Last Car Leaves For Oregon City at Midnight

Henry W. Savage's remarkably successful production of "Madam X," Bisson's celebrated Parisian drama of mother-love, will be presented at the Heilig Theatre, Seventh and Taylor Streets, for three nights, beginning Thursday, April 4th, with special price matinee Saturday.

defense refusing even to explain why she killed the man. At the very last, when the woman has been declared free, her emotions overcome her, and she cries out "My son!" With father, mother and son as the figures, the play reaches its denouement in a scene of rare dramatic appeal.

situations arise. It is a play which all classes of people can understand and enjoy, especially when played as the Baker Company will play it. Manager Baker has been all season securing plays and players for this special stock season and for his two leading people has secured Willard Mack and Maude Leone, both Stock people of

of the Viennese type and the opera is said to abound in the lilting and singing waltz and song numbers such as the "Merry Widow," "The Chocolate Soldier" and "The Spring Maid" have popularized. Miss Glaser has had no role since her famous "Dolly Varden" which fits her joyous personality as well as that of the bonnie Scotch madcap in this Highland musical gem. She will have an organization of over sixty, with a special orchestra and elaborate scenic production. Her company includes David Torrence, George Graham, Arthur Hyde, Rosetta Nier, Wilma Wood, and others. Seats go on sale March 29th at 10 A. M.

drama of recent years, and its emotional scenes differ radically from those usually associated with French successes. Its story has to do with a woman who deserts her husband and child, and leads a wild, adventuresome life. A pair of blackmailers discover, some twenty years afterward, that she is the wife of a celebrated French jurist, and lay plans to blackmail him, believing that he would rather pay for their silence than have his name associated with hers. When the mysterious "Madame X" finds this out, she kills one of the blackmailers and is brought to trial. Being without counsel, the court assigns a young lawyer to her defense. This lawyer is the son she deserted long before, and his father, interested in seeing how he will conduct his first criminal case, comes and sits at the side of the presiding Judge. Madame X does not at first recognize her son, but during the course of the trial she suddenly becomes aware of his identity.

Mr. Savage has provided such excellent artists as Adeline Dunlap, Byron Douglas, Harry Malahall, Naomi Childers, Edwin Forsberg, Harry C. Bradley, and a score of others to interpret the various roles, and the original scenic production will be used. Seats go on sale Tuesday, April 2nd, at 10 A. M.

wide experience and splendid reputations. They are bound to create a sensation in this city from the moment of their first appearance. Every other member is an actor or actress with like reputations and what promises to be the biggest season ever known in the history of Portland Stock (which means Baker Stock) will open Sunday Matinee. The Worm Turned. "William," said Mrs. Peckem sternly, "did you ever stop to think that some one might steal me when you were away?" "Well," responded the poor husband with a faraway look. "I was a little alarmed when a horse thief was prowling through these parts last week." Mrs. Peckem stiffened up laughingly. "A horse thief, eh?" "Yes. I heard that he carried off two or three nags from this district." And then Peckem made a bee line for the club.

Laurel Wreaths For Athletes. In France and other parts of the continent of Europe the sportsmen have a curious custom which is a survival of the classic days of Greece and Rome--namely, the presenting of laurel wreaths to victorious athletes in great sporting events. If a man wins some long distance running or cycling race he is loaded up with these tangible tokens of appreciation, and for the time looks like a bereaved relation hastening to a funeral in a running or cycling suit.

What He Was Tired Of. Every non-golfer and many golfers, too, will have hearty sympathy for the poor little caddy in this story from the New York Tribune. The golfer who was employing him was playing very badly, and the caddy lay down on the grass at one point and watched him. When the man had got the ball out of the bunker he glanced toward the boy. "You must be tired," he said, "lying down at this time of day." "I ain't tired of carrying," said the boy, "but I am tired of counting."

The Thrifty Dutch. The thrift of the Dutch has brought to Holland a fame of wealth that is richly deserved. Yet in spite of the wealth, taken as a whole, the Netherlands do not contain many great fortunes as fortunes are gauged in the United States. A feature of Dutch business is the number of small establishments or the great corporations in which shares are held by many people. Much of the money which the country lends abroad is the savings of the masses.
