NEEDS AND DESIRES

We need in this life the things necessary to keep us alive, like the furnaces of a great factory, we need fuel to live as they do to keep up the fires. We need clothes to protect our bodies from the elements, like army of the machines of the industrial world need clothes to carry them through their work. We need sleep and rest, not unlike the great mechanisms of the present century which without rest cannot keep up the great work laid out for them. All these needs cost money, still they are the necessities of life, in the case of man and likewise of the machines. The machine cannot run without care of man. Man would be helpless without the mechanical devices which aid in the production of his daily bread. Both do their share to make our city Country and State.

NEEDS AND DESIRES

Desires of man are costly but should be of secondary importance. Most of our business houses do business from dawn to twilight, working hours the equal and sometimes longer than those effective in our mills. Our attorneys and doctors, many of them are at their work early and late. Our City Council works nights, after the members thereof have completed their daily labors. We are all, in our line, doing our part to make the world of today what it is, some of us from need and others from desire.

NEEDS AND DESIRES

Doctor, my husband is dreadfully troubled with sleeplessness. What is good for it? "You might try reading him to sleep, madam." "What would be the use of that, doctor? I try to talk him to sleep every night, and it doesn't do a bit of good." —Chicago Tribune.

Are We In This Generation Doing Our Share In Taming Humanity?

By Senator ELIHU ROOT of New York

I AM not one of those who think that the making of a treaty is the be-all and end-all of international intercourse and of international strife. It is far more important that nations shall OBSERVE TREATIES than that they shall make them. The real difficulties with which we have to deal in seeking to decrease the frequency of war are not so much the difficulties that arise upon questions which can be decided by courts, but the difficulties that arise from the WEAKNESSES AND ERRORS OF HUMANITY.

INSULT, HATRED, RESENTMENT, DESIRE FOR REVENGE, THE LUST OF CONQUEST, THE EAGERNESS TO GRASP TERRITORY, THE DESIRE OF MEN WHOSE PASSIONS ARE EXCITED TO FIGHT—THOSE ARE THE THINGS WHICH STAND IN THE WAY OF THE REIGN OF PEACE.

The making of treaties is but an INCIDENT, A STEP, AN AGENCY, in the great process of CHANGING THE STANDARDS OF MANKIND, of promoting a sense of the obligation of self control as between the people of different nations, just as in the long course of centuries the obligation of self control as between individuals has been inculcated. It is a long and often a discouraging process.

THE GREAT QUESTION IS NOT WHETHER WE ARE ENDING WAR IN MAKING THESE TREATIES; IT IS WHETHER WE ARE DOING OUR PART IN OUR DAY AND GENERATION TO CARRY ON THAT GREAT PROCESS THAT IS TAKING MANKIND OUT OF THE REIGN OF BRUTALITY INTO THE REIGN OF JUSTICE AND VIRTUE AND COMPASSION AND KINDNESS.

The Buzz Wagon Route Isn't the Safest Way to Land in the Hospital

sire, but which of the two gets the most out of life. Many of the employees of our great industries work only because they need to, others in like financial condition work also with a desire to learn. The owners of our mills probably do not need to keep them in operation to live but desire to do so, still if we continue to give them the impression that we don't need them and desire that they get out, that may be the outcome and the end of all things, in so far as our financial position is concerned. Conditions have improved here more rapidly than most of us think—our working men are being paid better than ever before and as they sow, so they also reap under the reward systems in effect. Fellow citizen, whether lawyer, doctor, business man or workman, think what all these things mean to you.

BOOSTER DAY A SUCCESS

The weather man again favorably considered Oregon City and stayed the elements long enough to carry the day through to a successful termination and Gee! what a time we had, from early morn till sundown. All agree that the Publicity Committee of the Commercial Club know how to do things and apply their knowledge in practice.

Boulevard and Esplanade.

Both "esplanade" and "boulevard" are military terms by origin. The original "boulevard" was a linkwork or horizontal part of the rampart, and an "esplanade" was originally the glacis or slope of the counterscarp of a fortified place. A writer 200 years ago noted that the word boulevard was "now chiefly taken for the void space between the glacis of a citadel and the first houses of a town;" hence its extension to other "void spaces" suitable for promenading. The old French "esplanade" was defined by Cotgrave as "a planing, leveling, evening of ways," from Latin "explanare," to smooth or flatten out, whence the English words "explain" and "explanation."

Wool Demand Grows But Price is Same

The movement of wool is increasing but there has been no improvement in the price. The fact that the freight rate to the east has been reduced has not made the slightest difference with buyers, the extra amount being absorbed by the trade at this end of the line.

Wool Demand Grows But Price is Same

The situation in the wool trade in the east is showing practically no change. Little interest is being shown by manufacturers there and the business has been removed entirely to the North Pacific coast, where the season has recently opened.

The Minister's Response.

