FREIGHT DEPOTS

If the various railroads handling farm products and other freights in and out of Oregon City feel inclined to better their conditions here, the proposition the Live Wires have suggested for freight depots should be grabbed up and steps immediately taken to help the situation. It is an outrage the way Oregon City shippers and consigners must handle their rail shipments to and from our city.

We have had our chicken show, and horse show and a good one, and the horseless carriage has had its turn. Why not have a general animal show with cows of all breeds, pigs, sheep, goats, etc., as the drawing card. More money can be made out of animal breeding than many of us imagine. Someone suggest this to the Publicity Committee. This is a dairy, wool and hog raising country and such a show would no doubt stimulate the breeding of thoroughbreds.

Congress is considering reducing the appropriation for forest patrol from $500,000 to about $275,000 per annum. While the Forestry Department is doing a great work along the line of fire prevention, the amount appropriated in former years has not been sufficient for the proper handling of the enormous task this department has before it, and it is to be hoped that our Congressmen will not agree to this false economy, for in the preservation of our timber, especially from loss of fire, lies our future success.

And now it is up to the officials of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Co. to show the Fair Fares Committees of the four Clackamas County Commercial Clubs why Canamah, Gladstone, Jennings Lodge and Oregon City are not entitled to better rates both cash and ticket. The committees are fair minded men and willing to be shown, but if not shown to their satisfaction, there is only one recourse. The Oregon Railroad Commission, and the committees are determined to see the matter through. The Enterprise hopes to see an amicable settlement at Friday night's meeting.

TUESDAY BRIDGE CLUB ENTERTAINED

The Tuesday Night Bridge Club was entertained in a most delightful manner by Mr. and Mrs. Eber A. Chapman at their home on Sixth and Washington streets Tuesday evening. The prizes were won by M. D. Latourette and Mrs. L. E. Jones. The decorations were artistic, being of dogwood blossoms. A luncheon was served.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Latourette, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Rands, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Beattie, Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Mount, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shewman, of Rialty, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Straight, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lewthwaite.

If Man Can't Cook He Shouldn't Wed

By Judge GOODNOW of Chicago. THE MAN THAT CAN'T COOK SHOULDN'T THINK OF GETTING MARRIED. He is a pitiable object. Let the June bride BEWARE of her husband if he cannot toss the piping flapjack or coax the flavor from the carrot to the soup. The engaged girl usually does not consider in her BEAUTIFUL dream of things as they should be the drowsy breakfast time. That's where the husband's business of cooking comes in. Let him jump CHEERILY from bed, tell the wife to snuggle comfortably in the blankets and then let him go down and turn out a mess for himself.

Scoop Explodes Another White Hope--No Chance to Call the Ambulance

JACKSON AND GREGG FOOL CHANCE AND EVERS.

The friends of Frank Chance and Johnny Evers of the Chicago Cubs are telling some stories at their expense. It appears that when Chance landed in New Orleans for the 1912 spring training trip he saw a lanky youth pitching in practice and noted that he had a "lot of stuff" on the ball. He thought the pitcher was one of his new recruits, and his face brightened, but only for an instant, for on asking the youngster's name he discovered that it was Vean Gregg, the brilliant pitcher of the Cleveland team, who was working out with the Cubs before the arrival of his own teammates.

Before the players were through laughing at the mistake of their manager Johnny Evers furnished another opportunity for a haw-haw. Going up to an outfielder, who was pulling down flies in a most amazing way, he inquired carelessly if he hoped to make the team. "I'm not trying for this team," came the answer. "Oh," responded Evers, "just a home boy getting a little exercise." The smiling rejoinder almost threw Evers into another attack of nervous prostration, for the "home boy" replied, "I'm Joe Jackson of the Cleveland team."

SEVERAL BALL PLAYERS BECOME MAGNATES.

Finally Reap the Results of Their Labors on the Diamond.

The day when the baseball player is reaping the fruits of his labor is at hand. In the old days the magnates knew but little baseball, being in the game merely because they had the capital. The ball players were poorly paid, and when they were unable to play they entered other vocations. It is different now. Not only does the average player receive far more remuneration than in the "good old days," but they are gradually creeping into the financial department of the game and sharing in the proceeds of the game which they helped to build up.

John M. Ward, President of the Boston Nationals. Connie Mack, who considered $2,000 mighty good pay when he was catching for Pittsburgh, is part owner of the Philadelphia Athletics. John M. Ward, a star pitcher and infielder, who possibly drew down $2,400 a year as a player, is now president of the Boston Nationals. James McAleer, after a lifetime spent on the diamond as player and manager, is president of the Boston Americans, while Clark Griffith, who has served in the ranks, is one of the stockholders of the Washington club.

Hughie Jennings, a brilliant infielder and manager, is now one of the owners of the Providence club of the International League.

John Burroughs, Vigorous At the Age of Seventy-five

ONLY one living American naturalist can compete in popularity with John Burroughs—"faunal naturalists," of course, being barred—and it is appropriate that the other man, John Muir, should be a close friend of the sage of Slabside. That is the name which Mr. Burroughs has given to his mountain retreat overlooking the Hudson, a little distance from his more formal but still very simple home near West Park, N. Y. In these beautiful surroundings he works with his pen or in his fields or ranges the woods, winter and summer, vigorous and alert, for all his seventy-five years. If anything ever disturbs the calm of his idyllic existence it is the writings of the "nature fakers," as he regards the makers of books in which animals are endowed with human intelligence—books not written as fiction, but purporting to be records of sober facts. A few years ago he expressed with great vigor his opinions on this style of writing, and for some time a heated controversy raged between the two schools of naturalists.

