ed to Hon. James Bertram for his approval for Hon. Andrew Carnegie. Bids will then be in order and by July 1st the building should be in course of erection. The opening day should be Oct. 15, to November 1, when the event should be made history by a holiday in our public schools and a concert by our new band on the front steps of the building.

Many of the country's best men received a large portion of their education with the assistance of the books from a Free Public Library and one cannot appraise a Library's value too highly.

NEED OF AN ARMORY Albany, Oregon, according to the last population census has about the same population as Oregon City. Linn County has about the same population as Clackamas County. Albany has many miles of hard paved streets—has some good public parks, and above all, an Armory second to none within the State, in which to house its National Guard Company, and, when desired, to hold conventions, concerts, or other public doings. No one in Linn County questioned the right and advisability of the County Court taking advantage of the law, and today everyone is proud of the building erected in 1910, while visitors and intending settlers wonder at the great showing of prosperity this small valley city makes, leaving a lasting impression. Albany is a nice place, but has none of the natural advantages of Oregon City—has practically no pay roll, depending in a large measure on the outlying districts for existence, yet Albany's citizens cannot be too highly complimented upon their far-sightedness, public spiritedness, and the way they have beautified what otherwise would be barren waste.

We hope for like feeling here, with hard paved streets, the bluffs beautified by a landscape gardener, our parks altered and replanted, a public library and an Armory, in addition to the items now under the guiding hand of the Live Wires, Oregon City is destined to greater prosperity than ever before.

Woman's World Mrs. Frederic Schoff's Appeal to Mothers.

Mrs. Frederic Schoff, president of the National Congress of Mothers, recently sent out the following appeal to parents and teachers' associations; such an appeal cannot fail to be of interest to every mother in the land who has the welfare of her children at heart: "Gentle little mother, working faithfully in your own home to make your own children's lives true and pure, strong and vigorous, gathering them each night by your own fireside, listening to the evening prayers and tucking them snugly in their beds, do you know of the great world outside, of which your children are a part, in which, as you as school days come, they must live? Yes, you know too well of its temptations, and for your dear children's sakes you wish you could make it better. You are only one mother, with perhaps little outside influence. You think your own thoughts, but they do not go far toward solving the problems that face the children when they are home influence. Get six mothers to organize a mothers' circle, and your influence is increased. Get twelve, and it is again doubled. Get the fathers on an advisory council and keep them informed of what you are studying and trying to do, and the influence is again more than doubled. Get your mothers' circles as an auxiliary of the school, and its opportunity and power for good are multiplied many times.

"Have every mother in the county a member of the mothers' circle in her community and hold an annual county conference of mothers to consider the welfare of the child in home, school and community, and the things that menace the children will have to go. "Bring all the mothers of a state into annual conference for the welfare of the child, and your own children's opportunities and privileges will be far beyond what they are when mothers sit, each one in her own home, thinking and wishing things might be improved, but without the strength which comes from organization, unable to accomplish much.

"Mothers organized are a power which no man wishes to resist. They can ask what they will for the children, and legislators and educators will listen with respect. "Gentle little mother, in your busy life in the home do not forget that your children are citizens of the nation, that for them you want the nation to do all that will enlarge the possibilities of life and health for all children and that by joining or forming your little local circle or perhaps a dozen mothers you can be a part of a county, state and national organization of mothers whose sole object is to give to every child the chance to develop physically, mentally and morally as he should.

"What other benefit will you, gentle mother, derive from joining the National Congress of Mothers? You will be kept in touch with the best thought of the best and most experienced men and women on bringing up children. You will have study courses recommended to you, books for yourself and your children. You will feel the pleasure of knowing that by your membership you are strengthening and encouraging those who are working successfully to improve the conditions of childhood throughout the nation.

"You may never find it possible to attend a national congress, but if you do it will stimulate you to a higher conception of your great privilege and opportunity in being a mother. If you cannot attend you may read the wonderful words of those who have studied children and know how to bring out their best, physically and morally. "Are you not glad that there are women and men, too, who have organized to guard and promote in every possible way the welfare of the children? If so, show your appreciation by joining the congress."