A well known minister of a kirk in Glasgow was one day passing along the high street when he was accosted by a crowd of street gamins, one of whom said mischievously, but with becoming gravity, "D'ye ken, minister, the de'il is dead?" The minister made no immediate response, but on the whole crew reiterating the cry, "The de'il's dead, the de'il's dead!" he turned and, raising his outstretched hands, as if to pronounce a blessing, retorted, "Ach, ye pair teetle faithless bairns!"

Wool Demand Grows But Price is Same

Purchases of Willamette valley wools are still reported at 16 @ 18c a pound but no business has been confirmed above this range although there have been rumors that 19c has been paid for some extra fancy offerings.

Some business is passing in eastern Oregon around the nominal price recently quoted but the great bulk of the supplies there will be held intact for the regular sales-dates. Growers are becoming much more friendly to the open competition of sales than ever before. The dates have now been made so that they do not conflict.

LAST CAR LEAVES FOR OREGON CITY AT MIDNIGHT

MARGARET ANGLIN IN THE COMEDY, "GREEN STOCKINGS," AT HEILIG THEATRE.

The return of Margaret Anglin to Portland at the Heilig Theatre, Seventh and Taylor Streets, should be a delight to all lovers of fine acting, for she is justly regarded as one of the great actresses of whom the American stage can boast. It is some two years since we last saw her in the dramatization of Mrs. Deland's fine story, "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie." On Friday and Saturday evenings, May 3rd and 4th, with Saturday matinee at special prices, Miss Anglin and her colleagues will be seen in a new and original (and report says decidedly clever) comedy, entitled "Green Stockings" written by A. E. W. Mason, an English playwright, novelist and member of Parliament. The comedy has recently concluded a splendid run of over three months at the Elliott Theatre in New York, where it was hailed as a delightful entertainment, and one of the best specimens of what is known as high comedy, to distinguish it from the slap-stick methods of latter-day low comedy.

From advance reports it would seem that those who were loath to concede to Margaret Anglin the ability to successfully assume a light comedy role, are doomed to agreeable disappointment, for, if we are to believe the commentators of things dramatic, the distinguished actress finds herself as much at home in the business of exciting laughter as she is in drawing tears. And so we may look forward with feelings of pleasure to seeing Margaret Anglin as Celia Faraday, the eldest of four daughters, all of whom are married or about to be married, except poor Celia, who, by a singular perversity of fate, is by far the most attractive of them all. Being an English girl, she was compelled to follow the old English custom of wearing green stockings at the weddings of two of her sisters, and it looks as though she might soon have to purchase a third pair.

It has been a long time since Portland theatre goers have seen one of those beautiful religious plays on the order of the Holy City or Quo Vadis, and the announcement that the Baker Stock Company will give one—and the one that has been pronounced by the press and clergy the greatest of them all—The Sign of the Cross all this week will be welcomed by thousands. It is a most impressive play dealing with the persecutions and sufferings of the first Christians. The action takes place in Rome in the time of the cruel tyrant, Nero, and the two central characters are Marcus Superbus, a young noble friend of Nero's, and the beautiful Christian girl Marcia. The feeling that first drew Marcus toward her was the only kind of love of which a man of his life and training was capable, and when he takes her from the soldiers who have raided a little band of worshippers at night, it is to bring her to his palace and possess her for himself. But something seems to intervene to save Marcia and time and time again he is foiled just when about to grasp her. It is a power he cannot fathom but gradually it begins to gain ascendancy even over him and his love softens and becomes purified until in the end, after many scenes that are strange and dramatic Marcia is condemned to die by order of the tyrant unless she will renounce her new religion. This she will not do, and the final scene before the gates of the arena just before she is to be thrown to the lions is extremely touching and impressive after which Marcus takes her hand, and rather than be separated from her goes forth into the shadow of death by her side. Willard Mack will play the role of Marcus and Miss Leone that of Marcia. The cast is a large one and the scenic effects gorgeous as well as costumes. Monday night will be bargain night, a popular weekly event at the Baker, and Matinee of The Sign of the Cross will be given Sunday and Saturday.

Ireland's Big Cavern.

A Frenchman made the first complete exploration of one of the largest caverns in the world, that at Mitchelstown, Ireland. The explorer was Martel, who is also famous for his discoveries in the caverns of France. The Mitchelstown cavern is formed in limestone and is remarkable for the number and extent of its connected passages, which when plotted on a chart resemble the streets of a city. The length of the cave is a mile and a quarter, and it contains some animal inhabitants, including a species of spider, which are peculiar to it and have their entire existence within its recesses.—New York Tribune.

When We Bought Whole Hams.

It is easily within the recollection of thousands of housekeepers when we bought whole hams. We didn't expect the butcher to cut fancy slices and hold the ends to get rid of as best he could. We had a family meat saw and a sharp knife. We did the slicing. And the ends were not thrown away. There were dozens of uses for them. Splendid dishes seldom heard of now came from the ends of the ham. There was no waste.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Less Than Cost.

"But," protested the broker who had advertised for a confidential clerk, "you want too much salary." "I've had't great deal of experience in the brokerage business," urged the applicant. "But you ask too much for it." "My dear sir, I assure you I'm offering it to you for much less than it cost me."—Philadelphia Ledger.
