NEGLIGEE IN ROSE

The accompanying sketch is that of a dainty room gown or negligee, which may be duplicated very inexpensively. It is high waisted and the material, rose cashmere, is bordered with a deep shade of satin ribbon. There is a vest and sleeves of all-over lace. The full tunic of the material, which is cut in two portions and drawn away from the front and back, is gathered low down on each side into a bow and ends of ribbon. The ribbon borders the tunic as it does the waist drapery. The underskirt is full and sweeping and has a broad band of lace around the bottom.

Golf Balls.

The manufacture of golf balls was at one time, the end of the sixteenth and beginning of the seventeenth centuries in the hands of the Dutch, and a heavy tax was placed upon such as were imported into Great Britain in order to give the more expensive British labor a chance. James VI. of Scotland gave so far as to give one maker a monopoly of the manufacture.

TROUT "TRESPASS" SIGNS NECESSARY

Trout will not be planted in streams which are plastered with trespass signs so as to prevent the public from fishing, said State Game Warden William L. Finley. It is expected that there will be between 6,000,000 and 10,000,000 trout fry released in the lakes and streams of Oregon this year, and that the number of trout planted will be increased yearly.

"A great many streams suitable for planting trout, and for fishing, are practically bottled up by the people who live on them because they insist on treating city fishermen as trespassers," said Mr. Finley. "Many people have the idea that because they own the land they also own the water and the fish, but they are wrong. The fish belong to the public. Every person has as much ownership of the fish in the lakes and streams as every other person.

"If the people living on these streams line them with trespass signs, making the waters practically private preserves for themselves, this office cannot in fairness and will not, stock the streams with fish that belong to the public. The money which enables us to stock streams with trout comes from anglers' licenses, and most of it from anglers who live in the cities. It is unfair to take this money and hatch trout to place in streams which are no better than private preserves.

"The 2,000,000 trout eggs we have just ordered from Montana are to be paid for with the anglers' license money, and we will plant those trout where every angler will have a right to fish for them.

"I expect to rely on the Multnomah Anglers' Club and similar organizations in the state, for much information in regard to streams which are fenced and lined with trespass signs. The members of these clubs are constantly fishing all over the state, and they know where the trespass signs are, and on what streams the residents forbid them to fish. I want every angler to inform this office of these facts and we will see to it that none of the millions of trout that are to be released this year are placed in such streams.

"In short we are using the angling public's money to equip hatcheries and maintain them, to hatch and hatch them, and to distribute the fish, which belong to the public; and we are going to see to it that the trout we hatch are placed within the reach of the public."

Warden Finley also announced this intention at the last meeting of the executive committee of the Multnomah Anglers' Club, and it was met with enthusiastic approval. It was urged that care be taken in stocking waters of which the bottled up streams are tributaries.

The First "Market Day" at Washington Market, New York

AMONG the results of Mayor Shank's vigorous campaign against the Indianapolis middlemen may be reckoned the agitation in New York city for the establishment of more public markets. The Housewives' league, of which Mrs. Julian Heath is president, recently arranged a special market day on which its members visited Washington market, in the lower part of Manhattan Island. They were received with great cordiality by the stallkeepers, who devoted a considerable part of the day to demonstrating the advantages of marketing in person instead of by telephone. Mayor Gaynor also came and was buttonholed by the enthusiastic women visitors. Most of them carried capacious market baskets, which, however, they were generally too busy to fill, but they looked well in the many photographs which were made by the zealous "camera squad" of the New York newspapers. The figure at the right of the picture is Mrs. Heath, who was much pleased with the success of her experiment.

100 TO BE INITIATED INTO MOOSE ORDER

The institution and first initiation of the Loyal Order of Moose in Oregon City will take place Thursday, May 2, at the Willamette Hall when more than 100 of the antlered herd will assemble to lay their foundation for what is expected will be, according to Bert Westcott, Deputy Supreme Organizer, one of the most important orders of the Pacific Northwest.

Deputy Supreme Organizer Westcott will institute, and twenty-two members of the Portland degree team will initiate. Among the distinguished guests from Portland who will address the new Moose members will be A. Youmans, District Supreme Dictator, Judge Gatens, Past Dictator, Andy Weinberger, Recording Secretary, Will Hatfield, Financial Secretary, R. S. Beatty of the Moose Herald and others.

Deputy Supreme Organizer Westcott has been in this city in the interest of the Moose order for the past seven weeks, representing the Pacific Northwest Headquarters in Seattle and has already 100 bona fide applicants. He states that between this time and the hour of institution there is an opportunity for others to take part in the Moose festivities.

"There will be a building and club rooms for the Loyal Order of Moose in this city before many months have elapsed," says Organizer Westcott. "We have a grand support and as the order is generally recognized our foothold here is strong. Our intentions are to open club rooms first and then build. I am greatly encouraged over the present showing."

HELP BOOST CITY

More than 100,000 persons are expected to visit Portland from Eastern cities during the Elks Convention in July. Oregon City is nearest to Portland and the Publicity Committee of the Commercial Club intends having a large percentage of these people visit Oregon City, some of whom, it goes without saying, will be sufficiently interested to stay with us, either business, professionally or otherwise.

Oregon City like all other western cities, needs continual installments of new blood in order to keep the wheels of progress moving. The city is now in an era of advancement beyond the expectancies of even the most optimistic members of the Publicity Committee. There are more things being done, expected and promised than ever before in its history. Everyone seems to place his shoulder to the wheel and do his part. That is what is bringing the results which are now sure to follow.

When the Elks and their friends come we should be ready to receive and entertain them—to show them Oregon City wants them. That we have more natural advantages than any other place on the Coast, if not in the country. All we need is new blood, new capital and the resulting new industries, need for labor and pay roll. Anyone who has friends in Eastern cities looking toward the west can have literature sent them without charge by leaving addresses with the Publicity Department.

Men of families are needed daily at the paper mills and it is the desire of the Publicity Committee as also the mill managers to get for these vacancies men of proper calibre to be an aid in the advancement of the city.
