiddles."

Slap Jack.

This is a game of cards played by not more than ten persons. The cards are dealt one by one and placed in a pile before each player face downward. Then in turn each one takes a card from the top of his pile and without looking at it plays it in the center of the table. When a Jack is thrown on the table all the players try to slap it, and the one who does so first takes all the cards in the middle of the table and adds them to his pile. The object is to obtain all the cards, and the one who succeeds in this is the winner of the game.

Why Shoes Have Tongues.

Every one that wears lace shoes knows that there is a tongue of leather under the place where the two sides of the shoe meet, but there is none in button shoes. Probably very few persons know that this is a comparatively modern idea and is not for the purpose of keeping the laces from burting the instep, but is to keep out rain and snow. There would be no discomfort if the laces touched the sock; but, no matter how closely a shoe may be laced up, there is always a slight space which would allow rain to reach the stocking

Dollar Trick.

Take a medium sized bowl, fill it to within an inch of the top with water. Then place in the water a dollar coin. Then you propose to the company that the one who can remove the coin without wetting the hand may have it. None will try it, thinking it impossible to do so. You have in your hand a little leopodium, which can be got at the druggist's, and throw it on the water, and you can draw out the coin without wetting your hand.

A Chinese Class.

In China, far across the sea, Where things are odd as they can be, You never heard such din and noise As in the schools for little boys. From brightest pupil down to dunce They study all out loud at once— In fact, they fairly scream and shout At top of lungs their lessons out.

To do our studies quietly In school is best for you and me, But sometimes when we have to sit So very still I think of it— How it would help like anything To ease us in our fidgeting If we could yell a bit, you know, As schoolboys do in far Nippon.

—Youth's Companion.

A SAFE ROAD.

The two parallel rails upon which life is sure to run safely and far are faithfulness and sincerity. No one who runs his life on them ever gets off the track or finds any freight too heavy to pull, no matter how steep the grade or how great the storm.

Logic.

Guest—Why did you put me in that weak bed? Host—You had said you were a light sleeper.—Exchange.

Shade Trees in New York.

RICHARD E. SLOAN.

Named by President as United States District Judge For Arizona.

WHEN JACK DOYLE HAD HIS TROUBLES AS A MANAGER.

Talking about "foreigners" breaking into the game, Hughie Duffy tells a good one on Jack Doyle, who managed the Milwaukee Brewers about five years ago. Doyle was also strong for the Celt as the only real player worth while, and the story goes that Duffy ran across Doyle in the east during the middle of the playing season when the Brewers had crawled down to the cellar hole and were rapidly intrenching themselves against disturbance the rest of the season. Doyle, of course, wasn't going around with a "won't come off" smile chasing itself over his countenance. In fact, he was just about as happy as a chicken during the food season.

"How's your team going?" asked Duffy.

"Going?" roared Doyle. "How do you think it's going, and how can any team go when you can't pronounce the names of half of your players?"

Doyle was probably referring to Frank Schelberg and a few more players with Teutonic names who were drawing money from the Havenor treasury at that time.

Lives of Doctors.

In keeping others alive physicians appear to lose their own lives. Of all professional men their lives are the shortest. Between the ages of forty-five and sixty-five five doctors die on an average to one clergyman.
