With four Socialist holdover Aldermen, the new City Council will be composed of 26 non-partisan Aldermen and 11 Socalist Aldermen.

The election is believed to have eliminated every National political party from participation in future municipal elections in the State of Wisconsin. For, as a result of the non-partisan victory in the city of Milwaukee, the State Legislature, at a special session soon to be convened, is expected to pass a distinctly non-partisan city election statute.

During the early part of next July the Elks are going to hold their annual convention in Portland. That means a big time. The "Bills" are celebrat-ed for the way they do things and their convention week will undoubtedly be the biggest week Portland ever had. It is to be a gala time—genuine joviality everywhere.

It is going to be nice to go to this Under the direction of Assistant "big time" but how much nicer it so much easier to see the multitude

TION MAKES PLEA FOR SEPARATION

Report That They Are Dissatisfied With Proportion Of Tax Fund Given Them Is Denied

While nothing definite was agreed majority of the visitors have no complaint against the way the money has was clearly proved.

Not one representatve of the Oregon City organization declared him-self unequivocally against the division of the county. All of them, however urged caution, a careful study of conditions and thorough investigation of the expense that would attach to the movement. It was pointed out that the taxes in the new county probably would be increased to a large extent, which not only would drive residents from the county, but would have a tendency to keep away persons from the east.

President McBain, in calling the meeting to order, said that the visitors were from the eastern part of the county, and they would explain why they thought the county should be divided.

Henry Epperson of Garfield, the first speaker, said that he had lived in the county47 years, and he believed the time had arrived when a division should be made. He declared when he came to this county Oregon City was larger than Portland, and business drifted in that directon, Developments, however, he asserted had made new alignments, and as Portland had . developed the residents of the east-The installation of the largest pa- ern section of the county had buildper mill for the manufacture of news ed roads in that direction. made sometime ago to lop off the best part of the county, and if you agree to our propostion no such effort will be made again. We ask you to put yourselves in our place, and I think in fairness you would agree to the division. The proposed lines do not take away a great deal of valuable territory.

W. S. Jellison president of the Estacada Bank, and Robert Duncan, also of Estacada, made pleas for a division. They said the proposition was made, in good faith and the eastern section wanted to part from the other part in good spirit. They declared that the annual revenue of the eastern part of the county was such that it was justified in asking that it be allowed to break away. L. E. Bolfils, cashier of the Estacada

Bank called attenton to Hood River county and told of its remarkable progress after the division of Wasco county. The speaker declared that the proposed division of Clackamas county would only take away $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 of the valuation and would make it the eighth in point of wealth instead of the seventh as at present. "Clackamas county would save a great deal in jury expenses through the division," declared the speaker. 'The railroad fare from Estacada to Oregon City and back is $1.75, and persons from that city coming here are put to much greater expenses. The money thus spent would help pay the increased taxes in the new county, if the taxes were increased. The more divisions in a state the better it is for the state. Oregon has counties as large as eastern states.' J. W. Reed, mayor of Estacada, said that if the division became a reality Clackamas County would still have four-fifths of the total valuation. He thought the county should be glad to get rid of the eastern section. E. W. Bartlett, a lawyer, exhibited a map showing the proposed lines. He deplored the reports that the resi-dents of the eastern section were dissatisfied with the apportionment of the taxes, and said they were un-true. He said the eastern section had a population of 8,000.

"I don't know a single person in Eagle Creek who favors a new county," said George Burnett. "Two years ago I was in favor of going to Mult nomah count, y because I did not think we were getting our share of the road fund. I am satisfied now and I think all our people are."
"I am staisfied with the old county,"

Noah Stingley, of Eagle k. "I have lived here thirty years. We are beginning to get our ust dues. We have not always got it or expected it, for we realized that it was best to have main roads built out from Oregon City. I think the main agitators for the new county came in on the new railroad. The road is there, and if they don't like the county they can get out on it."

H. F. Gibson of Barton, said the county was too large. Calling attention to the wonderful development he declared the time had arrived for a division and that it would be of advantage to Clackamas County as well as the new county. Adolph Miller, of Advices from the National Capital indicate the chances for the passage "Sooner or later the county will of the bill appropriating $75,000 for the divided," said J. S. McCurdy, a the purchase of a site and the erection of a federal building at Oregon City are anything but bright.