CHERRY CROP MAY BREAK ALL RECORDS

Special advices indicate that Oregon will this year produce its greatest crop of cherries. According to this information the outlook for Royal Annes is far the best ever known. All sections report more profuse blooming than during any recent season while the acreage is naturally greater. While a large per cent of the expected crop is already under contract to canners, unless something happens there will be more than a sufficient amount of stock to take care of every want of the fresh fruit trade. The same condition applies to early apples in all of the leading growing sections. The expected damage to peaches has not been nearly so serious as some had believed and this applies to apricots.

Electra, Queen of the Mountains

(By Bert Parsons.) Electra, queen of the mountains, From her realm mid the ice and the snow, Descends on the streams from their fountains To be wed to the king dynamo. Tell us, oh queen of your rambles! From your home in the ice and the snow. Of your path over rocks and through brambles Where the low murmuring rivulets flow. Have your jilted the Frost King, Boreas, With his locks all silvered with snow? Is his voice that erst was uproarious, All silenced or murmuring low? "From our realm in the mountains we travel And we wear sparkling gems as we go. Nor heed we the gold in the gravel; For our mission is low as you know, Let Boreas moan in his fetters, With his dull eyes in rage all aglow, He should learn not to yearn for his betters, He is naught to the queen of the snow."

Going to Bed in India.

Going to bed in India is a very different process from going to bed at home. To begin with, it is a far less formal process. There is in the hot season no shutting of the door, no cutting yourself off from the outer world, no going upstairs and finally no getting into bed. You merely lie down on your bed, which, with its bedding, is so simple as to be worth describing. The bed is a wooden frame with a webbing laced across it, and each bed has a thin cotton mattress. Over this one sheet is spread, and two pillows go to each bed, bolsters not being used. That's all. Some people do not even have the mattress, preferring the coolness of a piece of fine matting.

A Chinese Epicure.

"The cooks of today," wrote Yuan Mei, a Chinese author of the nineteenth century, "think nothing of mixing in one soup the meat of chicken, duck, pig and goose. But these chickens, ducks, pigs and geese have doubtless souls, and these souls will most certainly file petitions in the next world of the way they have been treated in this. A good cook will use plenty of different dishes. Each article of food will be made to exhibit its own characteristics, while each made dish will be characterized by one dominant flavor. Then the palate of the gourmand will respond without freak and the flowers of the soul blossom forth."

YOUR DAY.

Today is your day and mine, the only day we have, the day in which we play our part. What our part may signify in the great whole we may not understand, but we are here to play our part, and now is our time to play it. This we know: It is a part of action, not of winning. It is a part of love, not of cynicism. It is for us to express love in terms of human helpfulness.—David Starr Jordan.

French Middleweight Champion Will Visit America in Search of Matches.

George Carpentier, the eighteen-year-old Frenchman who won the European middleweight championship recently by knocking out Jim Sullivan in two rounds at Monte Carlo, is coming to America. Carpentier has received a big offer to box in New York, and it is believed that he will sail about May 1. He will be matched with Mike Gibbons, Frank Klaus and other topnotchers.

Hawaiian Swimmer in Olympics.

Duke Kahanamoku, the Hawaiian swimmer, who may make the American Olympic team, is being instructed in starting from "zo" in the dashes by George Kistler, coach of the University of Pennsylvania.

PIONEER FAMILIES TO CELEBRATE TODAY

Just sixty years ago today the inhabitants of early Oregon assembled at Champoeg, on the Willamette River, and decided they would be subjects of the United States rather than of Great Britain. Old residents will celebrate the day by a meeting at Champoeg. Ex-Governor Geer will preside. F. V. Holman, president of the Oregon Historical Society, and George H. Himes will speak. The boat will leave the dock at the foot of Taylor street, Portland, at 6:45 o'clock this morning, and will connect with a train at Wilsonville. The Oregon Electric train will leave the North Bank depot, Portland, at 9:15, and will stop at Jefferson street.

Four Governors in One Year.

In one year once the state of Maine enjoyed the novelty of having four governors. The year was 1843. Governor Fairchild was elected to serve that year, but resigned. He was succeeded by Governor Kavanaugh, president of the senate, but he also resigned. Then Governor Dunn, speaker of the assembly, took the chair, and he was succeeded by Governor Dana, president of the senate. Governor Anderson was elected for the year 1844—Philadelphia Press.

Very Serious.

"I would like to marry your daughter, sir. I realize that this is a serious matter."

Mrs. Anxious Query.

Young Wife: I don't like that cooking school teacher at all. She has net the patience nor consideration. She's actually cruel. Husband: Great sakes! She doesn't really make you eat the things, does she?

HENDERSON FOR SUTER IS PROPOSED DEAL

PORTLAND, May 1. (Special.)—Today's game between Hogan's Tigers and McCredie's champions was postponed on account of wet grounds. When asked if he would trade Benny Henderson, his star twirler, to the San Francisco Seals for Harry Suter Manager McCredie said, "Sure, and in a minute." Henderson has not been going right this season with the Beavers and probably a change would do him good. Danny Long has been trying to sell McCredie Suter for $2000, but the Beaver manager thinks that Long's price is too high. Suter would come in handy with the Beavers right now and Henderson would add a great deal of strength to the Seals pitching staff if he remains "on the wagon."

The results Wednesday follow:

Table with columns for National League, American League, and Standing of the Clubs. Includes teams like Chicago, New York, Boston, etc., and their records.

FALLS CITY ORCHESTRA TO GIVE BIG DANCE
