ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS. (From noon today to noon tomorrow.) Sun sets 6:23, rises 5:28. Evening stars: Mercury, Mars, Saturn. Morning stars: Venus, Jupiter.

The weather man nearly got in wrong with the ladies on Easter. Many of them found it risky to take out the new bonnet early in the day, but after 10 a. m. the sun made its appearance and many of the creations were in evidence on the street, while the churches were alive with effects in pink and purple. Styles change with them, the coloring. This of course is Elks' year in Oregon and it is surprising how the ladies have taken to the purple, and how pretty they look, how beautiful the complexion, with purple the main stay. We always admire the new spring millinery and the ladies certainly have reason to be in line with the season, for there never was an organization of men with greater respect for pure womanhood than the B. P. O. E.

"Death Is Great Stone of History", Says Rev. Edwards

The Rev. G. N. Edwards, pastor of the Congregational church, preached in part as follows Sunday evening, his subject being "The Stone Rolled Away." "And they were saying among themselves, who shall roll away the stone from the door of the sepulchre, and when they looked up they saw that the stone was rolled away." Mark 16:34. "What a realistic touch of human nature in this anxiety about the great stone these women had seen rolled to the door of the tomb two days before! They had accepted his death as final. They had come with sad and hopeless faces to perform the last offices for the dead body of their dear friend. They looked for no lightening of their sorrow save in attending to these loving details which these women loved to give as a last token of regard for those they had loved and lost. So their only concern was, should they be able to do this? They had seen the rock-hewn sepulchre closed with a great stone that several men were just able to move. What could their slender strength avail, to find a way into the tomb? So early was it that no man was likely to be near, for work, who could render assistance? They went on therefore questioning, yet not hesitating till they stood at the place. And there they saw the stone was rolled away. Some one else they thought had come before them to perform a like office. So they stepped in. But there was no body there! Instead they saw a marvellous young man who spoke strange but joyous words to them. 'Be not afraid. Jesus whom ye seek is risen, he is not here. See the place where his body lay. He goeth before you. In Galilee ye shall see him.' And so for the stone they worried about, it had become a seat for the messenger from which he delivered his message. "There is a parable here for many human experiences. We often expect to find just stones in our way, and stop, or go doubtfully on, not knowing the issue, nor seeing the way out. As a traveller following the windings of a river or a trail through the mountains aims sees oftentimes a great hill squarely in front of him, the river seems a lake the road must stop—but hold a minute. He keeps on his way, the hills part and the open water gleams ahead and winds around the base of the mountain that seemed to block his progress. So it is of the burdens of the day. Have you never dreaded to begin some day the painful task you saw before you, the night before? It may have been a piece of housework for which your strength seemed inadequate; a difficult problem which seemed to baffle your skill; a disagreeable duty, an enemy to meet, a friend to forgive, a confession to make. How can you do it? Where is the power to roll away that stone that stands exactly where you must travel. Perhaps you have tried to run away. You try to dodge the issue. No stones are rolled away for them who do not march up to them. The fear that drives a man away from his duty or his chosen task is cowardly. How many of us have dreaded the teacher who made us exercise our minds to overcome the stone of ignorance in the path of knowledge? He was a rock that weighed heavily on our minds every day, till we discovered by our own application and study that the teacher was the hidden messenger of hidden truths of which we had not guessed. "How many times has some sorrow arose a victor over death, as surely as he summoned Lazarus from his tomb. So he still stands behind the great veil of death—which parts us from the unseen saying 'I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me though he were dead yet shall he live, and he that liveth and believeth in me shall never die.'

EASTER OBSERVED IN ALL CHURCHES

(Continued from page 1) Mr. Buchanan and Mrs. Horning, German Lutheran Church. Rev. William Kraxberger, pastor of the German Lutheran church, preached in German Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, and at 3 o'clock Rev. Kraxberger preached in English. The choir rendered appropriate music. Calla lilies, Easter lilies and ferns were used in the decorations. Mountain View Church. Easter services were held at the Mountain View church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Many of the children of the Sunday school took part in the program. The church was decorated with flowers, and those having charge of the decorations were Mrs. Schultze, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Newman and the latter's Sunday school class. In the evening E. C. Dye preached. All services were largely attended.

DR. FORD ENTERTAINS MARRIED FOLK TONIGHT

The young people's societies of Christian and various other forms of Endeavor are an old story. At least so thinks Dr. Ford, pastor of the Methodist church. But, for the married folk, there is little doing outside of worrying over church finances, new carpets, etc. This is all to be changed however. Mr. and Mrs. Benedict are to come into their own;—for Dr. Ford and his officers are to entertain the married folk in the Willamette Hall tonight at 8 o'clock. A great social time is promised as well as solid refreshments, the church announcement reads: "If you are married, or have been, you are invited."

FUNERAL OF F. A. ELY IS HELD IN GLADSTONE

The funeral of Frederick A. Ely was held at the family home at Gladstone Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was attended by many friends of the deceased and family. The services at the cemetery also were largely attended. Rev. J. R. Landsborough, pastor of the Presbyterian church, assisted by the I. O. O. F. Lodge, of which the deceased was a member for many years, conducted the services. The floral offerings were handsome and numerous. The interment was in the family lot in the I. O. O. F. plot of Mountain View cemetery. The pallbearers were J. E. Jack, S. S. Walker, F. A. Miles, A. C. Beaulieu, R. W. Porter, John Bradley. The pallbearers were members of the I. O. O. F. Lodge. The Enterprise automobile contest is the most popular thing ever pulled off in the Willamette Valley.

CONCERT EXPECTED; SCORES DISAPPOINTED

One of the greatest compliments that has been paid to the Oregon City Band was that on Easter Sunday when scores of citizens comprising a typical Easter assembly, went to the Seventh Street Park expecting to hear the band play. The understanding of the public seems to have been, from expressions made, that the band was to give regular Sunday concerts and the disappointment, as this new and pleasing organized aggregation of musicians has added much to the city's happy times, was great. It has been learned that the reason for the non-appearance of the band was, that the tax is too great upon members who are voluntarily giving their time and services without recompense. The band will give Sunday afternoon concerts if the residents of the city desire to assist in supporting this feature of the city's welfare.
