FRENCH CORSET COVER
 Another dainty corset cover of French design and made intended for wear with high waisted gowns appears here today. This is made of opaque nainsook, fitting closely and closing at one side of the front. The corsage line is slightly "V" both front and back and finished with a narrow frill of lace. Two diagonal strips of insertion, one of embroidery and the other of lace, run from beneath the arm to the center in the back and disappear at the front beneath a broad vertical band consisting of strips of lace and embroidery and which is finished with a narrow edging of lace. This latter also finishes the bottom of the cover. The garment ties over the shoulders with ribbon bows.