WIRELESS HERO AT POST UNTIL LAST

NEW YORK, April 19.—At the very head of the list of wireless heroes must be placed the name of John George Phillips, the young Englishman, who was in charge of the wireless room on the ill fated Titanic, and who paid with his life the price of his faithfulness to duty. Phillips was at his key when the Titanic struck the iceberg which "broke her back." His assistant, Harold Bride, had just got out of bed to relieve him and was standing beside Phillips, clad in his pajamas when they both felt a slight jar. A moment later Captain Smith came to the door of the wireless room and told Phillips that the ship had struck an iceberg and that the extent of the damage was being ascertained.

"You might have to send out the call for assistance," he said as he left. In 10 minutes he was back. He told Phillips to send the call for help in the international code. The wireless operators stood laughing and joking as Phillips flashed the call, having no idea that they were in any real danger. The Carpathia soon answered, and Phillips sent Bride to tell the captain that she was coming to help them.

"Then I dressed, said Bride, who was found in the wireless room of the Carpathia when she docked, helping the Carpathia's overworked operator. "I slipped an overcoat onto Phillips too, and for some time I ran back and forth between him and Captain Smith with messages. The wireless kept growing weaker and weaker as the water got into the engine room and flooded the dynamo. But there remained some current, and Phillips stuck to his key. "I strapped a lifebelt on myself and another on Phillips. He was talking to the Carpathia and telling her how desperate our plight was when Captain Smith came and told us we had done all we could, and for us to look out for ourselves.

MEMORIAL FOR SHIP'S DEAD TO BE HELD

A memorial service will be held in the St. Paul's Episcopal church in sympathy with the disaster of the White Star Liner Titanic, Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The Bishop of Oregon, Dr. Charles Scadding has ordered that prayers be said by his clergy for the dead and living in this appalling catastrophe. St. Paul's church will be draped in black and the British and American flags entwined. It is thought that the Hon. James Laidlaw, British Consul will be present. Rev. C. W. Robinson, Rector of St. Paul's will preach in the evening on "Wrecks." The music will be in accord with the occasion. Mrs. R. C. Ganong will sing a solo.

WIFE, SING, SAYS LIFE WAS THREATENED

Declaring that her husband frequently threatened to shoot her, Mamie Yenser has filed suit for divorce from John B. Yenser. They were married in Everett, Wash., June 20, 1910. The plaintiff asks that her maiden name, Mamie Martin be restored. Judge Campbell has granted divorce decrees to Margaret Shafer from John Shafer, awarding the custody of their child to the plaintiff, and to Mattie Belle Fulcher from Simeon C. Fulcher restoring the plaintiff's maiden name, Mattie B. Smith.

SAYS BODIES COULD HAVE BEEN PICKED UP

NEW YORK, April 19.—Harry G. Turner, a Carpathia steward, said that if they could have taken the time they could have recovered many of the bodies as they were afloat, held up by life belts, when they got there. S. V. Silverthorn of St. Louis said that when the ship struck he had no idea of the magnitude of the disaster. Even after the crash, he said he believed that the steamer would float at least until they came. "I could hear women screaming and they were soon rushing out on the deck, and then I thought there was a serious situation. The men worked like machines getting the women and children into the boats. My idea was to get on the iceberg if I could. The boat went down slowly and finally I jumped overboard. It got into a boat but I don't know how I did it."

KITTEN LOST BETWEEN WALLS IS RECOVERED

Harry Boyles, an employe of Larsen & Co., of this city, and M. Dimick, who is interested in the firm, performed a humane act at the store Thursday afternoon. A pet cat gave birth to two kittens a few weeks ago, and it had been her habit to take the kittens to a secluded spot to sleep. A few days ago one of the kittens disappeared, and the mother cat followed Dimick and Boyles about, the store crying pitifully. They were not aware of the missing kitten until they heard its wailings. They hunted for three days for the pet, and Thursday decided to make a thorough search for it. Mr. Boyles found that it had fallen between the two walls of the building. It would have perished from hunger had it remained there many more hours. Several boards were removed by Mr. Dimick and Mr. Boyles and the animal was rescued from its perilous position. The mother since finding her kitten has kept up a steady purring. For three days she had refused to partake of food, but has an enormous appetite now.
